One Killed, 8 Overcome Before Rain Breaks Heat

Construction Man Collapses at Job; Mercury Falls to 72 After 93 High

One man died and eight others were overcome in yesterday's heat wave which was broken by a thundershower shortly before 8 p. m.

The dead man was Sam Montgomery, 67, of 162 Bryant st. nw., who collapsed at about 3:45 p. m. at a construction job at Utah ave. and Patterson st. nw. He was taken to Georgetown University Hospital where he died at 6:50 p. m.

Police said Montgomery was employed by the Homesite Realty Corp., 3211 Wisconsin ave. nw.

The thundershower which sent temperatures tumbling also brought with it high winds which ripped down power lines and trees. Several houses were reported struck by lightning.

With the temperature reaching into the 90's for the third successive day, eight persons required treatment for heat effects, police said.

They were Cora Farrell, 48, of 1694 Kramer st. ne.; Mrs. Charles A. Sampson of 2220 4th st. ne.; Olivia Baker, 48, of 1240 Girard st. ne.; George Ganey, 12, of 637 I st. nw.; George Black, 20, of 451 M st. nw.; Louise McWilliams, 31, of 1315 Linden ct. ne.; Albert Austin, 30, of 1324 S st. nw., and Paul Bailey, 24, of 642 6th st. nw.

Yesterday the thermometer hit a peak of 93 at 2:55 p. m. after climbing from a low of 75 at 6.20 a. m. Admittedly hot weather, this still fell far short of the rec-

Jet Planes Fly To Bermuda In 1 hr.,50 min.

Four P-80 jet fighter planes of the United States Air Force yesterday flew the 821 miles from Andrews Field, Md., to Kindley Field, Bermuda, in one hour and 50 minutes.

The Associated Press reported from Bermuda that the planes flew at an altitude of 32,000 feet and finished with a half-hour reserve of fuel.

Two units of jet planes—one in England and one in the United States—are getting ready to attempt the first jet-propelled aircraft crossing of the Atlantic.

Six RAF Vampire fighters are at Odiham Airport, England, waiting to take off for Iceland, Greenland, Labrador, Canada and then New York. Sixteen USAF F-80A Lockheed Shooting Stars expect to fly from Selfridge Field, Mich., to Bangor, Me., then to Labrador, Greenland, Iceland, Scotland and Odiham.

Weather permitting, the British fliers will gain credit for the first transatlantic jet flight. They are scheduled to take off Thursday. The American West-to-East flight is to start July 7.

Both flights are intended to provide jet pilots with operational experience over water and determine the feasibility of ferrying jet warplanes over the North Atlantic route. The United States Air Force some day may have to move reinforcements to Europe in a hurry.

Strategic Air Command officials at Andrews Field said the flight to Bermuda was the longest over water flight by a jet fighter on record.

The craft were from the 336th Fighter Squadron of the Fourth Fighter Group. Lieut. Col. Benjamin S. Preston, jr., commanded the flight. He was accompanied by Capts. Harry R. Casselman, Henry S. Ogiba and Howard M. Lane.

A B-29 Superfortress will lead the way for the 16 jet fighters on next week's West-to-East transatlantic flight. It will provide weather reconnaissance for the trip and navigational aid if required. Two four-engined Douglas C-54 transports and one twin-engine Douglas C-47 transport will carry along ground crews for the maneuver and B-17s will be on hand for possible rescue work.

The planes will remain in Germany for about two weeks and

$40,000,000 Health Project

Initial Bids to Be Asked for 'World's Best' Medical Research Hospital at Bethesda

FSA PROJECT—Architects' conception of the proposed 40-million-dollar Clinical Center of the National Institute of Health, Bethesda, Md. Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing yesterday announced initial construction bids will be opened next month. A new, 500-bed hospital will occupy one third of the 13-story, red brick structure. Remaining space will accommodate expanded medical research programs of the Government

Institution Expected To Be Completed Within Three Years

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Initial construction bids will be invited soon for "the world's best" medical research hospital center at Bethesda, Md., it was announced yesterday by Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing.

Under present plans, said Ewing, the proposed 40-million-dollar center should be completed within three years. It will comprise a 13-story, 500-bed hospital, together with medical research laboratories, and will serve as the nucleus for the Nation's heavily expanded studies in cancer, mental illness and heart ailments.

Details of the new institution and scope of its activities were outlined by Ewing at a press conference attended by many of the key men who will serve under the program.

Additional Land Sought

The buildings will be erected on property adjacent to the National Institute of Health, west of Rockville Pike and opposite the present Naval Medical Research Center. Negotiations for acquisition of an additional 211 acres adjoining present grounds of NIH are in progress, Ewing said.

These include the Woodmont Country Club and the estate of the Rev. G. Freeland Peter, retired Episcopal clergyman and onetime canon of Washington Cathedral, he said. The contemplated purchases would bring land holdings of NIH there to 320 acres.

Dr. Jack Masur of 3821 Grammercy st. nw., who in April rejoined U. S. Public Health Service with the rank of medical director, will be in administrative charge of the new hospital, it was announced. Over-all administration will fall to Dr. R. E. Dyer, director of the National Institute of Health.

Dr. Masur yesterday disclosed that bidding will be invited in July for construction of the subbasements, basement and first floor of the Clinical Center. Within a year, he said, the project should be well enough along for the letting of bids for further construction.

Provisions for Funds

Present funds available for the project total five million dollars, Ewing said, with Congressional authority to contract for an additional $25,630,000 for erecting and equipping the center. The remaining 10 million dollars needed will come from special grants and supplemental congressional appropriations, said the Federal Security Administrator.

About 55 of the Nation's outstanding architects consulted on the planning of the huge project, Ewing said yesterday.

Among its features will be removable steel partitions installed on an interchangeable basis so that rooms and wards can be expanded or contracted, explained Dr. Leonard A. Scheele, Surgeon

Jap Quake Casualties Near 11,000

Seacoast Rocked Again; Death Toll May Rise Above 5000

Tokyo (Wednesday), June 30 (U.P.).—Japan's western seacoast, devastated by earthquakes and fires on Monday, was rocked again by recurring tremors today and latest official report indicated the death toll may rise above the 5000 mark.

An official death count compiled by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters lists 3155 dead in Fukui City and 39 neighboring villages and 7752 injured.

A United Press dispatch from Fukui City, epicenter of Monday's tragic earth upheaval, said a Japanese government estimate at 7 a. m. today had the death toll at 5000 in Fukui prefecture alone.

City Still Rocking

A national police communique issued at 1 a. m. estimated 3000 dead in Fukui City, with at least 7752 injured.

United Press Correspondent Peter Kalischer telephoned from the Fukui City area to report that the city was "still rocking."

Many of the injured still lay in the streets. Workmen dug through the debris of more than 30,000 wrecked and gutted buildings searching for bodies.

Thousands of homeless men, women and children wandered among the ruins in search of families, food and belongings.

Theaters Collapse

It was estimated that 2000 persons were injured when a motion picture theater in Fukui collapsed. A majority of 400 patrons attending a second theater were believed killed.

Communications and the city's water supply were still almost completely paralyzed.

Sixty convicts from a demolished penitentiary were believed roaming at large.

Allied and Japanese officials rushed food and medicines to Fukui. The city and most of three prefectures fronting on the Sea of Japan were without water or sanitary facilities.

Fukui and Ishikawa prefectural authorities beseeched the ministry of welfare in Tokyo for 57,000 pieces of clothing, 50,000 dishes and cooking utensils and 20,500 blankets.

Full Story Not Known

Because of damage to communications, the full story was not yet known here. Capt. Benjamin A. Click, Newport, Tenn., flew over the disaster area at an altitude of 500 feet. He reported sighting most damage concentrated in Fukui city and towns to the north.

"There were large holes in the highways and roads north of Fukui where the earth had opened

3 Young Girls Sought in Park Slaying

Trio Seen Running From Area Shortly Before Body Was Found

Police yesterday launched an intensive search for three young girls in the belief they can explain who killed pretty little Carol Bardwell in Rock Creek Park Sunday.

In addition, police were searching for known sex offenders, an indication that they feel strongly a sex motive may be at the bottom of the brutal murder.

The girls sought by police were seen running from the park at about 6:40 p. m. Sunday, only an hour before the body of 11-year-old Carol, her throat slashed from ear to ear, was found.

Description of Girls

Police were told the trio ran from a pathway at 17th st. and Colorado ave. nw. This is only 100 yards from where the pitifully huddled body of the victim was found under a tree.

Before issuing a general alarm for the three girls, Police Superintendent Robert J. Barrett told a press conference:

"I feel that the key to this case is in the arrest or apprehension of these three girls; that if they did not do the job themselves, they must have witnessed it."

In a lookout flashed to all members of the force, the three girls, all Negroes, were described in this manner:

The first girl . . . about 17 years old, 5 feet 2, buxom, very dark skin and had her hair greased down. She wore a striped pinafore dress with shoulder straps. The stripes were wide and one was cream colored.

The second girl . . . about 6 or 7 years old, light brown skin. She wore sandals and a faded blue dress with short sleeves ending about 3 inches below the shoulders.

The third girl . . . no description available.

Police said the information about the three girls was furnished by Mrs. Helen Saccardi, of 2730 Wisconsin ave. nw, who was visiting relatives at 4815 17th st. nw.

Police said Mrs. Saccardi overheard one of the girls say as they

Dewey Calls Berlin Food Block 'Grave'

Keeping Informed Of Developments Through Dulles; Talks With Warren

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

Pawling, N. Y., June 29.—Gov. Tomas E. Dewey of New York and Gov. Earl Warren of California today went into their first strategy huddle since their nomination as GOP standard-bearers for 1948.

They met at Dapplemere, the Dewey's country estate on the edge of Pawling.

They sat in the shade of a Norway maple on the lawn beside the Dewey mansion for a brief press conference.

Dewey, answering a question about the Soviet blockade of Berlin, said he regarded it as a "very grave" situation with which he had been keeping in close touch through John Dulles, his adviser on international affairs and his main contact man with the State Department.

"I have discussed the Berlin situation with Mr. Dulles twice a day now for several days. I have kept very closely informed on it," he said.

"Mustn't Consider War"

He was asked whether he thought the Berlin situation could lead to war.

"We must not even consider such possibilities," said Dewey.

He was asked whether he plans to take a direct hand in American foreign policy during the coming months.

"I took an active hand in even more serious matters (of foreign policy) in 1944, but I have nothing to say about that now," Dewey replied. "I'm going to have a full-length conference with Mr. Dulles shortly."

Dewey was noncommittal about the Communist Information Bureau's denunciation yesterday of Marshal Tito's leadership of the Yugoslav government. When asked about the news of Tito, Dewey observed "I would like to see more of the details before I comment. I would like to know a great deal more of the background of it than has so far been printed. When Communists fall apart I am always a little dubious."

Noncommittal on D. C. Rule

On a question about District self-government, Dewey again was noncommittal. The Republican platform puts the GOP on record as favoring self-government for residents of the Nation's Capital. Dewey had said earlier he subscribes to the platform, but on the District plank "I haven't had the opportunity to consider it or to form a measured judgment about it."

Dewey announced that there would be no statement coming out of his conference with Warren, which was to start after the press conference.

He said the two of them had had no opportunity to hold any conversation in peace since the Republican convention, which gave Dewey the presidential nomination and made Warren his vice presidential mate. Dewey said they would discuss problems of their campaign organization, the question of when their active campaign would begin, and where each will travel. There have been indications that Warren would be assigned the Western campaign primarily, and that their campaign speeches would start around September.

Dewey said there would be dis-

Yugoslavia Rejects Cominform Charges; Tito Back in Capital

Reply Aimed at Communist Parties Rather Than Soviet, Other Governments

Belgrade, June 29 (U.P.).—The Yugoslav Communist Party bitterly denied tonight charges of the Communist Bureau of Information against Marshal Tito's regime, and Tito himself returned to the capital to take charge of the situation.

The central committee of the Yugoslav Party refuted point by point the Cominform charges of deviation from the party line and said the accusations would be "exploited by hostile propaganda with the aim of slandering the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and other democratic countries."

Defying the Cominform demand for a party purge, the statement called on Yugoslav Communists, the working class and "other working masses" in its coalition Popular Front to support Tito.

Tito Met by Aides

It was disclosed that Tito had arrived at the Belgrade airport from his summer home at Bled hours before the statement was issued.

He was accompanied by Premiers Vladimir Bakaric of Croatia and Miho Marinko of Slovenia.

Tito was met at the airport by Vice Premier Edward Kardelj, Minister Without Portfolio Milanov Djilas and Interior Minister Gen. Alexander Rankovitch, who were his fellow-targets in the Cominform blast.

The party drove to the Toptchider Park, where a Yugoslav National Communist Party conference is to be held July 21.

Calling for the undivided support of Yugoslavs for Tito, the central committee concluded its statement with the appeal:

"The central committee calls upon party members to close their ranks still further in the struggle for realization of the party line of policy and for the still-further strengthening of party unity."

Appeal to Working Masses

"It calls upon the working class and other working masses rallied in the people's front to continue with even greater determination the work of construction of our socialist homeland.

"That is our sole way to prove in practice the injustice of the abovementioned accusations."

The central committee's statement denied every charge made against Tito and his colleagues, including those by the all-powerful Central Committee of the Russian Communist party.

But at the same time the central committee pointed its counter-attack against the Cominform itself and the Communist parties of countries belonging to it instead of against the Russian and other governments concerned.

The central committee feels that Yugoslavia needs the help of the Soviets (Russia) and other democratic states," the statement said.

"We emphasize that we shall not damage the unity of the Communist front."

Cominform Assailed

To this gesture to Russia, as opposed to the Russian Communist Party and the Cominform which it founded last September with parties of nine European countries as members, the Yugoslav Party executive added:

"The Cominform has abandoned the principle on which it was founded and has caused members of the party to split into sections."

The Cominform was accused of seeking to discredit the Communist Party in Yugoslavia both at home and in the eyes of the world. Other European Communist parties were accused of prejudging the Cominform-Yugoslav dispute without having heard Yugoslavia's side of it at all.

All charges of the Cominform, and those made by the Russian Communist Party, were denied in detail. There were denials also of some charges not included in the Cominform blast made public Monday. These included:

1. That "the envoy of one of the big imperialist States acts in

Cut Reparations Costs

Russians Hint Early Lifting Of Berlin Food Blockade

By Marguerite Higgins

Berlin, June 29 (NYHT).—The Russians tonight issued a half-promise that the food blockade of Berlin would be lifted in a few weeks. The conciliatory Soviet note was believed in western allied circles to be timed to avert a United Nations investigation of the Berlin crisis, which had been formally requested this afternoon by the city assembly.

Marshal Vassili Sokolovsky, Soviet zone commander, in replying to a protest delivered by the British, declared "food supplies in Berlin will last for some more weeks and the Soviet military administration hopes by that time to have done away with technical troubles on the railway." (These technical difficulties were given as the excuse for the absolute shutdown of all incoming rail traffic to the city.)

If the Russians fulfill this "hope"—and there is certainly the possibility that they are just stalling—it means at the best the postponement of the Berlin crisis. The Russians, according to observers here, are still bent on getting the western allies out of the city and they may merely be waiting for winter as an ally.

Simultaneously today the Russians answered the bad publicity they have been getting with what will probably be the most popular announcement since their occupation—that of a sharp reduction in reparations and occupation costs.

Reparations that have variously been estimated at from 40 to 80 per cent of the Soviet zone production will from now on constitute only 10 per cent of gross production and 12 of net production. The occupation army will take 8 per cent of net production.

Sokolovsky's letter, which is a complete reversal of previous statements that the railway halt was indefinite, promised that "the Soviet military administration will take all steps possible to do away with the restrictions" on the vital rail link between the western zones and Berlin. He regretted that the introduction of the western mark in Berlin made necessary the "continued restriction of motor traffic on the Helmstadt-Berlin Autobahn."

The Russian leader made definite overtures for the resumption

Mail Subsidy Announced on Aid Parcels

Plan Is Designed To Encourage Private Contributions Abroad

The Government last night announced a mail subsidy on relief packages for much of Europe and China to encourage private contributions to the recovery task.

A cut of 4 cents a pound on July 6 in parcel post rates to 11 countries, made possible by the subsidy, will bring a "substantial" increase in private shipments of food, clothing and other items, the Economic Cooperation Administration predicted.

Meanwhile two more countries, Britain and Denmark, signed aid treaties with the United States. They promised to pursue stable financial policies in return for shares in the five-billion-dollar Marshall Plan appropriation. Italy and Ireland signed yesterday. There are 16 Marshall Plan nations.

Reported Conflict Solved

The British pact solves a reported conflict between State Department negotiators and British officials. The latter balked at United States-proposed wording which, as originally written, raised British fears that the United States would seek to tinker with the value of the pound sterling.

The agreements require ratification by the Danish and English Parliaments, expected quickly. All Marshall Plan countries must approve the individual agreements with this country by July 3 or suffer a shutdown on aid shipments. The Danish agreement has not been made public, though its general content is known.

Similar in content to those previously signed, the British treaty commits Prime Minister Clement Attlee's government to policies for boosting production and encouraging trade. It is pledged to:

"Stabilize its currency, establish or maintain a valid rate of ex-

U. S. Appeals To Moscow for Korea Power

Cutting Off Current Unjustified, Says Ambassador Smith

The United States last night carried directly to Moscow its demand that Russia resume electric power deliveries to southern Korea to prevent "unwarranted hardships" in the American-occupied zone.

A note delivered to the Soviet Foreign Office by American Ambassador Walter Bedell Smith said the action of Russian authorities in northern Korea in cutting off the flow of power to American-controlled southern Korea "was unjustified."

The note was handed to Moscow officials after Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, American military commander in southern Korea, made repeated but futile efforts to negotiate with Soviet authorities in Korea.

The Soviet officials answered only one of Hodge's many letters. The one reply asserted that the decision to halt power deliveries was made by the "peoples committee of north Korea" and that Russia was powerless to act.

Power to the American zone was cut off May 14, leaving the area crippled economically. Hodge was forced to call in power barges to supply hospitals and factories on an emergency basis.

American officials say privately the Russian action is part of a pressure campaign to force withdrawal of American troops from southern Korea. The Soviets have offered to recall their army at the same time, but it is known that they are ready to leave behind a well-equipped force prepared to move into the southern zone.

On the surface the power dispute revolves around how the Americans shall pay for the power. Payment has been offered in gold.

Tobin at White House

Pennsylvanians Back Truman As Others Boom Eisenhower

By The Associated Press

Scattered Democrats still talked yesterday of running Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower instead of President Truman for the Presidency.

But Pennsylvania delegates to the Democratic convention starting July 12 indorsed Mr. Truman, without binding anyone to vote for him. The action was taken at a meeting at Harrisburg. Some delegates protested vigorously.

Apparently sure he will be the nominee, Mr. Truman took a look at labor's part in the campaign. He had a long talk with Daniel J. Tobin, president of the A.F.L. teamsters union, in the White House.

Tobin left without saying whom he wants for President.

Talk about Eisenhower came from:

1. Columbia, S. C.—Gov. J. Strom Thurmond said at a news conference there's a "good chance" General Ike will be the Democratic nominee.

2. Omaha—Nebraska Democratic Chairman William Ritchie, who has split with Mr. Truman, said the President's nomination is being encouraged by Republican columnists and newspapers out of fear of Eisenhower as a democratic possibility.

3. Milwaukee—Beaten in an effort Sunday to get the State Democratic convention to "beseech" Eisenhower to take the party nomination, attorney Martin Gedlen began a draft movement built around bombarding the general with letters.

Tobins' White House call raised new questions as to whether the labor leader will support Mr. Truman. After serving as a delegate to the last four Democratic Conventions and strongly backing the late President Roosevelt, Tobin declined to be a delegate this year.

And Lester Hunt, editor of The International Teamster, has said the teamsters' union would be more likely to support Dewey than Mr. Truman.

Elsewhere along the political circuit:

Third Party Presidential Candidate Henry A. Wallace campagined in Maine.

House Speaker Martin predicted in Washington that the GOP will pick up three congressional seats in California and several in border States in traditionally Democratic districts.

Representative Landis (R., Ind.) said in Washington that the Republicans have an "even chance" of getting labor's vote for the first time in two decades. He said that is because they have a "liberal" ticket. Landis is in line for the chairmanship of the House Labor Committee if he is reelected.

At Pawling, N. Y., Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee, was asked at a news conference "whom will the Democrats nominate?"

The reply:

"I never give advice to the opposition."

Temperature Near Zero

Parking Row Lands Driver Of Refrigerated Truck—Inside

New York, June 29 (NYHT).—A warm argument today over a parking space in Brooklyn led an angry motorist to assault Sam Himelfarb with intent to freeze.

Himelfarb, 29, of Brooklyn, driver of a truck refrigerated with dry ice, tried to squeeze his vehicle into a short parking place with the result that it bumped a car behind. The driver, who was seated at the wheel, jumped out and began remonstrating with the truck operator.

As his vehicle was the larger, Himelfarb won the argument. Menaced by the backing truck, the motorist pulled out of the space, then stopped beside the truck.

As the triumphant Himelfarb opened the rear door of the insulated truck and disappeared into the refrigerated compartment to pick up a load of fruits and vegetables for delivery to a nearby restaurant, the watchful motorist darted from his car.

With the speed of a commando, he slammed the door shut on the trucker and sped off. Himelfarb, surrounded by dry ice, frozen vegetables and a temperature near zero, pounded, kicked and shouted. The door could not be opened from the inside and was fastened from the outside by a snap lock.

The snap lock could be only opened by a key. Himelfarb had the key in his pocket. He kept up his circulation and his hopes by shouting and pounding until his knuckles bled.

His muffled shouts and blows were finally heard by two pedestrians. The two, armed with hammers, pliers and mallets, battered at the lock for five minutes before it yielded.

Pale and shivering, Himelfarb lurched out into the welcome temperature of 90 degrees.

Police began a search for an unidentified motorist with a scratch on his bumper and a smile on his face.

Dr. Studebaker Resigns Post As Education Commissioner

By John W. Ball

Dr. John W. Studebaker resigned yesterday as United States Commissioner of Education, a post he has held for 14 years.

His resignation came on the heels of the resignation of Dr. E. B. Norton, for two years Dr. Studebaker's deputy commissioner, who, in quitting, charged "political" interference in operation of the office.

Studebaker's resignation is the second change in long-time heads of agencies in the Federal Security Agency since Oscar R. Ewing, personal friend of President Truman, became head of FSA last August 27.

The other was Dr. Thomas Parran, for years surgeon general of the Public Health Service, who retired when his term expired April 6. First notice of Dr. Parran's leaving his post came on February 12, when Dr. Leonard A. Scheele was named to take over on April 6. Parran later was appointed head of a temporary mission to the Far East for the United Nations International Children's Fund.

At Birmingham, Ala., the Associated Press reported, Dr. Norton released a copy of his letter of resignation, addressed to Dr. Studebaker, and saying in part:

"I would be less than frank with you, however, if I should neglect to say that one major factor in my decision to leave the Office of Education has been my dissatisfaction and deep concern during recent weeks over the rate at which the political administration of the Federal Security Agency is taking over, and concentrating in the office of the administrator so many of the functions, services, and operating pro-

PEOPLE In The NEWS

Dr. Studebaker Sought to Tie Education To the Quickened Pace of Modern Living

Long before he came to Washington in 1934 as United States Commissioner of Education, Dr. John Ward Studebaker felt that educators were not moving fast enough or far enough to equip students for the quickened pace of modern living.

JOHN W. STUDEBAKER
" . . . The time has now come"

During his 14 years' tenure in that office, which is now coming to a close with the acceptance of his resignation by President Truman, Dr. Studebaker labored to transpose his progressive education ideas to the national scene.

As assistant superintendent and later superintendent of schools in Des Moines, Iowa, he had launched the country's first comprehensive system of school forums, and instituted special programs for handicapped children and slow-learners.

Under his direction, the United States Office of Education pioneered the use of radio for educational uses, made major strides in expansion of Federal-State programs of vocational training for young and old like, and spread his program of adult civic education under public school auspices.

Likes Fishing

A small, scholarly-looking man who looks younger than his 61 years, Dr. Studebaker is not the bookworm educator that his appearance might indicate.

When he can spare time from his principal hobby—discussing social and educational problems with almost anyone who will join in—he enjoys most sports, particularly fishing. He and his wife, the former Eleanor Regina Winberg, have lived for many years at the Shoreham Hotel, and have one son, John Gordon Studebaker, a wartime Air Forces officer.

The son of a former school teacher, Dr. Studebaker, was born in McGregor, Iowa, and helped for his schooling at Leander Clark College, Toledo, Iowa, by working as a bricklayer.

In 1917, he received a master's degree from Columbia University, after he had served as principal and athletic coach at Guthrie Center, Iowa, high school in 1910, and elementary and junior high school principal at Mason City, Iowa, 1911-1914.

Favored Equal Salaries

Among his proudest accomplishments is the introduction in Des Moines in 1921 of equal salaries for equally qualified teachers, regardless of the grade in which they were teaching.

Dr. Studebaker has endeavored for years to win public approval of Federal scholarships for deserving youth who could not otherwise afford such schooling.

In the most recent annual report of the Office of Education, he proposed that Federal scholarships take up the schooling slack when the GI educational program begins to taper off—with a permanent program under way before 1950.

Dr. Studebaker's new post, presumably with a far greater salary than the $10,000 a year he received from the Government, will be as vice president and chairman of the editorial board of Scholastic Magazines, which publishes periodicals for student training.

But he made it clear that he does not regard his resignation as a departure from education, stating:

"The obligations of leadership thrust upon the United States make it absolutely necessary that our people be well informed about what is going on in the world . . . I shall be happy to share in the task . . ."

U. S. Rejects Soviet Protest Over Article

By the United Press

The State Department bluntly rejected a Soviet "warmongering" charge yesterday and notified the Kremlin that the United States has no intention of trying to censor its free press.

It said further that if Russia really wants to put a stop to propaganda that stirs up international tensions, she shoul dlook to her own government-controlled press.

The diplomatic exchange was touched off by an article in the May 17 issue of Newsweek magazine. The article discussed the key role of United States air power in defending the nation against possible attack by Russia.

The Soviet Embassy here delivered a formal note to the State Department on June 9 protesting. It charged that the article was typical of the "unbridled propaganda for a new war" which, Russia says, is being carried on in this country.

"Happy" Reds Don't Plan War

The Soviet note went on to say that it was a "libelous invention" to assume that Russia plans to attack the United States.

In its reply yesterday, the State Department said the United States government "is happy to observe" Russia's statement that "the charge that the Soviet Union is preparing an attack upon the United States (is) a libelous invention."

The U. S. note added that "there is no suggestion" in the Newsweek article that "the United States should take the initiative in attacking the Soviet Union or any other country."

"The greater part of the article was devoted to speculation concerning measures to which the United States might resort for its national defense if confronted with . . . an attack," it went on.

Newsweek Cables Molotov

"Any attempt on the part of the Government of the United States to control or suppress articles of this type appearing in the public press would be a violation of the right of freedom of the press which is guaranteed by the Constitution of the United States."

The department went on to express its "surprise . . . that the Soviet government should feel called upon to protest" against articles published in the privately controlled American press while the government-owned Russian press "constantly" publishes articles which "can scarcely be construed as promoting friendly relations among nations."

The editors of Newsweek meanwhile made public a cablegram to Russian Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov explaining the magazine's stand. It said its columns are equally open to "favorable" news about the Soviet Union—if Russia will raise the iron curtain enough to let American correspondents dig out the news objectively.

U. N. Defers Berlin Action

Lake Success, N. Y., June 29 (U.P.).—Secretary General Trygve Lie temporarily shelved his proposal for United Nations action in the Berlin crisis tonight after the United States and other Western powers turned a cold shoulder to the idea of immediate intervention.

The United States delegation to the United Nations informed Lie tonight that it would favor U. N. intervention to break the Soviet blockade of the German capital "should the situation in Berlin further deteriorate."

Meanwhile, the United States said it would prefer to keep the Berlin problem where it was—in the hands of Gen. Lucius Clay, American military governor in the four-power city. Should General Clay and his French and British counterparts fail to reach an accord with Marshal Vassily Sokolovsky on sending food into the city, then the United States said the next step would probably be a sharply worded protest from the Western powers directly to the Kremlin.

French and British spokesmen indicated that their governments were in full agreement with the American view and expected to deliver similar answers to Lie shortly.

Spokesman for Lie said that "it could be presumed" the Secretary General would not put the grave problem on the Security Council agenda in the face of the Western powers coolness and certain Russian opposition.

However, it was understood that the United States was keeping the possibility of U. N. action alive as a threat which might be used to influence the Russians to take a more conciliatory attitude.

"We are deeply appreciative of the role which the United Nations might play should the situation in Berlin further deteriorate," the American delegation told Lie.

CAMPAIGN PLANNERS—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey (left) of New York and Gov. Earl Warren of California were together yesterday on Dewey's 486-acre farm near Pawling, N. Y. Banker Urges U. S. to Dispel Red Fears and End Discord

Cape May, N. J., June 29 (U.P.).—The present hostile relations between the United States and Russia are caused primarily by a fear of each other and the United States must take the lead in dispelling that fear, James P. Warburg said tonight.

Warburg, banker, author and wartime official of the Office of War Information, advocated urgent efforts to form a world government in a speech prepared for delivery before the general conference of the Society of Friends.

The world now is drifting toward "unification by force," Warburg said. The deplorable part, he added, is that America and the Soviet Union are motivated not so much by their own ambitions as by fear of what the other will do.

The solution to the world deadlock, Warburg said, is a world government under which nations will give up their national sovereignty.

"At this point," he said, "the objection doubtless occurs to some of you that for the United States to delegate these powers to a world government would mean placing in non-American hands the control over the American standard of living. My answer is simple.

"The control over our living standards has already escaped from our own hands. It is today at the mercy of a state of international anarchy which may at any moment result in disaster."

Warburg said there were three major predicates of effective world organization:

1. A world united by peaceful means must be united in a form which is representative of all the nations of the world, expressive of all the various cultures and religions, and responsible to the variegated aspirations of all the world's peoples.

2. The second predicate, closely allied to the first, is that the relative possession of military power by the various nation-states must not be determinant of their relative importance.

3. The third predicate is that an effective world organization must be founded upon the delegation of certain powers to a world government according to the federal principle. The first and most obvious of these powers is the maintenance and use, when necessary, of force to preserve peace.

'Voice of America' Must Tell Truth, Allen Says

South Hadley, Mass., June 29 (U.P.).—Assistant Secretary of State George V. Allen said tonight the "Voice of America" must tell the truth about the United States, even if it hurts, or it will lose its value as a propaganda weapon.

He warned against any effort to picture this country as "the home only of sweetness and light" in an address prepared for delivery to the Mount Holyoke College Institute on the United Nations.

of inter-zonal trade. All important Ruhr coal deliveries to the Soviet zone as well as other trade were cut off by the British in retaliation to the Soviet blockade of Berlin.

The announcement late tonight of the Soviet marshal's letter followed a day in which the Russian occupiers had gotten a thoroughgoing public lambasting in the city assembly.

An overwhelming majority voted to ask the United Nations to intervene in the east-west crisis over this Soviet-blocked city on the grounds that the situation here "endangers world peace and security."

Subsequently Dr. Ferdinand Friedensburg, Berlin's deputy mayor, said he had received assurances that Denmark would sponsor the Assembly's petition in the United Nations. The petition states that unless the U. N. can give speedy help "the two and a quarter million Germans of the western sectors are condemned to destruction."

As the resolution (to which only the Communists objected) was drafted, assemblymen could hear the roar overhead of a vast American and British air supply armada. Working 24 hours a day, this air fleet is Berlin's only source of food and coal supply. In the last 48 hours the number of American planes alone has neared the 300 mark.

Germans Unrattled

The conciliatory tone of Sokolovsky's note and the fact that the Soviets probably will have to go into a huddle for new tactics can probably be attributed:

1. To the fact that the weapon of starvation was greatly blunted by the astonishing air supply job begun by the United States. (The city assembly was not aware of the extent of this supply when it stated in its appeal to the U. N. that physical destruction faced the population.) For the first time in history at least the minimum food needs of more than 2,225,000 people ean be assured by air power alone.

2. To the failure of the German people and the German city government to panic despite the most intensive Soviet propaganda supported by rowdy Communist demonstrations that included physical attacks on anti-Communist city officials.

cussion of the subject matter for campaign speeches, and of a good many matters of governmental policy. He declined to go into details about the policy matters. He said the discussion would be mostly exploratory, and that no final decisions would be reached.

Dewey is slated to return to Albany Wednesday. He will leave his farm shortly before 3 p. m., will make the trip by car, and will arrive in Albany for a reception on the State Capitol steps about 5 p. m. Warren said he plans to leave for California Saturday.

The Warrens were driven up from New York City today for their afternoon visit with the Deweys, who have been at their farm since Saturday.

With Governor Warren were his wife and three daughters, Virginia, 19; Dorothy, 17, and Nina, 14. They were greeted on the east portico of the Dewey's 12-room home by Governor and Mrs. Dewey and their two sons, Thomas, jr., 15, and John, 12.

2 Hours With Photographers

For the next two hours, photographers had a field day. They marshaled the two families in a straight line to walk down the drive for the still photographers. They marshaled them in column to walk down the drive for the newsreels. Dewey and Warren then took off their coats for a tour of the farm buildings. They posed together below the horseshoe nailed over the door of the pumphouse where the farm's 5000-gallon water tank and deep-freeze unit are kept.

They walked through a lane filled with clover and buttercups to the edge of a knoll from where Dewey said "one of the most beautiful sights in the world" can be viewed. The view is north along the Harlem Valley, and on a clear day one could see 25 miles up the rolling valley and its border of hills, according to Dewey.

Later they visited the cow barns. Dewey has a herd of 51 cows, mostly Holsteins, and when he has time he takes a turn at the milking line as a "hired hand." He hires a farmer to operate the place.

The home is set on a knoll far up the eastern slope of the Harlem Valley. Wide lawns and towering trees surround the two-story house, but there is a clear view from its western windows to the hills across the valley.

In the rear there is a vegetable garden, greenhouses and rosebushes, with the main barns nestling almost out of sight down a slope.

Mrs. Dewey said the garden produces beets, carrots, string beans, lettuce, onions, and "lots of tomatoes." Some tomatoes are canned each year. Other vegetables are preserved in the deep-freeze unit. There are apple, pear, peach and cherry trees. A few wild strawberries were ripe between the road and picket fence in front of the house. The fence was about halfway through a new paint job.

Mrs. Dewey a "Good Weeder"

Mrs. Dewey said she doesn't do much gardening, but is a good weeder and helps trim the hedges. Along the west wall of the house, yellow English primroses were blooming.

Mrs. Dewey was wearing a yellow flowered print dress and brown shoes. She was asked about the cold that bothered her through the convention. She said what it needed was rest, and she hadn't had a chance to rest yet.

The Warren and Dewey children gave the photographers their own show. They were asked to join hands and run together down the lawn toward the cameras. Dorothy and Nina took off their high-heeled shoes to join in. They staged two gay laughing races to satisfy the photographers.

The children have met several times, and talk together like happy friends.

Mrs. Warren wore a blue and white print dress and matching shoes and carried a blue handbag. The girls wore varied summer dresses. The Dewey boys were in open-collared sport shirts and slacks. Governor Warren wore a double-breasted suit and burgundy tie. Dewey dressed for the country in sport coat, light tan slacks, and polka-dot tie with brown background.

Dewey met the Warrens with a hearty "Greetings, glad to see you." He turned to Warren and said "Hi, Earl, did you like the ride up? Isn't it wonderful country."

As the press conference ended under a tree, Dewey looked across to a nearby hillside where some of his cows had just appeared. "That's the prettiest sight in the world," he said.

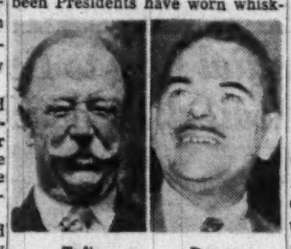
A reporter asked Dewey if it were true that cows always face downwind, or upwind, when they are grazing. Dewey got a big laugh with his poker-face reply: "They face the direction in which they're moving," he said.

Dewey's May Be 1st Whiskers In White House Since Taft

By Arthur Edson
Associated Press Staff Writer

If Thomas E. Dewey is elected, he will bring the first presidential mustache to the White House since William Howard Taft left there, 35 years ago.

Only 9 of the 33 men who have been Presidents have worn whiskers. This foliage has varied in whisker content from the full, shaggy dog beard on James Abram Garfield to Taft droopy handlebars.



Taft Dewey

Dewey would be the first to come up with the small, well-trimmed, bristle-brush type mustache.

The Edson Mustache Surveying Corp., organized today for this very purpose, supplies this additional information:

The first President to go in for a beard was a Republican, Abraham Lincoln, the first GOP President. He started something.

For though his immediate successor, the unfortunate Andrew Johnson, was beardless, the next six men to hold the job came up with a splendiferous whisker crop.

Look at the list:

Ulysses Simpson Grant (short beard, but thick), Rutherford Birchard Hayes (white, straggly), Garfield (see above), Chester Alan Arthur (sideburns, very beautiful), Grover Cleveland (well-fed mustache) and Benjamin Harrison (well trimmed as a hedge, which it resembled).

William McKinley broke the monotony, but Theodore Roosevelt and Taft wore mustaches. So did two recent vice presidents, Thomas Marshall and Charles Curtis.

But fashions, and mustache trends, change. The last six Presidents, like the first 15, have been shaven.

Will the mustache come back? Will Dewey set a new style?

See this paper November 3 for what may be a start on the answer.

Armed Forces Face Income Taxes Now

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Members of the armed forces can look forward to what amounts to a pay cut next year.

For while raising the compensation of Federal civil employes, Congress failed to approve an extension of the $1500 military service income tax exemption.

Unless a special session is called and legislation continuing the exemption is approved, hundreds of thousands of enlisted men—heretofore exempt—will become subject to tax on January 1, 1949.

Income Tax Estimated

Officials of the armed forces estimate that enlisted men will have to pay a minimum income tax of $80 a year. Officers, who also will lose the $1500 exemption on December 31, 1948, will pay an estimated $25 more a month in taxes at least, or a minimum of $300 a year loss, it is said.

It is estimated that service men will pay in about 247 millions in increased taxes—four-fifths of which will be levied on men in the ranks.

Strong efforts were made to continue the exemption, but to no avail. One section of House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Knutson's tax reduction bill would have taken care of the situation, but the measure did not pass. Representative Herman P. Eberharter (D., Pa.) introduced a special bill for the purpose, but Knutson blocked it. Eberharter tried to amend the draft act to continue the exemption, but was ruled out on a point of order.

New Training Procedures

Officials are hopeful the next Congress will either pass a pay increase bill for the armed forces or restore the tax income retroactively.

Meanwhile, Army and Selective Service officials worked on plans for inducting men this fall into the military service. Gen. Jacob Devers, chief of the Army field forces, said that draftees will receive the same training as volunteers.

New training procedures developed at the Fort Knox, Ky., universal military training experimental camp will be applied to the expanded Army, Devers said. This features "student-instructor" relationship rather than the old "driving methods of hard-boiled non-coms."

"All training must stress that every soldier, regardless of assignment," he declared, "has as his primary duty the obligation to fight."

Yugoslav Delegate Attends Warsaw Meeting . . .

BEHIND THE IRON CURTAIN—Meeting in the Polish Foreign Minister's apartment in Warsaw, the Foreign Ministers of Communist-dominated eastern European countries got together last week to draft a reply to the London Conference on consolidation of western Germany. They are (from left) Vassil Kolarov of Bulgaria; Erik Molnar of Hungary; V. M. Molotov of Russia; Zygmunt Modzelewski of Poland; Ana Pauker of Romania; Vlado Clementis of Czechoslovakia and Stanoje Simic of Yugoslavia. but the Russians are demanding scarce commodities instead.

Smith's note was in effect an acknowledgement that Hodge's efforts to bring about a resumption of power were being pointedly ignored by the Soviets.

He recalled that Hodge on several occasions had appealed to the Russian commander in northern Korea for action.

Smith said Hodge has offered the Soviet commander two alternatives for payment of the power, both of which were laid down in an agreement signed by the military commanders last year.

U. S. May Unblock Yugoslav Assets

A report circulated in Washington last night that the Government is about to unblock more than 50 million dollars in Yugoslav assets frozen in this country since 1941.

The funds were frozen to keep them out of Axis hands.

Neither the State Department, which handles the negotiations, nor the Treasury, which has charge of the assets, would confirm the report. It was pointed out, however, that negotiations over the cash have been under way for some time, while the Communist disagreement apparently is rather new.

Yugoslavia as host," presumably to Yugoslav officials.

2. That "friends and relatives" of wartime puppet Premier Gen. Milan Nedic, who killed himself by leaping from a prison cell, "easily find good positions in the state and party apparatus in Yugoslavia."

3. That Yugoslavia boasted unduly of its role in the war as compared to those of other eastern European countries.

4. That Tito would never have attained power had not Red Army men rescued him after a German parachutist attack on his headquarters.

Russian Press Criticized

The Yugoslav Party accused the Russian press of failing to publish reports of successes in the economic reconstruction of the country.

Explaining its refusal to attend the recent conference of Cominform countries in Romania, the statement said that the letter of invitation to Yugoslavia "was not written in a comradely spirit."

The letter, it was asesrted, contained "rough and untrue accusations," was "one-sided" and did not fit in with the actual situation.

The situation appeared to be one in which Tito openly broke with the Cominform, which read him out of that organization, but at the same time emphasized his loyalty to the Russian government and the Communist front of governments in eastern Europe.

Soviet-Slav Alliance Not Expected to End

Moscow, June 29 (AP).—Russian and Yugoslav Communists here expressed the opinion today that the Yugoslav-Russian alliance was not ended by the Cominform attack on Yugoslavia's Communist leaders.

But Yugoslavia's substantial official mission here and the large number of Yugoslav students attending Soviet institutions were surprised. Among Russians there was extreme interest. When the full text of the Cominform statement was broadcast, Russians were observed listening intently in hotels and other public places where there are loudspeakers.

One Russian remarked: "Tito obviously got illustions of grandeur."

U. S., Britain Differ on Uniting Trust Territories to Colonies

Lake Success, June 29 (AP).—The United States differed with Britain today over the question of forming administrative unions between trust territories and colonies.

The issue was raised in the United Nations trusteeship council in connection with Britain's annual report on Tanganyika, which is administered under the U. N. trusteeship system.

Britain has indicated she plans to form a customs union between Tanganyika and other East African territories under her jurisdiction. U. S. Delegate Francis B. Sayre admitted the administering powers had the right to form administrative and customs unions involving trust territories, but said it would be a courtesy to the council if it were informed in advance.

He assured the council the United States, as administrator of the former Japanese-mandated islands in the Pacific, was ready to notify the U. N. before taking any action to include the islands in a union or federation with any non-trust territories.

British Delegate Sir Alan Burns said even if the United States was ready to do this, Britain would not consider herself bound in any way to adopt such a course.

Australia and Belgium, two other administering powers, indicated they agreed with Britain.

change, balance its governmental budget, create or maintain internal financial stability and generally restore or maintain confidence in its monetary system."

English Program Outlined

If the recovery program runs its full authorized course of four years, England will receive ECA grants and loans of between four billion and five billion dollars. The British promises apply through June, 1953—one year longer than the Marshall Plan—to allow an extra year for completion of U. S.-financed recovery projects.

ECA is paying the subsidy on parcel post relief shipments, under terms of the Foreign Assistance Act. It applies on shipments to Austria, Belgium, Luxembourg, China, France, Greece, Italy, the Netherlands, England and Trieste, as well as Trizone Western Germany.

The present rate to most of those countries is 14 cents a pound. The rate to China is 22 cents, and to Luxembourg 26. Parcel post to Greece, Germany and Austria is on a sliding scale, with rates increasingly sharply after the first 1 or 2 pounds.

Regulations governing the use of the reduced rate will be available at every postoffice, according to the joint announcement by ECA Administrator Paul G. Hoffman and Postmaster General Jesse M. Donaldson.

Contents are limited to "nonperishable food, clothing and clothes-making materials, shoes and shoe-making materials, mailable medical and health supplies, and household supplies and utensils."

The official statement noted that relief packages stockpiled in Europe by CARE, Government-approved, nonprofit organization, while not affected by the rate reduction, "still represent one of the most practical and economical methods of sending relief packages to Europe." CARE's packages are duty-free in all countries in which the agency operates.

Truman Advised To Step Aside in 'Winning Ticket'

By The Associated Press

The Alexandria Gazette will suggest to President Truman today that he "step aside for a winning Democratic ticket" in the November election.

An editorial by Editor and Publisher C. C. Carlin, jr., in America's oldest Democratic newspaper is entitled "It's Up to You, Mr. President." It says:

"We do not know who the President relies on for his political advice, but we venture the guess he cannot find a half dozen Democratic Senators who will honestly tell him they believe he can be reelected next November. We are not confining this conviction to Southern Senators either. If he will honestly face the unpleasant facts and lay the cards on the table with these same Democratic Senators, we believe nearly all of them will tell him they believe it is still possible to select a Democratic ticket, with his cooperation and consent, which can and will win in November.

"The big question for a big man seems to be, 'Do you want a Republican in the White House for the next eight or 12 years, or will you step aside for a winning Democratic ticket?' The answer is squarely up to you, Mr. President."

conduct limited aerial maneuvers, it was said.

Lieut. Col. David C. Shilling, commander of the Fifty-sixth Fighter Group and an outstanding ace of World War II, is in command of the flight.

Transfer of 75 Slated

The flight will precede by a month the permanent transfer of 75 F-80s of its Thirty-sixth Fighter Group to Germany. They, however, will be ferried from Panama to Glasgow, Scotland, aboard the Navy's escort carrier Sicily.

Meanwhile, Paul H. Wilkinson, editor of Aircraft Engines of the World, said the piston and jet engines that power Russian airplanes are five years behind those of America and Britain.

The 1948 edition of the authoritative book says Russia's jet engines are mostly copies of captured German models, and it gives complete details and illustrations.

Wilkinson, a consulting engineer and member of the Institute of the Aeronautical Sciences, says that Russia's piston engines, which power nearly all the Red Air Force, are as far behind those of American and Britain as her jets.

He says the United States still is "slightly behind" Britain in jet engine development.

Judge Restrains VA in Tightening School Controls

Justice T. Alan Goldsborough signed a court order yesterday preventing the Veterns' Administration from putting into effect a recent order designed to tighten control over vocational schools training students under the GI bill of rights.

The temporary restraining order was issued by the District Court jurist in behalf of the Metropolitan Training Center, Inc., of New York, which trains men in watch repairing and yewelry engraving.

The VA order compels schools recently organized or those which have increased their tuition fees to submit detailed financial reports and submit to other controls.

Handwriting Gets Suspect Held in Larceny of Auto

Judge Walter J. Casey played handwriting expert in a case yesterday and as a result, Daniel S. McKee, 30, of 2313 I st. nw., was held for the District grand jury under $1000 bond on a grand larceny charge.

McKee was charged with stealing a dismantled automobile from a lot. He said he bought the car from a stranger and presented a receipt.

Could it possibly be, the prosecutor suggested, that the defendant had composed the receipt? The defense attorney scoffed at this and told McKee to give the court a specimen of his handwriting. McKee did so.

Judge Casey looked at it, sat upright and said:

"This writing bears a startling resemblance to that on the receipt. I'm going to hold this man."

Highway Aid Bill Signed by Truman

President Truman yesterday signed a bill authorizing a two-year 900-million-dollar Federal aid highway program.

The measure allows the expenditure of 450 million dollars a year for each of the two years following July 1, 1949. Funds appropriated and allocated under the act must be matched by States.

Three Girls Sought in Slaying

rushed by. "Why did we come here, anyway?"

Another warned they had better hurry and catch a bus. Police believe the girls boarded a bus at 16th and Decatur sts. nw. Capital Transit bus drivers on the line are being questioned to determine if they remember the three.

Barrett Spurs Force

In a directive to all members of the force, Barrett urged them to "exhaust every angle" for possible information in the Bardwell killing. He urged them to concentrate their efforts, while on duty or off duty, toward a solution of the case.

He promised to use all the powers of his office to obtain appropriate recognition for any member of the force developing information which solves or helps solve the slaying.

Barrett also said that if any uniformed member of the force has information he believes he can develop in plain clothes he will be assigned to plain clothes duty.

Meanwhile, police yesterday released a 41-year-old handyman after holding him for almost 24 hours.

But other suspects continued to arrive at police headquarters. Working together, park police and members of the detective bureau's sex squad were combing the city for known sex offenders and taking them in for questioning.

The girl was not raped, according to Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald. Dr. MacDonald said he expects a report today on laboratory tests of the victim's body.

Although police are virtually without leads, they believe they have a fairly accurate timetable for the murder.

Carol, daughter of William P. Bardwell, a Federal Trade Commission investigator, left her home, at 1635 Webster st. nw., at about 4:15 p. m. Sunday.

She was headed for a playground area about six blocks from her home and apparently took a shortcut through the wooded section over an old road which led into a bridle path which would have taken her to the playground area. She had left home on her bicycle.

Carol's body was discovered in the underbrush under a tree at about 7:50 p. m. and Dr. MacDonald made an examination at about 8:30 p. m. He estimated the girl had been dead for about four hours, which would place the time of death at approximately 4:30 p. m.

So death met Carol swiftly after she left her home. One slash of a thin blade severed her jugular vein but not her windpipe. She probably died within several minutes of the attack, Dr. MacDonald said.

Bicycle Found Nearby

Carol's bicycle was found about 25 feet from her body. It, too, had been tumbled off the path into the underbrush. Police yesterday were examining the bicycle for fingerprints. FBI laboratory technicians were studying the girl's clothes for possible clews.

No trace of the death weapon has been found, although police have searched painstakingly in the vicinity of the slaying. Police even called upon the Army to furnish land-mine detectors without success.

Knives and other keen-edged weapons found on all persons arrested are being studied by detectives as the possible murder weapon.

One such weapon, a hunting knife with a 6-inch blade, was turned over to detectives by the Third Precinct after the arrest of a 15-year-old boy who had threatened a man with the knife Monday night in the 2500 block of K st. nw. The boy was released in the custody of his parents pending action by juvenile authorities.

Requiem Mass Thursday

Police learned yesterday that a lifelong friend of Carol, Loretta Blade, 14, of 4417 17th st. nw., called to Carol Sunday afternoon as she rode by on her bicycle.

Carol rode on, apparently not hearing her friend. Had she heard the call, she might be alive today.

A requiem mass for Carol will be said Thursday at 9 a. m. at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, 16th st. and Park rd. nw., the church attended by the Bardwell family. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

Newell Hits High Court On Covenants

Clifford Newell, past president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, accused the Supreme Court last night of "listening to a small minority" of United States citizens in handing down the decision which declared racial covenants unenforceable.

As a result, Newell said, "we have had to find a way that the Supreme Court cannot take jurisdiction over our actions." Such a way, he declared, is the "option" plan devised by himself and other lawyers to give home and property owners control over who may move into their communities.

Newell, speaking at a meeting of the Greater Woodridge Land Covenant Alliance at 2004 Rhode Island ave. ne., declared the plan "cannot be attacked" because it makes "no mention of race, creed or color."

It calls for designation of a "block captain" for each block by an "authoritative organization" (a citizens' association) who would take an option on all properties in his square. When a homeowner decides to sell, the option gives the captain 30 days to investigate prospective buyers.

Newell urged all citizens who "want to take care of their properties" to participate in the plan.

W. B. Duke, Jr., Heads St. Mary's P-TA

Lexington Park, Md., June 29 (Spl.).—W. Bernard Duke, jr., of Valley Lee has been elected president of the St. Marys County Council of Parents and Teachers, it was announced yesterday.

Other officers elected were: Calvin Kirby, vice president; W. C. Gleiter, secretary-treasurer; James McDonaugh and Dale Cropper, executive committee members.

Virginia Now Provides 'Teeth' For Its Auto Inspection Law

Virginia's 16-year-old automobile inspection law became a "law with teeth" for the first time yesterday.

A new statute, effective at 12:01 a. m., gives police the power to prosecute for theft "or other improper use" of stickers which go on windshields to identify inspected automobiles.

Conviction under the new law passed by the Virginia General Assembly last April carries a $5 to $300 fine. A number of sticker thefts have been reported, some in Alexandria recently.

Heretofore, officers have been powerless to prosecute for theft of the stickers, their only recourse being to try to convict the suspected drivers for failure to comply with inspection requirements.

Jap General to Hang For 'Death March'

Tokyo, June 29 (U.P.).—A former Japanese general and a colonel today were sentenced to hang for the deaths of thousands of American and Filipino prisoners on the Bataan "death march."

A United States Eighth Army court found Maj. Gen. Yoshitaka Kawane and Col. Kurataro Hirano responsible for the deaths of an estimated 10,000 Americans and Filipinos who died on the march after the fall of Bataan, and 1548 Americans and uncounted thousands of Filipinos who died later at Camp O'Donnell in central Luzon.

Election of Plaza Virtually Assured

Quito, Ecuador, June 29 (AP).—The election of Galo Plaza, American-educated farmer and diplomat, as President of Ecuador, was virtually assured today.

The supreme electoral tribunal, with only one dissenting vote, decided to revalidate all of the ballots it had voided previously on minor technical grounds. Most of these ballots favored Plaza, who has been leading Conservative Candidate Manuel Elicio Flor, by more than 8000 votes on the basis of the latest checked returns from the June 6 election.

2 Apartment Plans Filed in Montgomery

Erection of a $1,500,000, 140-unit apartment house, at Piney Branch and Old Bladensburg rds., Takoma Park, was proposed yesterday in a zoning petition heard by the Montgomery County commissioner.

The applicant was Roy R. Hunt, owner of the property, who requested rezoning from Residential A to C. There was no opposition.

In another apartment rezoning request, Katherine E. Lord and Catherine T. Vance requested reclassification of a tract at Forest Glen Road and Seminary Road from Residential A to C. Attorney John R. Reeves said a 100-unit apartment hotel which would include nine stores and cost an estimated one million dollars is planned. About 12 residents of the area opposed the request.

The two petitions were among seven on which the commissioners deferred action.

Burial Today For 4 Area Servicemen

Four Washington area servicemen will be reburied at 2 p. m. today at Arlington Cemetery and a fifth on Friday.

Those to be reinterred today are:

Aviation Machinist's Mate 2d Class David P. Spahn, son of David Spahn, 123 Wayne pl. se.; Seaman 1st Class William P. Sommers, son of James J. Sommers, Greenbelt, Md.; Pfc. Earl N. Tutt, son of L. G. Tutt, 503 High st., Alexandria; Pvt. Alfred Edmon Clarke, husband of Mrs. Marjorie W. Clarke of 2709 Hartford st. se.

Clarke AMM2/C Spahn

Second Lieut. C. Douglas Reeve, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Reeve of Lorton, Va., will be reburied at 2 p. m. Friday.

Native of Washington

Spahn, 21 at the time of his death in March 1946, on Japan, was a native of Washington. He attended Massanutten Military School in Woodstock, Va., and served in the Navy four years. Surviving, in addition to his father, is a step-brother, Jesse Hale Holmes of Washington.

Sommers, 20, died early in 1944 while serving with a Marine division. He enlisted in the Navy in October 1942, and was later transferred to the Seabees. A native of Reading, Pa., he attended George Washington High School and was graduated from Greenbelt High School in 1942.

Three brothers survive, in addition to his parents—James, 26, Robert, 24, and Richard, 22.

Tutt, 20, was killed on Luzon January 27, 1945, while serving with an infantry division. A graduate of George Washington High School, he worked for a Safeway store before entering the service in February 1943. He fought in the New Britain campaign. The brothers also survive, Billy, 30, a former Marine, and Garry, 32, an Army amputee, both of Alexandria.

Killed in New Guinea

Clarke, a private in the Army Air Forces, was killed in New Guinea in March 1944. A native of Arlington, he attended Western High School two years before transferring to Uniontown High in Uniontown, Pa. He leaves two children in addition to his wife—Gay Ellen and Henry Wilson.

Reeve was graduated from Lee-Jackson High School and attended Strayer's Business College. He was manager of the personnel office at the Washington Gas Light Co. before entering service.

Born in September 1918, he was killed in Dutch New Guinea in October 1944. He was a bomber pilot. His parents survive.

U. S. Consul, Delayed By Reds, Now on Job

After a Russian-imposed delay of weeks, the United States has a new consul on the job at Dairen, Manchuria.

State Department officials said yesterday the consul, Paul E. Paddock, reported he arrived in the Soviet-occupied port city on June 18.

Paddock relieved Vice Consul Isaac Patch. The State Department was notified yesterday that Patch, his wife and two children arrived in Vladivostok on the same Russian ship which took Paddock to Dairen. Paddock was kept waiting for weeks at Shanghai for a Russian visa until American officials started to charter a merchant ship to take him to Dairen.

U. S. to Train 70,000 for Air Reserve

Air Force plans call for training 70,000 reservists this fiscal year—almost triple last year's total, Assistant Secretary of the Air Force Cornelius V. Whitney said last night.

Addressing Air Reserve officers from the District area in the Interior Department auditorium, Whitney said some 35,000 reservists will undergo active duty training with 2000 aircraft

Appropriations for the Air Force Reserve the past two years "fell far short of the moneys needed," he said, noting the 1949 fiscal year sum is 73 million, 33 million more than the expiring fiscal year. Whitney indorsed proposed merger of Air Reserve and Air Force associations.

First Plane to Run Food to Berlin Flying Atlantic

Westover Field, Mass., June 29 (U.P.).—The first of 39 United States Air Force C-54 planes that will attempt to break the food blockade around Berlin left Westover Field today on the first leg of its transAtlantic flight.

The Skymaster, its crew briefed and rested after its trip from Bergstrom air force base at Austin, Tex., headed northeast for Newfoundland where they will cut across the Atlantic to the Azores before proceeding to Frankfurt.

Three other planes were "on the line" and loaded with cargo for the takeoff and Westover Field officials expected five more to arrive before midnight.

Buchanan Firing Before Guild

San Francisco, June 29 (AP).—A spokesman for the American Newspaper Guild (CIO) said tonight its current national convention would consider the dismissal of a Washington reporter who admitted Communist party membership.

"The matter has been presented to the resolutions committee," said Executive Vice President Sam Eubanks. "It will be brought to the convention floor within the next few days."

The reporter, Thomas G. Buchanan, jr., was discharged from the Washington Star March 24. The Guild's Washington local voted 251 to 163 against making an issue of the case. The majority decided Communist membership was proper cause for dismissal, thus no breach of the Guild contract was involved.

There was no indication of the attitude of the convention delegations generally regarding the case.

A general session during the afternoon set a goal of 500 additional CARE packages for European newspaper employes. The Guild reported more than 400 such packages already have been shipped to journalists in Austria, Germany, Finland and Greece.

Air Parcel Post Bill Signed by President

President Truman yesterday signed into law a bill providing for air parcel post service in the United States and possessions.

The new type air mail goes into effect September 1. All mailable matter weighing not less than 8 ounces and not more than 70 pounds will be acceptable as air parcel post. Such service is now limited to certain foreign points.

Arak Reported Cool To Bernadotte Plan

Cairo, June 29 (AP).—A reliable Arab source tonight said Count Folke Bernadotte's proposals for a Palestine settlement "imply the existence of a Jewish state which the Arabs could never accept."

This informant said the proposals are in the form of alternative suggestions but they all imply the existence of a Jewish state.

[The United Press reported it had been informed a federal state is proposed, with the Jewish section to be under United Nations trusteeship.]

The proposals were submitted to Arabs and Jews yesterday. The Arab League political committee met briefly today to consider the proposals and then adjourned, pending the arrival of Lebanese and Iraqi delegates.

A high Arab official indicated today the Arab states will not react favorably to a request for an extension of the Palestine truce.

The Arabs "will resume the war while pursuing peace talks" if the negotiations through the U. N. mediator are not concluded by the end of the truce, now in its third week, the informant said.

Tel Aviv dispatches said the U. N. mission there had been advised the Egyptians had agreed to pass U. N.-approved Jewish convoys to Hebrew settlements in the southern desert.

Prime Minister Gamil Mardem Bey of Syria said here meanwhile that his government is unsure whether a warship that allegedly shelled Arab positions along the Palestine coast last Friday was American.

Muhsen el Barazi, Syrian Interior Minister, said earlier that Syrian planes sent out to find the vessel spotted it flying American and United Nations flags.

Earlier, the secretary general of the Arab League said the U. S. naval attache had submitted proof that an American warship could not have shelled the Arab positions.

Half-Blind Widow Describes Sex Attack in Rockville Trial

The dramatic case in which a 72-year-old, partially blind widow testified she was ravished by a Takoma Park (Md.) garbage collector was still being argued in Montgomery County Circuit Court early today.

Charged with rape and facing a possible death penalty is Joseph "Dupe" Rose, 54, who was arrested on basis of a description supplied by the elderly woman on basis of her sense of touch.

The jury listened to more than 12 hours of testimony, including the testimony of the woman herself. Last midnight attorneys for the State and the accused were presenting their closing arguments before the jury received the case.

An all-male jury and a crowded courtroom listened intently as the white-haired widow, after being assisted to the witness box, answered questions for almost two hours in a quavering voice.

"I thought my life was at stake," she said, as she described the "horror and torture" of her experience and how, though only semiconscious, she managed to feel her attacker so she could furnish an accurate description.

She described the man who "lunged" at her on the back porch of her home where she lived alone at about 11:30 p. m.

When police confronted her with Ross the next day, she told them: "This is the man."

The trial was late in getting under way because defense attorneys challenged 19 prospective jurors and the court was forced to bring in jurors from the street. It was further delayed by frequent objections from the three defense lawyers. One of the three, Leon A. Ransom, was retained by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Over the strenuous objections of defense lawyers a statement containing a confession by Ross was read to the jury. An illiterate, Ross admitted placing his mark on the statement but said "I didn't know what I was signing."

A key witness was Robert E. Duckett, a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation who is assigned to the FBI laboratory. The expert said hair and fiber samples taken from clothing worn by Ross at the time of his arrest "matched exactly" similar samples given him which, police said, were obtained from the widow's bed where the crime was committed.

During the day and night session, 15 witnesses for the State were questioned by State's Attorney Walter W. Dawson who prosecuted the case. As many more witnesses were promised by the defense. One of the State's was Dr. George Preston, State commissioner of mental hygiene, who testified that his examination of Ross showed the defendant to be "feeble-minded." He added his belief that Ross knew the difference between right and wrong and "should have appreciated the possible consequences of his act."

Rebels Cut Main Greek Supply Link

Athens, June 29 (AP).—A press dispatch tonight said two guerilla brigades had severed one of the Greek army's main supply links.

American construction men working on the road were forced to flee.

The attack severed all communications between Athens and Ioannina except by way of the Island of Corfu, the dispatch said.

The dispatch, flown to the newspaper Embros from the fighting zone, said the Communist-led guerillas cut the road between Ioannina and Preveza. They have been attempting to slash this road for nearly three weeks.

The road is the main supply link for three divisions: the Ninth fighting northeast and east of Konitsa, the Eighth protecting Ioannina to the north and east and the Tenth situated somewhere east of Ioannina.

Heavy fighting is under way 11 miles south of Ioannina, the dispatch said.

The guerillas attacked the supply artery this morning, cutting telegraph lines and destroying and mining sections of the road.

Meanwhile, few reports filtered through from the Grammos area operations, but it was known the army is making slow progress in squeezing a ring on some 7000 guerillas.

Earlier, it was announced Greek troops had captured Prophet Elias Height southwest of guerilla-defended Amouda Ridge in the Grammos area.

Dock Workers Vote to End London Strike

London, June 29 (AP).—London dock workers voted today to end their wildcat unauthorized strike after Prime Minister Attlee's labor government received emergency powers to cope with the situation.

The workers, who have been out 16 days, decided to return to the wharves Wednesday. Some strikers already have gone back to work in London and in the Liverpool-Birkenhead area. More than 30,000 men were idle in the two regions yesterday.

Informed government sources said emergency regulations may not be put into force now in view of the back-to-work movement. A state of emergency was declared by King George VI last night at the request of the cabinet.

About 2000 soldiers moved into London's dock area today to unload vital supplies. The strike had tied up 232 food and commodity ships.

Attlee, who blamed "Communist mischief" as one of the causes of the strike, broadcast an appeal to the strikers last night to return to their jobs.

The strike began when 11 men were penalized for refusing to handle a cargo of zinc oxide without extra pay.

cedures heretofore placed in the Office of Education.

"I cannot look with complacency upon rapidly developing trends to subject the professional bureau that is the Office of Education to increasing controls on the part of numerous persons planted in the structural organization at levels between the commissioner of education and the administrator of the Federal Security Agency, to whom the commissioner is supposedly directly accountable."

Dr. Norton is visiting his mother, Mrs. E. B. Norton, in Birmingham.

Rumors of other impending changes in FSA were still unconfirmed last night. Arthur J. Altmeyer, who reportedly was considering quitting as Social Security administrator, declared the rumors, "like Mark Twain's death is greatly exaggerated."

"The time has come when I can no longer afford to remain in the Federal Government," Studebaker wrote President Truman.

In accepting Studebaker's resignation, effective July 15, Mr. Truman wrote that "I can fully understand the situation."

Studebaker later announced he will become vice president and chairman of the editorial board of Scholastic Magazines. Norton, whose resignation becomes effective July 1, will become executive secretary of the Council of Chief State School Officers on July 15, with offices at the National Education Association. The council is made up of State school officers of all 48 States.

East Clashes With West at Jewish Assembly

Montreux, Switzerland, June 29 (U.P.).—The first clash between sympathizers of the eastern and western blocks today brought 20 minutes of pandemonium on the third day of the World Jewish Congress assembly here.

The uproar came when S. Levenberg, a British delegate, criticized a speech by Dr. Moshe Sneh, a former member of the Jewish Agency and an outspokes leftist, in which the Soviet Union was praised and British and American "imperialists" were attacked.

Levenberg's remark, "Are we to understand that the congress is to be made a tool of the Soviet Union?" started a verbal battle which lasted until the remark was withdrawn.

up," he said. "Some of the roads were covered by landslides.

"In Fukui city, families stood in the streets beside piles of their household goods—bedding and clothes they had salvaged. Everyone seemed to be in the streets, with nowhere to go."

Click said he saw a 10-mile strip of railway north of Fukui "completely demolished." The ground was opened up in spots, he said, and sections of the track had fallen in, leaving twisted rails on the track and in rice paddies along the roadbed. National police headquarters estimated 90 miles of railroad had been destroyed.

Some fires still were burning today in Fukui, although major ones had been brought under control. Earlier today, some blazes were visible for 30 miles.

In addition to Fukui and Ishikawa, the temblor struck Gifu, Shiga and Miye prefectures. The five have a total population of 3,220,000 persons.

Lieut. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger, Eighth Army commander, announced that no United States occupation personnel were injured. Sixty-one Americans in Fukui were evacuated safely, although many lost all their belongings in fires.

Eichelberger called on the Japanese people to show unity and courage. He promised continuing aid and sympathy from United States occupation forces.

The series of four quakes began yesterday at 5:14 p. m. (3:14 a. m. EDT), when most Japanese were preparing their evening meal. The shocks tipped over thousands of charcoal stoves, causing fires. Nine tidal waves battered the coast of Honshu Island, along the Sea of Japan.

Tokyo observatory seismologists said the shocks apparently were caused by a subterranean landslide, rather than by a volcanic eruption.

Benes' Brother Afraid to Talk

New York, June 29 (AP).—John Anton Benes, brother of Czechoslovakia's resigned President Eduard Benes, said today on his arrival in this country, "I'm afraid to talk."

Benes, who arrived on the liner Queen Elizabeth, told reporters: "My brother told me two weeks ago to go home and I cannot tell you why."

Benes said the resigned president is living in a villa about 60 miles from Prague, under guard. Czechs go to the villa every night to sing and salute Benes, his brother said, to the annoyance of guards.

John Benes said that two weeks ago the resigned president told him that he was being watched by two soldiers and that it was time for him to leave the country.

2 Groups Quit KKK; Called 'Bolsheviks'

Atlanta, June 29 (AP).—A rift appeared in the Invisible Empire of the Ku Klux Klan in Georgia today when two large Klaverns pulled out to form the "Original Southern Klans, Inc."

The new organization was granted a charter in Muscogee County (Columbus) with Alton E. Pate, a 23-year-old war veteran named as "Grand Wizard."

Dr. Samuel Green, Grand Dragon of the Georgia Klans, brushed off the revolt as an uprising by "Bolshevik Klans which pulled out because they couldn't run things themselves."

Eisenhower Certain to Accept If Drafted, Henderson Believes

Leon Henderson, chairman of Americans for Democratic Action, said yesterday that President Truman's strength as a candidate is fading and that "if Eisenhower is drafted, he could not do otherwise than accept."

Henderson

The former OPA chief speaking at a press conference in the Statler put the total number of delegates pledged to Mr. Truman at 310 of a 1234 total. Of this 310, he said, approximately 90 would switch allegiance "in a showdown."

He said he "guessed" General Eisenhower would be put up for nomination at the Democratic Convention next month and that he felt there was no doubt that the general could defeat the Dewey-Warren ticket.

Wants Open Convention

"We have been eager beavers for an open convention," Henderson said. "We are convinced Truman doesn't have the convention tied up."

He said that he understood Mr. Truman had been advised by close friends that he can't win and that if he runs he will be "charged with the disintegration of the Democratic Party."

An analysis of delegations to the national convention made by the ADA gave the following figures: Pledged for Mr. Truman, 310; uninstructed delegations already selected, 816½; other pledges, 81½. Virginia Democrats have not yet selected their 26 delegates.

Figures Challenged

(The Associated Press reported that pro-Truman forces challenged these figures declaring the President's pledged and otherwise "favorable" votes now total 846, or more than 200 over the required majority.)

Henderson said he was convinced that Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court would also be proposed as nominee at the national convention. He estimated that Douglas would "have a tougher time" winning than would Eisenhower.

In answer to a half-serious query, Henderson said that he, himself, would be happy to accept a vice presidential nomination with Mr. Truman as a running mate, even though he doubted that he would be elected.

There will be 110 ADA members among the national convention delegates, Henderson said.

Condition of Boy, Accidentally Shot, Still Critical

Three-year-old James Kurtz, accidently shot by a playmate in Arlington Monday, remained in critical condition yesterday at Arlington Hospital.

According to his physician, Dr. Donald Mitchell, the .32 bullet which struck the child touched the main artery of his left leg, causing severe loss of blood.

The accidental shooting occurred at 1029 N. Vermont st., Arlington, when a playmate, Danny Harris of 1021 N. Vermont st. pulled the trigger on a loaded .32 pistol he found on a closet shelf.

AFL Official Surrenders On Deportation Warrant

New York, June 29 (AP).—Arduilio Susi, secretary-treasurer of Local 89, AFL Chefs, Cooks and Assistants Union, surrendered to immigration service officials today on a deportation warrant.

W. Frank Watkins, district director of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, said the warrant charged Susi with being an alien affiliated with an organization advocating overthrow of the U. S. Government by force.

Council Wants Name Taken Off Clark List

The National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, Inc., asked District Court yesterday to force Attorney General Tom C. Clark to remove the council's name from the "subversive" list.

Lamont

The council in its injunction suit also asked that the President's Loyalty Review Board be declared unconstitutional and that the court find that the board has exceeded and improperly used its powers.

The suit urged that the board "release publicly a statement that the name of the national council has been withdrawn "from the subversive list."

The council described itself as a nonprofit corporation designed to help strengthen friendly relations between this Nation and Russia and to combat anti-Soviet propaganda which might disrupt friendly relations between the two nations."

The suit said the council has provided no basis for any such designation as "totalitarian, Fascist, Communist or subversive."

U. S. Relieving Member Of Indonesian Probe

Coert Dubois is being relieved of his duties as American member of the United Nations Committee on the Dutch-Indonesian dispute. He will return to the United States for medical treatment.

The State Department announced this yesterday, saying: "Mr. Dubois has been taken ill and under doctor's orders is returning."

Dubois has been criticized in the past by Netherlands officials who have accused him of sometimes following a pro-Indonesian line.

State Department officials said this criticism is not in any way the cause of his being relieved.

3 Show Up At Wallace Plank Session

The D. C. Committee for Wallace called a meeting yesterday afternoon at 1722 Connecticut ave. nw., to hear suggestions for platform planks.

Three persons showed up.

The night session, conducted by the platform subcommittee, was better attended.

Nine persons put in an appearance.

Included among the suggestions were: that European relief should be placed under supervision of the United Nations; disarmament of all nations, without exception; efforts to iron out differences with Russia; civil rights program, veterans' bonus; end to "thought control" of Government workers; repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act and reenactment of the National Labor Relations Act and support of the state of Isreal.

The suggestions will be scanned by the full platform committee, said Subcommittee Chairman Joseph Forer, and the best of them will be formally offered to national leaders.

The local Wallace group will hold a "founding convention" at Hotel 2400 July 10. Officers will be selected and delegates chosen to attend the national convention in Philadelphia July 24-25.

Final Pleas On Bus Route Heard by PSC

Baltimore, June 29 (AP).—The Public Service Commission today took under advisement the rival applications of the Baltimore and Annapolis Railroad and the Red Star Motor Coaches, Inc., for an exclusive bus franchise between Baltimore and Annapolis.

Attorneys for the two companies were given a week in which to submit briefs for the consideration of the commission. A decision can be expected in about three weeks, according to Commissioner Arthur H. Brice.

The commission today heard final arguments from attorneys of the contesting firms and two intervenors in the case.

George Cochran Doub argued that the commission should grant the B&A's petition because:

1. If the franchise were granted to a competitor, the effect would be disastrous to the B&A.

2. "Every substantial business interest in Anne Arundel County indorses the B&A petition."

3. A survey taken by B & A trainmen showed that over 5000 train riders wanted the railroad service continued and the B & A's petition for supplementary bus service granted.

William J. McWilliams and Seymour O'Brien, attorneys for Red Star, maintained that the B & A's plan to supply a bus service suplementary to its rail service was "economically unsound" because the cost of running a bus line and the loss in passenger revenue for the railroad would more than offset the revenue of the bus service.

They contended that the B & A's present local-type bus service, mainly between Baltimore and Glen Burnie, could support the rail freight service. But they cited figures that they said proved that if the B & A tried to run buses between Baltimore and Annapolis and keep its railroad operating, it would lose $11,000 a year.

Cooper to Take Worcester School Post

Resignation of Paul D. Cooper, supervisor of school construction for Prince Georges County, to become superintendent of schools in Worcester County, Md., was announced yesterday by G. Gardner Shugart, county schools superintendent.

Cooper will assume his new duties July 31 and probably will reside at Snow Hill or Ocean City. He now resides with his wife and three children at Sylvan Shores, Md.

Shugart announced Cooper will be replaced by Thomas S. Gwynn, jr., now principal of Oxon Hill High School. William S. Schmidt, director of instruction for the past two years, was promoted to assistant schools superintendent.

Resignation of Wilbur Hoopengardner, principal at Bladensburg junior high school supervisor for junior hig hschool supervisor for Washington County, also was announced.

Shugart also announced that a four-year scholarship, to Western Maryland College had been awarded Joan Montague, 2709 Cheverly ave., Cheverly, Md., a graduate this year of Bladensburg High.

Bids Will Be Sought Soon For Bethesda Medical Center

General of United States Public Health Service.

Still another will be a large chapel for hospital patients. The altar of this chapel, it was disclosed, will rest on a rotating platform divided into four sections for Catholic, Protestant, Nonsectarian and Jewish services.

Commodious as the 500-bed hospital will be, it will occupy but one third of the floor space of the Clinical Center, Dr. Scheele said. The remaining two thirds will be devoted to laboratories and other research facilities, basic and clinical, for the Nation's fight against diseases and ailments of mid and late life, Dr. Scheele explained.

'Best in World'

Patients from all parts of the country will be referred to the hospital by physicians, hospitals and other health agencies on the basis of problems under study, said the Federal Security Administrator.

Though such a program is "necessarily flexible," he said, it will probably follow a pattern of devoting about one fourth of the facilities to cancer patients, another fourth to heart patients, a fourth to mental illnesses, and the remaining quarter to general cases.

Special Services Planned

The Clinical Center will contain the usual features of a general hospital plus many special services designed for longterm patients. These will include medical and psychiatric social service, physical and occupational therapy and rehabilitation services.

One wing of the Clinical Center will be set aside for research and clinical adaptation of medical products of atomic energy, its planners said. These may include the linear accelerator, multi-million-volt machine for the production of healing rays, and other scientific devices, many still in planning stages.

Though all hospitals and medical schools in the Nation may have opportunity to participate and benefit in the project, Dr. Scheele said, "perhaps the greatest benefit" will fall to Washington's three medical schools, Georgetown, George Washington and Howard Universities, "mainly because of their proximity" to the new center.

Fall Over Sunken Tombstone Leads To $50,000 Suit

A woman yesterday filed suit in District Court for $50,000 damages because she fell over a sunken tombstone in the Rock Creek Cemetery and broke her neck.

She is Mrs. Anna S. Apple, 1663 Harvard st. nw. She said that she was at a burial in the cemetery October 2, 1947, when she stumbled, suffering fractured neck vertebrae and a broken femur. She named the Vestry of Rock Creek Parish as defendant.

Her husband, Carl B. Apple, asked $6547 for medical expenses and loss of his wife's services.

Dr. John Hubbard Gets Pediatrics Post

Dr. John P. Hubbard, 2500 Massachusetts ave. nw., has been named assistant professor of pediatrics at the University of Pennsylvania's school of medicine, it was announced yesterday. The appointment will become effective July 1.

Dr. Hubbard, a Philadelphian, simultaneously will direct a Nation-wide program of the American Academy of Pediatrics for the improvement of child health. He also will conduct a rheumatic fever teaching program throughout Pennsylvania under the auspices of the State health department.

Youth Is Held In Slaying of Carnival Man

A 17-year-old Forsyth, Ga., youth was being held for action of the Prince Georges County Juvenile Court last night in connection with the slaying of Marion T. Wilson, 32, Savannah, Ga., at a carnival.

The youth is alleged to have stabbed Wilson in an argument over a woman at the carnival grounds in Branchville, Md., where both were employed. Wilson died at Leland Memorial Hospital, his jugular vein, esophagus and thyroid pierced. Blood transfusions failed to save the man.

John M. Lupinskie, 38, of Glen Cove, N. Y., was charged with failing to give right of way when he refused, police say, to permit passage of an automobile bearing blood donors to the hospital. He was released on bond for hearing at a later date.

Thought School Was Over, 2 Motorists Get Off Light

School wasn't out quite soon enough this term for two motorists, who received tickets for parking in a "no parking from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m." zone near schools in Southwest Washington early last week.

Sympathetic policemen at the Fourth Precinct changed the tickets to warnings, however, for Frederick A. Motz, 5232 Massachusetts ave., and Robert E. Ward, jr., 3246 N. Abingdon st., Arlington, Va., after they explained they thought District schools had closed at the beginning of the week instead of on Wednesday.

The two men were among 109 motorists for whom traffic violation tickets were adjusted by police last week, as compared to 93 adjusted the week before.

Traffic tickets were canceled for five motorists because of diplomatic immunity. They were:

George M. Wharthon, State of Israel, standing in a no-standing zone; Constantino Caranicas of the United Nations, parked overtime; Walter James, Czechoslovak Embassy, parked in official space; Ramon Magsaysaay, Philippine Embassy, standing in a no-standing zone; Albert E. Watts, British Embassy, parked less than 10 feet from a fire plug.

Narbar C. Abhyankar, Fairfax Hotel, and Yee Chin Koo, 6684 32d st. nw., were warned on traffic violations because of diplomatic courtesy.

Rome Workers Hear Pope

Rome, June 29 (NYHT).—Pope Pius XII indicated today that he may call on the Catholic workers of Italy to split this country's Communist-dominated labor federation.

The Italian Labor Federation probably has been communism's strongest single weapon in Italy. More than half of its control is directly in Communist hands and another quarter of the power is possessed by Communist sympathizers. It is damaging European Recovery Program prospects in Italy by a chain of strikes which have involved several dozen types of factory, farm and office workers.

Pope Pius reminded 30,000 Catholic workers in a mass audience at the Vatican this evening that he had given only tentative approval to Catholic participation in the united labor movement when it was formed four years ago just after the Fascists were driven out of southern Italy. He indicated today that Catholic workers will split away from the Communist-controlled labor movement if its leaders insist on using strikes for political purposes and if they are determined to operate on a basis of class warfare.

The Pope delivered one of the sharpest reproofs to workers and to labor unions since the Vatican began its long series of appeals in behalf of labor unions more than a half century ago. The Pontiff said that workers must help themselves instead of looking for outside assistance and that they must cut down "greed for pleasure" which, he said, has infected working classes as well as leisure groups.

ord 101 for the date attained in 1874 and 1934.

But it was hot enough to win an early release from their jobs for District and Federal employes working in buildings without air conditioning. District workers were allowed to go home at 3 p.m.

The thermometer dropped rapidly when the storm hit here, dropping from 88 to 72 within a matter of minutes.

Dozen Live Wires Down

The high winds which accompanied the heat-shattering storm tore down power lines and darkened part of Anacostia. Police said about a dozen live wires came down through the city during the storm and about half that number of trees.

The Fire Department reported 15 alarms during and immediately following the storms. All of them concerned fallen wires which were flashing dangerously.

A high tension line fell on Mount Vernon blvd, at Slater's lane, Alexandria, endangering cars and motorists. The area was blocked off by police from 9 to 9:25 p.m. and traffic detoured.

Two houses and a church steeple were reported struck by lightning. The houses were adjoining homes, at 1329 and 1331 Michigan ave. ne. The two-story brick home at 1329, occupied by Mrs. Charles M. Wallingford, suffered a damaged chimney and roof.

Family "Petrified" by Bolt

Next door, at 1331, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Hanagan and their two children were home when the bolt struck the roof and chimney of their house.

"We were petrified with fright," said Mrs. Hanagan. "We wouldn't have been surprised if the house had lifted up and we had been blown away."

The steeple of the Anacostia Methodist Church, 2011 14th st. se., also was a target of lightning. The bolt knocked loose 100 square feet of slate from the steeple.

The weatherman promised Washingtonians some degree of relief today from yesterday's misty 93 degrees—in fact, just about five degrees.

The forecast was: "... partly cloudy and not so warm ... local thundershowers ... a high of about 88."

Precautions Advised For Hot Weather

If the hot weather has you feeling slightly dizzy or makes you break out in a cold sweat, the District Health Department yesterday issued these words of caution:

Dizziness, explains the HD, is one of the symptoms of sunstroke. Sometimes it's accompanied by sudden nausea. The face is flushed ... body surface dry and hot ... pulse accelerated ... temperature high ... breathing noisy and forced.

Persons in this condition should be removed to a cool, shaded place ... restricting clothing should be removed, especially at the neck ... body should be sponged with cold water ... head should be treated with ice bags or cold rags ... but NO alcoholic stimulants should be given. A doctor should be called.

During the extreme weather, health officials say, everybody should get sufficient sleep.

Margaret Truman At Summer White House

Independence, Mo., June 28 (AP).—Miss Margaret Truman arrived at the summer White House here tonight from Washington.

Miss Truman and her mother, wife of President Truman, went to Washington last week to attend funeral services for Robert C. Stewart, who was killed June 17 in an airplane crash at Mount Carmel, Pa.

Girl, 13, in Abortion Case, Says Mother Urged Sex Act

Los Angeles, June 29 (U.P.).—A 13-year-old girl told the county grand jury today that her mother talked her into having sexual relations, that she became pregnant and underwent an abortion.

The grand jury immediately indicted two women on abortion charges. The district attorney's office said a complaint charging contributing to the delinquency of a minor would be issued against the girl's mother.

The indictment was returned before Superior Judge Thomas L. Ambrose. One of the women, Mrs. Vera McDowell Boswell, 50, a nurse, was arrested and bail set at $5000. Name of her alleged accomplice was kept secret until her arrest.

Identities of the girl, her 15-year-old lover, and their parents were withheld by authorities.

The girl's story said her mother came to her in March and said she was old enough to have sexual relations.

She said her mother induced her and a 15-year-old neighbor boy to go to bed together in the girl's room, telling them:

"Go ahead, have a good time."

As a result, the girl said, she became pregnant. She said her parents took her to the home of Mrs. Boswell, where she underwent an abortion June 1.

Deputy District Attorney Edward McLarty said investigators were seeking the doctor who allegedly performed the operation.

Long Jail Terms Lack Meaning in Tennessee

Nashville, Tenn. (U.P.).—The Tennessee jury may say "99 years," "life imyrisonment," or some other stiff sentence, but State prison records show that the "average" Tennessee convict is free after five years.

A survey showed that only 13 prisoners had served more than 20 years and that the oldest in point of prison time had been behind bars since 1921. However, only six of the 13 had been in prison continuously since they first were admitted.

Girl Is Second Killer Victim

Oregon, Ill., June 29 (AP).—The body of an attractive 16-year-old telephone operator, shot once in the head, was found in a sand pit today—the second victim of a mysterious lover's lane killer.

The girl, Mary Jane Reed, was seen leaving an Oregon tavern last Thursday night with Stanley Skridla, 28, a telephone lineman. Skridla's body, pierced by four slugs, was found in a lonely lover's lane the following day.

Coroner Fred Horner said pellets recovered from Skridla's body and one removed from the girl's brain showed they were fired from the same pistol—a .32-caliber.

The girl's body was found face down in a clump of weeds in a silica pit 2 miles from Oregon. The spot is about 2 miles from where Skridla's body was found. The girl was wearing underclothing and a blouse, but her brown slacks had been removed and were tossed over the lower part of her legs.

Coroner Horner said it could not be determined whether the girl had been raped.

One police theory is that a jealous suitor of Miss Reed was the killer. However, a robbery motive also was considered possible.

Murder In The Park

The all-out effort which Metropolitan Police are making to solve the murder of Carol Bardwell makes it probable that the killer or killers will be brought to justice. Technically the Police Department is operating in alien domain, since Rock Creek Park, where the little girl was slain Sunday, is under the supervision of the United States Park Police. Fortunately, however, the jurisdictional disputes of the past have not been repeated in the present instance. Metropolitan Police were quickly notified of the crime and have lent their full cooperation and extensive facilities in the search for the criminal.

The great area of the Washington park system makes it physically impossible to patrol all the grounds at all times without a prohibitive increase in police personnel. If this crime was premediated, it may be doubted whether a mere increase in the number of police in the parks would have prevented it. Nevertheless, experience shows that the presence of police does serve as a deterrent to crime generally. In this respect the Park Police, with a force of only 118 men, are poorly equipped to handle the job to which they have been assigned. Indeed, their duties are more concerned with traffic control and custodianship than with crime prevention and detection.

The fact that Metropolitan Police have practically taken over the present investigation emphasizes the long-standing anomaly of two separate police forces in Washington. No amount of cooperation between two independent units can provide the same efficiency that could be achieved if the responsibility for patrolling and protecting all areas within the city were centered in a single department, the Metropolitan Police. Surely when it is unsafe for young girls to ride their bicycles in public parks, this disjointedness is an anachronism that can no longer be tolerated.

Vacation Shutdowns

Until recently the average factory worker took his vacations in the form of layoffs or periods of enforced idleness following loss of his job. Today vacations with pay enable many thousands of wage earners to enjoy holidays from work for one or two weeks during the year. As the movement spreads, the arrangement of vacation schedules becomes a matter of concern not only to the companies and workers directly affected but also to the public at large.

The standard practice of arranging for staggered vacations works well enough so long as vacations are limited to a few employes; it is another matter when they cover all employes of a large industrial plant. For the absence of key workers, necessitating the employment of substitutes or shifts in working assignments, may slow down production and prove very costly. Consequently a large and rapidly increasing number of industrial companies have decided to shut down for a week or two and give all their employes vacations at that time. In some cases, of course, mass vacations of this sort are not feasible, owing to the character of the business. But conditions permitting, the practice has many advantages from the employer's viewpoint, since it eliminates the problems resulting from staggered vacations and affords opportunity for repairing, retooling, and stock-taking.

On the other hand, mass vacations will not be welcomed by those employes who heretofore have had an opportunity to choose their vacation dates. A much more serious objection to mass vacations arises from the effects on community life of releasing thousands of workers simultaneously. Vacation resorts complain because they are forced to turn away visitors whom they might accommodate if business were distributed more evenly over the season. The vacationers themselves are aggrieved because they have no place to go. Vacation transport facilities are also overloaded, while local transportation companies complain of the sudden loss of business. Plant closings, too, sometimes cause shipments to pile up in freight cars and warehouses.

As the system of mass vacation expands, it will become necessary to work out some general over-all program for minimizing these indirect dislocations. There might be an arrangement among large employers in any local area to schedule mass vacations so as to minimize overlapping. The danger in such arrangements is that some employers might select unsuitable vacation dates—too early or too late in the season. Moreover, whether vacations are massed or staggered the new practice of giving workers vacations with pay is going to put an unexpected strain on all kinds of resort facilities once monopolized by luckier citizens. The only way to relieve that strain is to enlarge those facilities to meet the increased demand.

Tito In The Doghouse

The broadside that the Cominform has launched at Tito and his lieutenants seems bound to have the most profound repercussions throughout eastern Europe. Tito, so recently the darling of the Politburo, is accused of almost every heresy in the Communist calendar, and a new one is added, viz, "grandeeism." The epithet certainly fits Tito. He is, indeed, a grandee—almost as much as Goering was, and he looks like Goering, too. And his imperialistic ambitions are as expansive as his uniforms. Some are personal, but others are merely the reflection of the nationalist fervor which he has himself nourished.

The trouble is that none of Tito's aggressive designs have been realized. For not realizing the conquest of Greece, he probably stands convicted in the eyes of the Politburo, since failure in Moscow's eyes is a blunder worse than a crime. Tito's failure in other respects has been compounded by Soviet noncooperation. Failure to grab Trieste is the one which must have caused Tito the most frustration to his own self-esteem and the most humiliation before the people of Yugoslavia. The Slovenes covet Trieste. Tito several years ago went so far as to incorporate Trieste as the seventh republic in the blueprint of his Federated Republics of Yugoslavia. Yet Trieste still remains a Free Territory, though the "turbulent" Slovenes continue to menace life and property in Zone B. What is more, the brilliant move by the State Department in offering to return the Territory of Trieste to Italy left Moscow on one foot and in the process made the prize more and more inaccessible to Tito. Tito likewise stood out for the absorption of Carinthia at the expense of Austria. But the attitude of the Soviet toward this aspiration has become just as lukewarm as its attitude toward Tito's claim to Trieste. Truly the situation of Tito in trying to bolster up his own dictatorship and at the same time to heed his master's voice in Moscow has been difficult. Of late Soviet opportunism and Yugoslav needs have kept him in a perpetual dilemma.

Perhaps the crowning blow to Tito's ambition was the exclusion of Yugoslavia from participation in the Marshall Plan. This tried the loyalty of all eastern countries, and, along with the seeming pro-German slant of Soviet policy in the meetings of the U. N.'s European Commission at Geneva, must have made for restiveness. Moscow's slash of reparation demands after the enactment of the Marshall Plan was meant to quiet the prevailing disappointment. Yugoslavia has need for the aid and trade that will flow from Marshall Plan operations as much as any of the eastern countries.

All these circumstances seem to have stayed Tito's hand in carrying out any radical reform in Yugoslavia's agrarian economy. His lack of progress in this respect—indeed, his preference for the cooperative rather than the collective—takes up a major part of the Cominform's indictment. Tito and his lieutenants have "slipped off the Marx-Lenin path" because of their undue preoccupation with the peasantry. "Lenin teaches," warns the schoolmasters in their bill of particulars, "that the proletariat, as the only revolutionary class of consequence in the present society, must be the leader." Tito is accused of acting on the contrary assumption that "peasants are the firmest basis of the Yugoslav state." In other words, Tito's lag in carrying out the collectivization of agriculture is regarded as a cardinal sin. That Tito, in view of the damper to Yugoslav irredentism and the drying up of foreign aid, could not risk a complete alienation of the fierce mountaineers and independent peasants in Yugoslavia who form 75 per cent of the Yuglosav population, is completely disregarded by the Cominform.

What will happen if Tito or a successor regime is intimidated into putting the screws on the Yugoslavs is anybody's guess. But the significance of the split in Communist ranks is not recondite. When Dimitrov, the Bulgarian leader, was spanked on January 28 for speaking out of turn in favor of Balkan federation, it was obvious that Moscow could not tolerate a community of states in eastern Europe. The states back of the iron curtain were as good as told they must stay in the role of separate Soviet satellites. Their nationalism, which is especially marked in Tito's case, is now as suspect as their internationalism.

This is not the first time that the finger has been put upon native Communists preparatory to their removal from office or favor. The disgrace into which the Tito gang has fallen was preceded by the extrusion of the veteran Romanian Communist leader, Patrascanu, from the Romanian cabinet. He, too, was accused of being a "Nationalist." In getting rid of anybody who has the slightest tendency toward independent views, the Communist hierarchy seem to be replacing satellitism with colonialism, with the native gradually giving place to the Moscow-trained puppet in directing the iron-curtain countries. If this theory is valid, then Ana Pauker of Romania may have taken the place of both Dimitrov and Tito as Moscow's spearhead in the Balkans.

Coal Eclipse

A seemingly insignificant event that took place the other day in Schenectady, N. Y., was actually a step in a power revolution. The century-old shops of the American Locomotive Co. turned out their last steam locomotive. Henceforth the company will concentrate on production of diesel-electrics which, according to a company official, remain on the road longer than their steam counterparts and are cheaper to operate. The same metamorphosis is occurring in the plants of many other locomotive manufacturers. Aside from a few steam turbine engines on order by the coal roads, the trend is to diesel.

This does not, of course, mean that the steam locomotive is on its last legs, or, rather, wheels. Whatever their longevity in comparison with diesels, the steam giants are notoriously long-lived and have a habit of turning up on branch lines or are purchased secondhand by obscure companies long after their usefulness to major railroads has been exhausted. Rail fans have a few more years in which to snap pictures of the colorful steam "hog" at work.

Nevertheless, the implications of the trend are disturbing. For they portend the abandonment of coal as a source of power for railroads, although a few loyal coal haulers may be expected to delay the transition as long as possible. Whatever this changeover may mean in faster, more efficient service and cheaper operation, it also means the substitution of a fuel in short supply, oil, for one that is plentiful.

The development is of course only part of a great upturn in the use of oil for industrial purposes, but the net effect is to hasten depletion of this resource. There thus is a real question whether, from the standpoint of longtime national security, it is wise to place such great reliance on oil instead of the more abundant, if less convenient, coal. Aside from the as yet unproved potentialities of atomic energy, coal is the greatest known source of power which this country possesses. Certainly more efficient methods of producing and utilizing coal ought not to be neglected even though the diesel has come into its heyday.

Superseniority

There can be little doubt that Congress intended to give veterans the superseniority which the Civil Service Commission has accorded them and which the Supreme Court recently validated. This means that a record of service in the armed forces gives a man a decided edge not only in obtaining a Government job but also in retaining it when lay-offs become in order. Nearly half of the total Federal payroll is now made up of veterans, and the percentage will be still higher if a contraction of Government services follows from congressional economies. This is a form of largesse which may strike some members of Congress as more economical than direct handouts to veterans; but if it saves the taxpayer something in the form of candid veterans' payments, it is likely to cost him a great deal more in terms of lowered bureaucratic efficiency and morale.

Veterans' preference, whether it be in hiring or firing, is an obvious injustice to the nonveteran and an obvious impairment of the civil service merit system. When a former serviceman gets an advantage of a designated number of points over others taking a civil service examination, he is going to get a Government job ahead of someone better qualified to fill it. When a fellow-worker with longer experience and a better efficiency rating is laid off ahead of the veteran, the caliber of the Federal service is going to go down another notch. And, of course, the persons who will scream loudest about inefficiency in the Government are the very Congressmen who made it inescapable.

We have suggested before and we suggest again that Congress manifest its altruism to veterans by giving them preference of a practical sort in obtaining the 531 elected jobs in the National Legislature. This could be done readily by providing that every candidate for the House or Senate who had donned his country's uniform be given, say, a 5000-vote head start over his nonveteran opponents. This sort of ballot-box stuffing could scarcely be more injurious to the democratic process than the rigging of civil service examinations and the wrecking of job tenure through superseniority are to the merit system.

CARDINAL

I missed, somehow, the scarlet flash
Between dark clusters of the ash,
But traced it by a thread of song,
As ears helped sun-blind eyes along.

How could I ever fail to see
A color-spot as gay as he?
With bandit-mask and level stare
Too lightly arrogant to care

If anyone admired the song
(Secure no note falls ever wrong.)
What luck! To sing—to go so gay—
And never mind what people say!

Letters To The Editor

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

"Congressional Club"

On June 16 you published an editorial entitled "Congressional Club." The editorial referred to castigates our Senator Sheridan Downey for perpetrating what you term "a neat little ruse" which will result in the removal from office of two officials which you state "have admirable service in the bureau." You attempt to make martyrs out of Straus and Boke because "they dared to insist upon application of the acreage limitation provisions of the reclamation law."

It might be judicious for you to get certain facts straight on the situation. Straus and Boke attempted to make martyrs out of themselves by suggesting that they were being persecuted by the power trust and the land barons. The facts are that their activities and their administration of the Bureau of Reclamation in the Central Valley of California have been so inefficient and so full of misfeasance in office that even their stanchest supporters have deserted them.

For your enlightenment, you should read the charges of the Harness congressional committee. You should also browse through the 2-inch volume entitled "Hearings Before a Subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations, U. S. Senate; Eightieth Congress; Second Session, on the Bureau of Reclamation." This transcript is full of testimony damaging to the bureau with serious charges and far-reaching questions from the committee unanswered by the higher officials of the bureau. It is a sorry story of inept and bungling administration whose purpose appears to be control of the waters of California. Out of it grew the serious charges against Straus, Boke and others in the Interior Department.

Could it be that you condone mismanagement in Government? Could it be that you condone the flaunting of congressional directives by representatives of the executive branch of Government? Could it be that you approve of Government hired hands using their offices to influence legislation pending before the Congress? In defending the activities of Straus and Boke and others of their ilk it appears that you have been taken in by the propaganda artists of the bureau of wrecklamation.

Rear-Door Exit

Public commendation is due to the driver who on Sunday, June 20, between 5:15 and 5:40 p. m. operated vehicle No. 4888 on the bus line H-2 from Catholic University to Westmoreland Circle nw. At each major stop some 12 or 15 persons alighted from the bus to make room for an equal number of persons waiting to board. As usual, the majority of the passengers turned to the front door for exit; it did not occur to them, or they did not care, that in not using the rear door they were wasting the time of the persons waiting to board, and indeed, of all the passengers.

The driver did a fine thing. To begin with, he most courteously invited everybody to leave by the rear door. The appeal falling on many deaf ears, he simply kept the front door shut until everybody had in fact turned back. There was no grumbling on the part of the people who were thus being educated. They saw the point and complied.

Hundreds of hours of bus time are wasted every day in this city by people thoughtlessly or selfishly using the front door rather than the rear door in alighting. It is suggested that Capital Transit start a campaign to end this bad habit. Posters inviting the public to leave by the rear door should be placed in each bus, preferably right on the inside of the front exit window, and all drivers should be instructed to act up to the public spirit and common sense shown by their colleagues on Sunday.

Here is an opportunity for Capital Transit to improve its service without any additional expenditure. LUDWIG HAMBURGER.

Comic Politics

A day late for Col. Robert McCormick's stop-Dewey endeavor, but worth recording, I think, was a comic strip by the colonel's favorite artist. It appeared locally last Friday afternoon in your evening contemporary.

Little Orphan Annie was discussing a new-found enemy, Max, with a new-found friend. (Incidentally, when Annie writes a book on How to Make Friends While Averting Puberty it ought to outsell the combined works of Dale Carnegie and Dr. Kinsey.) Here are the balloons:

Annie: Max and his friends talk about politics in the night. What kind of politics?

Friend: Oh! He's goin' to be ruler o' all this city. Max. Ha! Just the chauffeur here. Isn't that silly?

Annie: Hm... There was a guy who took over a big country and almost the whole world — and killed millions o' decent folks. He was just a house painter.

Friend: Ha-ha. But Max? Oh, no.

Annie: And another guy — just the son of a peasant shoemaker. He's got a big piece of the world enslaved—right now.

Friend: Oh, ha-ha. But Max? Why, he hasn't even got a mustache.

Segregated Playgrounds

I want to commend Dr. Thomas E. Mattingly for his logical and rational discussion of segregated playgrounds in The Washington Post of June 16. Although admitting the deep-seated fears and feelings of insecurity and the unreasoning prejudice socially inherited in this quasi-Southern community, Dr. Mattingly adequately distinguishes between the domain of private prejudice and public policy. He advocates a reversal of our playground policies and practices for the reason that in the area of play and sports, human nature is at its best and it is here that the better traits of community living may be learned.

On the other hand, one of the most distressing commentaries in the fight for human freedoms and democracy is the support of racial segregation by members of minority groups. Even some renegade Negroes enjoy segregation. At the recent hearing before the Board of Education favoring segregation, there were at least two spokesmen who, by appearances, could easily have been classified as colored.

Again, I say, it is refreshing to note the logic and growing tolerance in the discussion of segregated playgrounds by Dr. Mattingly. E. B. HENDERSON.

State Reapportionment

Baldwin's Connecticut, Driscoll's New Jersey, Taft's and Bricker's Ohio, Green's Illinois, Stassen's Minnesota, Vandenberg's Michigan, and Warren's California badly need State legislative reapportionment to have people equitably represented in their own State Legislatures in order to prevent the piling up of political solutions in Washington.

If Dewey believes in noncentralization of government, if he believes in equitable representation as the best structural form Americans can offer to offset communism, and if he believes in just plain ordinary fair play, he will lead the fight for legislative reapportionments in all States now requiring them. He has beaten the field, he has beaten the politicians—now let him serve the public!

Truman's Leadership

The adverse criticism of President Truman that has shown itself recently among parts of the public mind, especially among some Democratic groups, is amazingly narrow and short-sighted. It reminds one of the far stronger adverse criticism of Abraham Lincoln in the summer of 1864.

Let us take the long look at Truman and his acts and policies. He shows well. What can now be said of him and his Administration? I submit the following:

Truman was suddenly called to the Presidency of this Nation and the leadership of its domestic and international affairs at one of the most critical moments in American history, with the greatest of all wars in progress on two fronts. He followed one of the greatest of the Presidents and one of the most gifted leaders of men in all history. Mr. Truman had had no previous administrative experience on a national scale and was rated as an average American.

As President, Harry S. Truman has met every problem in both domestic and foreign affairs with a clear head, a deep devotion to public duty and a determination to do what is best for his country. He has never apologized, or ducked or dodged or side-stepped a single issue, no matter how difficult or complex or how involved with political dynamite of dangerous potentialities. In his decisions he has never made the popular decision, but only the decision he thought was necessary to public welfare.

He has shown rare patience, good humor, even temperament and calm serenity under the most trying circumstances. Never once has he swelled up over his high position or lost the common touch. He has remained one of us, thus giving new faith in the genius of our American institutions to develop the possibilities of an average American.

He has chosen wise counselors, like Byrnes, Marshall, Connally, Austin and Vandenburg and has kept international questions above the cheap level of mere partisanship. In the solution of grave problems Truman has acted wisely, with statesmanlike qualities, controlling his decisions and policies, changing only with facts like Lincoln he can say, "I confess that events have controlled me."

In the course of facing these grave problems Truman has: Directed the German and Japanese war surrenders and settlements; to Russia he has declared and followed a policy which men of all parties accept and which has preserved the peace of the world; with Marshall he has promulgated the Marshall Plan, which is daily demonstrating its wisdom and value. Every event on the foreign scene has so far vindicated the wisdom of his decisions and policies.

On domestic issues (harassed by a hostile Congress) he has faithfully followed the ideals and policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt and not once has he departed from those principles.

U. S. Seminar For Germans

By Malvina Lindsay

Democracy On Display

REPEATEDLY we are told that reeducation of Germans in democratic processes has failed. Repeatedly we wonder whether German rigidity or our own ineptness is to blame. And we keep asking ourselves: "Why don't we try something else if what we're doing isn't working?

It seems that something else at last is being tried, though in a very small way. It consists of showing Germans the American way of life rather than preaching it at them. It involves bringing selected Germans—teachers, editors, students, religous and club leaders—to this country for study. Thus they see in operation the democracy of which we boast. Thus they encounter Americans at their best, not in the unattractive role of conqueror. Thus they receive strength and encouragement for their own hard task of leadership.

However only a few private agencies are engaged in this project. Some colleges are offering scholarships to German students, some conducting exchange of German and American teachers. Some religious, cultural and scientific groups are sponsoring trips of anti-Nazi Germans to this country to study and observe.

BUT THE project needs national backing if any dent is to be made on the German mind. Both the Department of State and the Army have long advocated such a plan. Requests for funds for it have repeatedly been made in military budgets. A year ago Gen. Lucius Clay said there could be no better investment of American dollars than to bring a thousand German teachers to the United States for a year's study. William Benton, when Assistant Secretary of State, recommended that two to four thousand selected German students be brought to this country annually.

Those familiar with the woman problem in Germany have long urged that some German women leaders be brought here for contacts with American women and experience in democratic club procedures. Women's clubs here have been interested in the project, but lack the funds needed.

Many Americans who have been trying to teach democracy to Germans have concluded that abstract preaching of democratic theory has little influence. Alexander Boeker, now lecturing to university students in the American zone, writes in Freedom and Union that the Jim Crow system prevailing between conquerors and conquered greatly handicaps American efforts at German reorientation and causes Germans to see Americans in an unflattering light. He suggests that influential German editors, including those of small papers as well as of metropolitan dailies, be brought to this country to get a better perspective on Americans.

ENGLAND NOW is importing malleable German visitors so far as she is able. France is developing closer cultural ties with German scholars and students. Two British investigators, representing the British Women's Group for Public Welfare, last year studied conditions among German women. One of their recommendations was that German women leaders be brought to England for visits.

Those who work with Germans in the American and British zones have been baffled by the lack of understanding of democratic processes Germans show in their organizations and community activities. Members of clubs, churches or other groups tend to leave everything to their officers. And the average German feels no responsibility for the way his community is run.

Germans now are suspicious of politics or political organizations, also of theories and words. That is why giving them personal experience with American life is believed to be the best way to reach them. Since they are not permitted to take anything out of their country their entire expenses of coming to the United States would have to be met.

A movement is now on among educational and other groups to form a national voluntary body to promote exchange of American students with those in occupied areas. Voluntary funds for this would be sought, yet eventually it is expected that under the Mundt Act providing for exchange of American students and leaders with these of occupied countries, Government funds could be appropriated for the project. But in the struggle for Germany's mind time presses — especially from the East—and many feel more should be done at once to end Germany's isolation from Western thought.

"Montgomery Schools"

I wish to commend you for the splendid editorial of June 24 on the Montgomery County schools. The writer analyzed the situation perfectly and presented it in a very clear and concise manner.

If only we would find more people who would do such a good job of thinking the problem through I am sure our situation would be different. If we could convince the commissioners that Montgomery County should take leadership in educational matters rather than being content to be among the followers, we would accomplish our purpose of giving our children the best. As it is I am afraid we have a "hard row to hoe."

Again I want to commend you for your clear understanding and excellent presentation of the matter.

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph And Stewart Alsop

Democrats In The Dumps

THE GLUM resignation of the leading Democrats has to be seen to be believed. In the happy isolation of the White House, President Truman is reported to retain his usual chirpy optimism. Something, he tells his callers, will turn up, and then dwells lovingly on the series of unlikely chances by which he reached his present eminence. But the Republican ticket of Dewey and Warren has plunged the Democratic Party bosses, their labor allies, the Democratic leaders in Congress and even some among the President's personal advisers into a state of dreadful gloom.

The truth is that Democratic leadership had been prepared for Dewey or the equivalent. But they had always supposed that if a modern-minded Republican headed the ticket, he would be balanced by some one like House Majority Leader Charles Halleck or Senator John W. Bricker, who would be open to easy attack.

Furthermore, by nominating Dewey and Warren, the Republicans deprived the Democratic leadership of what had always been their only real hope. This was that an isolationist-conservative Republican choice — the nomination, say, of Speaker Joseph W. Martin—could be made the pretext for a movement to draft Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as the Democratic standard-bearer.

The strongest advocates of drafting Eisenhower, like Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., now accept the fact that this project has become impractical. A good many of them even hope that Eisenhower will somehow reiterate his earlier statement taking himself out of the presidential race. They want this to happen so that the opposition to Truman may crystallize more readily around some other candidate, such as Justice William O. Douglas.

THE BETTING is, of course, approximately 99 to 1 that President Truman will be renominated at Philadelphia, despite this widespread desire to make a real showing with Douglas or someone like him. Working for Truman renomination are two oddly selected political agents, Oscar Chapman, the Undersecretary of the Interior, and his old court jester, that expert mixer of business and politics, George Allen.

Just how and when Allen was readmitted to White House favor is not precisely known. His readmission is all the stranger, in view of the fact that he has been talking around Washington of "Eisenhower in 1952," which implies acknowledgment of Truman's inevitable defeat. In any case, Allen and Chapman, much more than the Democratic chairman, Senator J. Howard McGrath, have been the Truman contact men with the organizations in the country. And they are very confident they have everything sewed up in advance.

Yet the virtual certainty of President Truman's renomination does not mean that the President has a very happy time ahead of him. In the first place, it is still probable that the great Northern Democratic satraps, like Ed Flynn of The Bronx and Jake Arvey of Chicago, will tell the President plainly some time prior to the convention that his defeat is inevitable. It is also probable that they will suggest Truman's retirement for the good of the party.

If this occurs, Truman is expected to make his usual reply, that he is "not a quitter." In this case the Northern leaders, with the possible exception of the Chicago organization, are pretty certain to do nothing further. Yet the experience will hardly be enjoyable for the beleaguered President.

AS FOR the convention itself, Messrs. Chapman, Allen and McGrath will have to step pretty lively to prevent it from being one long horror. The attack on Truman will come both from the Democratic Party's Left and Right. The Southerners of the Right have more or less agreed to accept the party's 1944 civil rights plank, but are now insisting on qualifying it with a States' rights plank. This will throw the fat into the fire in the platform committee.

The Southerners are also planning to nominate such men as Harry F. Byrd of Virginia, Walter George of Georgia and Governor J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina as their section's favorite sons. In short, the purpose of the Southern Democrats is still to give the President the maximum of trouble.

As for the left-wing Democrats, the labor groups and such organizations as the Americans for Democratic Action have lately been working to get what is called an "open convention." Most of those making the fight, like Leon Henderson, have been comparative amateurs in practical politics. Yet President Truman and his agents have only been able to obtain advance commitments from 304 of the 1234 convention delegates. The rest are uninstructed.

It is the present intention of the fighters for an "open convention" to place Justice Douglas' name in nomination. They are hoping that a rather substantial protest vote against Truman will rally around Douglas. Douglas himself is incommunicado in Oregon and seems unlikely to call a halt to this effort in his behalf, of which he was informed by friends before he left Washington. Altogether, although the President may expect to receive his party's invitation to the ball, he must also expect the invitation to be proffered with almost unparalleled rudeness.

State Dept. Denies Stalling On Military Aid to Chinese

Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.) yesterday accused the Administration of stalling on military aid to China, and the State Department issued a prompt denial.

Chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, Bridges protested in a letter to Secretary of State George C. Marshall that there was a "general laxity" in the department and the Administration in general in getting the China-aid program under way.

That, he said, was "contrary to the vital interests of the American people." He asked for a "full explanation" to his committee.

He recalled that Congress on April 3 directed the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, to advance 50 million dollars to the Chinese government for both military and economic aid to keep it going until the legislators finally approved the multi-billion-dollar foreign aid program.

"From April 3 to the present day," he wrote, "the Department of State has failed to use any portion of this sum for the purchase of military supplies."

The department, in an informal reply, said the 50-million-dollar RFC advance was for both economic and military aid and was split on a ratio of $36,500,000 for economic and $13,500,000 for military aid.

The department's statement implied that the House of Representatives was to blame for any delay because it voted to set up a new aid procedure in approving a 125-million-dollar item for China in the foreign aid appropriation.

It said the $36,500,000 in economic assistance had been turned over to the economic cooperation administration and that most of it already has been committed for goods "en route or in China."

Arrangements were being made for China to draw on the $13,500,000 military aid fund when the House, on June 2, passed the appropriation.

A provision of the House bill, it said, "would have required administrative terms . . . different from those envisaged in the enabling act."

The issue was finally settled in the House-Senate compromise version of the appropriation which President Truman signed only Monday, it said.

"The basis upon which the entire 125 million dollars for additional aid to China can now be drawn by the Chinese government was communicated to the Chinese Embassy today."

Sen. Cordon to Head Pacific Study Trip

Senator Cordon (R., Oreg.) yesterday was named chairman of a Senate-House committee to study American island possessions and trusteeships in the Pacific.

Cordon told reporters the 12-man group tentatively plans to leave November 9 for an inspection of the islands. He said the group also may visit Japan and China.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Inflationary Time Bomb

THESE ARE the dog days in Washington. The torrid heat has settled down and the streets have a deserted air, with sightseers conspicuous around the Capitol and the White House.

Childs

For six months there will be no Government in Washington capable of making any major decision. That is a fact known behind the iron curtain and in western Europe as it is here in this country. Every four years under our system of government that gap exists.

Yet during the coming six months the world will not stand still. The tides of change are moving ever more swiftly in this period of stalemate. And the very real danger is that events may take place that will make it impossible for any government to reverse the trend toward disaster.

The danger signals on the foreign front are plain enough. The next two to four weeks may see the need for decision on Germany that should be taken only by a unified Government, representative of a broad range of opinion.

It would be hard to minimize the seriousness of the contest with Russia that is now going on in Berlin. Out of it may come the dread inevitability of armed conflict that all policy-makers have hoped to avert. It is just possible, however, that there is a trend here at home that, if unchecked, can produce results almost as serious.

That is the spiral of inflation that has now brought prices to the highest level ever recorded. If this upward trend continues for the next six months, then the possibility of averting a crash will have been narrowed almost to zero. The incoming President will be handed a time bomb guaranteed to go off in late 1950, or perhaps earlier.

ALONG WITH that time bomb will go a 250-billion-dollar debt that costs the taxpayers 5 billion a year just for interest. The existence of the debt will make it far more difficult for the President to overcome the effects of the crash through spending for public works and relief.

Conceivably, the President might recall Congress if the showdown with Russia moved to the point of extreme peril. And, conceivably on such a grave issue, the Republican Congress would come back to cooperate with the Democratic President.

But it is impossible to imagine the President calling Congress back to do something about inflation and the hundred and one domestic problems allied with it. While he may talk for political effect about recalling Congress to do its plain duty, he has indicated to those close to him that this is the last thing he wants.

And quite understandably so. Congress, in regular session, balked at most of the domestic measures sought by President Truman. A Congress called back to Washington in the summer heat and in the middle of a campaign would be about as cooperative as a Brahma bull on the rampage. Nothing would come out of it but the loud and continuous sound of politics.

AT HIS first press conference after his nomination, Gov. Thomas E. Dewey was asked if he favored having Congress return. He replied with the crisp authority that marks the Dewey manner that he believed it would not be necessary. On the eve of the GOP convention, Candidate Dewey poured praise on the record of the Eightieth Congress.

Candidate Dewey would, of course, have no more control over a Congress called back to Washington than would President Truman. He wants no responsibility for what he calls the "chaos" of Washington. What is more, congressional leaders of the old school, who lost every battle at Philadelphia, have no reason at this point to love Candidate Dewey.

So the swift tide of change will continue to work and, if the economic experts are right, the black line on the price index will continue to climb. The explosive charge in the time bomb will be bigger and more powerful.

The figures are already pretty startling. Food, which for the average family is the most important single item in the cost of living, is at 211, about half a percentage point more than it was at the peak in January of this year. That is 44 points higher than in June of 1946, the last month OPA was in effect. It is 125 points higher than in August of '39.

As of today, the likelihood is that Dewey will get the economic time bomb on January 20 next year. The dangerous stuff that went into it has come from many sources. But he will have to thank the Republican Congress for adding the last charge of dynamite, which was that five-billion-dollar tax reduction.

Truman Demands End of Army Reserve Row; Signs Bill on Corps Retirement Benefits

President Truman yesterday stepped into the middle of a long-standing row between the Army and the Reserve Corps.

The Commander in Chief, who is also a colonel of the Reserve, told both organizations to stop arguing and get together in the interest of the national defense.

Mr. Truman's warning was given in a statement issued as he signed a bill designed to build up the Nation's reserve forces by giving officers and men more liberal retirement benefits.

Work 'in Partnership'

"As Commander in Chief," the statement said, "I call upon the Regular services to work with the Reserves in full partnership in maintaining a vigorous and effective national defense.

He then went on to say that as a citizen and a Reserve officer he wanted the Reserve officials to work with the Regular establishment.

"As a civilian who has been a reserve officer for many years, I call upon the reserves to accept the responsibilities and, in the fullest measure, to live up to the opportunities which this measure gives them."

Leaders of the Reserve Officers Association have been attacking Pentagon officials for alleged lack of interest in the Reserve and failure to build up that portion of the defense establishment. Regular officers have replied that the Reservists fail to understand the over-all problems.

Under the new law, passed by Congress June 14, members of the Army, Navy and Air Force reserves are given retirement credit for time spent in the reserves. In the past they were entitled to pensions only if they had enough time on active duty, or were disabled in active service.

Can Retire at 60

Now, however, a member of the reserve can retire at the age of 60 if he has been in the reserve 20 years or longer. Those now in the reserve must have been in active service in either World War I or World War II.

Retired pay will be 2½ per cent of the base pay for the highest rank held, multiplied by the number of years on active duty, plus one half of 1 per cent of the same base pay multiplied by the number of years on inactive status.

The pension cannot be greater than 75 per cent of the highest active duty pay drawn by the person receiving the pension.

Concerning the Army and Air Force, the bill provides for boards which will survey the records of individual officers and recommend retirement or dismissal for those not qualified for promotions.

Temporary Rank Counts

It also permits Regular Army officers and Army nurses to retire at the highest temporary rank held during World War II, and allows Regular Army enlisted men and warrant officers to retire after 30 years' service at their highest temporary wartime rank.

The retirement law applies also to women who were authorized by this Congress to serve as regulars and in the reserves of all the armed services. The law giving women a permanent place in the armed forces provides that they shall be entitled to all retirement and other privileges granted male members of the services.

President Truman also has signed a bill allowing the Army and Navy to keep surplus four-star commanders on active duty until 1950.

The new law temporarily suspends another limiting the services to five four-stars each.

The effect is to permit Gens. Courtney Hodges, Thomas Handy, and Mark Clark and Admirals Raymond Spruance, Thomas Kinkaid and Henry Hewitt to keep four-star rank until retirement.

The Gallup Poll

Dewey Was Most Popular Candidate With GOP Voters

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 29.—In this June.

	Last Time (June, 1944)
Dewey	58%
MacArthur	13
Bricker	12
Stassen	6
*Willkie	8
Others	3

	THIS TIME (June, 1948)
Dewey	33%
Stassen	26
Vandenberg	13
MacArthur	11
Taft	10
Warren	2
Joseph Martin	1
Others & no choice	4

The 1940 situation was featured by a phenomenal last-minute boom. Governor Dewey had been leading in popularity for many months, but in May Willkie began to climb. With impressive speed the Willkie boom snowballed until in late June he ended up the leading choice with Republican voters before receiving the nomination from the delegates.

The course of Willkie's phenomenal rise was charted by the Institute as follows:

WHAT HAPPENED IN 1940

	Late May	Mid June	Late June*
Willkie	10%	29%	44%
Dewey	56	47	29
Taft	16	8	13
Vandenberg	12	8	5
Hoover	2	6	7
Others	4	2	2

*Poll completed after convention opened, but before nomination.

In 1936 Governor Landon of Kansas had pretty clear sailing all the way to convention time. He took an early lead and held it, polling 55 per cent shortly before convention time, the next most popular candidate being Senator William E. Borah of Idaho with 18 per cent, and Herbert Hoover with 14 per cent.

The standings of the leading Republican candidates in 1948 and today contrast as follows:

The Institute poll of Republican voters nominating Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, Republican Party delegates for the fourth consecutive time since 1936 selected the man most popular with their party voters at the time of nomination.

Alfred M. Landon in 1936, Wendell Willkie in 1940 and Governor Dewey in 1944 were each leading in polls by the Institute among Republican voters at the time convention delegates named them to head the ticket.

During the same period the Democrats, too, picked the candidate most popular with their party, Mr. Roosevelt.

If the record since 1936 is any criterion, the chances of dark-horse candidates being picked by deals in smoke-filled rooms appear to be declining in American politics.

While there is maneuvering and horse-trading at every political convention, the last four conventions have at any rate turned up with the most popular man in the party winning the prize. It is up to the delegates to do the deciding, but the wishes of the rank and file of party voters do apparently tend to get translated into action at the conventions.

Governor Dewey held the lead in popularity nearly all the time; as far back as May 1945, polls by the Institute found him the choice of 59 per cent of his party for the nomination in 1948.

Twice his popular position was threatened by Harold E. Stassen. In May, 1946 Mr. Stassen ran neck and neck with Governor Dewey and in May of this year Mr. Stassen forged into the lead after his spectacular victories in the Wisconsin and Nebraska primaries. But, following the Oregon primary in which Governor Dewey defeated his Minnesota rival, the New York Governor regained the lead and held it to convention time.

But this year this popular lead as a candidate was not as great, proportionally, as it was in 1944.

When Republican voters in June, 1944 were asked who they wanted to see nominated, 58 per cent named Governor Dewey, as compared to 33 per cent in the final

No Gasoline Shortage Seen This Summer

By The Associated Press

The Government's top oil expert predicted today there will be no gasoline shortage this summer but said he is not "unqualifiedly optimistic" over the fuel oil situation next winter.

Max W. Ball, chief of the Interior Department's gas and oil division, told the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee:

"Today we've got the all-time high stock of gasoline on hand. Barring strikes and catastrophes, there should be no gasoline shortage this summer and fuel oil should be not quite so tight as last winter."

Ball said that there has been a 6 to 9 per cent country-wide increase in the use of gasoline, but stocks have increased by 8 to 10 per cent.

Over-All Outlook Improved

The over-all outlook for gas and oil has improved due to increased production and imports and decreased exports, he said. He said kerosene is a possible "trouble stop," particularly in the New England States where reserves have not been built up to any great extent.

Ball said natural gas will be "critically short" in the Northeast and Midwest. He said that from the standpoint of natural gas "it looks like a very tough winter in Michigan."

Chairman Wolverton (R., N. J.) criticized President Truman for authorizing oil exports under the European Recovery and other foreign-aid programs. He said:

"The net result is that America is facing a very critical shortage. The intent of Congress is plain, that the President should first consider the needs of the American economy before authorizing exports."

Ball Defends President

Ball said he thought Mr. Truman did give "due consideration" to domestic needs before permitting shipments overseas.

"I don't think the American economy has been crippled under either the interim aid or the European recovery program," Ball said. "Only 9.7 per cent of the total (oil) supply is to come out of the United States and exports will decrease year by year."

Howard W. Page, executive assistant to the president of Standard Oil of New Jersey, told a Senate subcommittee the oil supply will exceed demand if present production continues.

One on the Aisle—

A Massive Dose Of Dostoevski

By Richard L. Coe

THE DARKSOME, BROODING quality of the classic Russian novelists is to be seen on two of the town's screens. England's version of Tolstoy's "Anna Karenina" is at the Playhouse and today a French treatment of Dostoevski's "The Idiot" opens at the Dupont.

The French certainly have the edge over the Korda Tolstoy in capturing the air of futility in nineteenth century Russia. But the story is infinitely more difficult to project; its theme of the hopelessness of pure good in a world of evil is hardly new, but it also is tenuous in the telling. The resultant picture, however sincere and memorable in detail, is heavy and drawn.

Prince Muichkine has returned to his native land at 25, still the childlike person he has been since infancy. His goodness is unquestioned; the light of kindliness shines in his eyes and the purity of his soul is Christlike. His loving simplicity and belief in the goodness of man draw him close to two women, the one a simple young beauty about to be married to an old, insensitive man. The other is older, experienced, and has gone to live with a merchant who has entered the highest bid for her corporeal being. But, though both these women confess their love for Muichkine, he is able, for all his goodness, to bring them nothing but unhappiness and death.

Minor Characters Score

Such a study of humanity and philosophy is far easier material for the novelist than for the filmmaker. Despite a splendid cast and some thoroughly able character acting, the over-all effect is too often incredible; one may go along with a writer on the futility of mortal life, but the factual reportage of the camera, so much more definitive than the printed word, leans toward overemphasis and ultimate confusion.

In the enormously difficult title role, Gerard Philippe ably suggests the physical and spiritual Christliness of the strange, unhappy hero. Edwige Feuillere is forceful in her many dramatic scenes as the lost lady hungry for redemption.

The English subtitles are exceptionally important to so tortuous a set of relationships as Dostoevski set up, and the translator has not been able to cope with his task. The curious character of the Prince is not sufficiently explained and only the barest translations are made.

However, in the numerous subordinate characters, the French studio has done brilliantly. Each of these is an individual, pitiable in futility, just as their author created them. But, on the whole, "The Idiot" is a pretty heavy dose.

"OKLAHOMA!", the company which recently closed in New York, will be coming into the National for a three-week stay on July 12 . . . Mid-July seems to be "Oklahoma!" time on E st.; it was July 18 that the National company began its month run here last summer . . . With one exception, this year's "Oklahoma!" cast will be different from the most recent company . . . She is Edith Gresham, who left the touring folk in midseason to play her expertly amusing Aunt Eller with the Gotham company . . . Wilton Clary, Carolyn Tanner, Bruce Hamilton, James Parnell, Hy Anzel, Florenz Ames, Jacqueline Daniels and Owen Martin are some of next month's visitors . . .

Strike Closes 9 Harvester Company Plants

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—Nine International Harvester Co. plants were closed by a strike today, but negotiators kept the bargaining talks going in the hope of reaching a speedy settlement.

The question of when a company offer of an 11-cent hourly wage boost should become effective appeared as the chief stumbling block.

More than 35,000 workers were affected when the CIO United Farm Equipment Workers Union called the walkout at the expiration of the old contract Monday midnight.

A spokesman for the company said the employer offered today to make the wage boost effective as of today and to continue other provisions of the old contract for one year. However, he added, the union requested that the pay boost be made effective retroactive to June 14. The company declined, but agreed to meet with the union again on this issue.

All 35,000 workers affected by the plant closings are not represented by the CIO-UFEW. Supervisory workers and members of some craft unions reported for work at some plants although production lines have halted, the company said.

Two plants at Canton, Ill., and Rock Falls, Ill., continued operating. At Canton, where 3200 are employed, Lee Wallaman, local UFEW president, said there "definitely will be no strike." The National Labor Relations Board will hold an election at the Canton plant July 7 to determine whether workers wish to be represented by the UFEW, the CIO United Auto Workers, the (independent) Canton Industrial Association or by no union.

Closed by the strike and number of workers affected were McCormick works, Chicago, 7800; West Pullman works, Chicago, 3700; tractor works, Chicago, 6200; McCormick twine mill, Chicago, 950; Auburn, N. Y., 220; East Moline, Ill., 3700; Richmond, Ind., 1800; Rock Island, Ill., 5000, and Louisville, Ky., 5500.

Agreement on Talks Ends 1-Day Flour Mill Strike

Kansas City, June 29 (AP).—Union and employer representatives agreed to resume negotiations today, ending a one-day strike at flour mills in seven Missouri and Kansas cities.

Defies Bishop, Wins Contest

MARIRUTH FORD, who defied a bishop's threat of expulsion from the Catholic Church if she remained in the beauty contest, won the title of "Miss Wheeling." She won the right to compete for a $2000 scholarship and the title of "Miss West Virginia" in a contest in August. The State winner will enter the Miss America contest.

Gunmen Still Elude Police

Chicago, June 29 (U.P.).—Two teen-aged gun molls, whose bandit boy friends have eluded one of Chicago's biggest manhunts, pleaded with them by radio today to give themselves up.

Meanwhile, police searched northern Illinois and the southern Wisconsin resort area for three young bandits still at large. The fourth member of the gang was seized yesterday.

The gang held up a suburban gambling joint Saturday and shot two policemen in a wild chase in a stolen car.

The radio appeal was by Dolores Anderson, 17, and Shirley Fredendall, 19, who bragged to the neighbors that their boy friends were "tough guys."

Dolores' appeal was addressed to Jerry Mnacek, 21.

"I want you in one piece, darling, not a million," Dolores said.

Oakie Shares Estate

New York, June 29 (AP). — Mrs. Venita Vardon Oakie, divorced wife of actor Jack Oakie, left her former husband half an estate valued at "more than $20,000," according to her will filed here today. Mrs. Oakie was killed in an airplane crash.

Shirley made a similar appeal to George Mudra, 23. She promised to wait for him, and asked him to surrender for her sake. Both are stenographers and both were proud of their trigger-happy boy friends. But when police seized them, the girls quickly "squealed."

Cadillac

ENDORSEMENT

Never before—even in Cadillac's unique history of acceptance—has an automobile been accorded quite the same endorsement as that given the beautiful new Cadillacs you now see on the roads. With the presentation of this car, Cadillac experienced the greatest upsurge of popularity in its entire 45-year history.

First came universal endorsement of Cadillac's striking beauty and originality of design. Then, as more and more people experienced for themselves the superb performance of these automobiles, it became apparent that now—even more than before—Cadillac's beauty is a true reflection of its inner excellence.

As a result, thousands who had previously been content with lesser cars, have now determined to make their next automobile a Cadillac. May we invite you to inspect these great new motor cars in our showrooms?

White Sidewall Tires available at additional cost.

Battle Lost To Reinstate Produce List

By S. Oliver Goodman

Local interests have lost their fight to reinstate the Agriculture Department's daily market news report on Washington produce, it was learned yesterday.

Funds insufficient to do the job were appropriated by a Senate subcommittee. An effort to increase the $5000 allotment failed and the report will not be resumed for the coming fiscal year, according to an Agriculture Department spokesman.

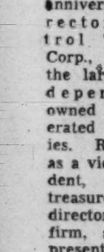
The report, which covered daily price fluctuations of wholesale fruits, vegetables, poultry and eggs, was abandoned last July. Since, protests have snowballed.

Leigh Lawrence, president of the District Wholesale Fruit & Produce Association, was one of the leaders in the move to reinstate the report. He had pointed out that the market news reports "are used to attract merchandise here, inform shippers regarding market trends and when and where to ship their products, to adjust claims with transportation companies and to assure our suppliers that they are receiving correct prices in payment of goods sold on commission."

Another leader in the reinstatement move was Joseph P. McCarthy, general counsel for the wholesale food division of the Merchants & Manufacturers Association. Since suspension of the daily reports, McCarthy had told the Senate committee, "the small businessmen affected have been seriously handicapped in their legitimate operations."

In answer to the oft-heard claim that Baltimore market prices are similar to those here, one leading local merchant pointed out that Baltimore markets are "primarily auction places whereas we are principally service and delivery wholesalers. The prices shown in Baltimore are not necessarily a true reflection of Washington prices."

WHO'S WHO TODAY: Miss Ethel W. Hurst was honored yesterday on the occasion of her tenth anniversary as an officer and director of Petrol Teminal Corp., one of the largest independently owned and operated refineries. Reelected as a vice president, assistant treasurer and a director of the firm, she was presented with a silver service set at ceremonies in Baltimore. Prior to May of last year, Miss Hurst also was vice president and treasurer of the Petrol Corp., now a Cities Service subsidiary, which served 30,000 customers in Washington, Philadelphia and Baltimore. She is regarded as one of the ablest executives in the oil industry.



Miss Hurst

STORE SALES: Despite a 6 per cent decline in May, Washington department store sales in the first five months this year showed a 3 per cent increase over the same 1947 period. Regionally, stores in the Fifth Federal Reserve District showed a 1 per cent drop in May and a 4 per cent upturn for the first five months. The figures, reported last night by Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, include six Washington stores and 91 for the region.

RECORD OUTLAY: A record five-year outlay of 400 million dollars for new utility properties will be made by Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago, the company told the Securities and Exchange Commission. SEC experts said the proposed spending was the largest on record for a company of this type. The company disclosed it plans to go into the capital market to raise about 175 million dollars. Of this sum, the company will offer in the near future an issue of 50 million dollars of first mortgage bonds due June 1, 1978. The registration statement, which covered the 50-million-dollar issue, said the company had not yet decided when it will raise the additional 125 million dollars or what type of securities will be offered.

UTILITY OFFERING: A new issue of one million shares of Pacific Gas & Electric Co. 5 per cent redeemable first preferred stock, $25 par value, will be offered at $26.50 a share and accrued dividends. The offering is by Blyth & Co. and associates. Proceeds from the sale will be used to retire bank loans totaling 12 million dollars and to finance, in part, the company's construction program.

ODD LOTS: An exchange of information on latest techniques and developments in use of low-pressure plastics was conducted yesterday at the seminar of the Society of the Plastics Industry, Inc., in Statler Hotel. Government and industry representatives attended the session which will continue today . . . American Locomotive's annual two-week vacation shutdown has been extended an extra week because of material shortages and plant bottlenecks . . . Blaw-Knox Co., through an exchange of stock, will acquire the Foote Co., Inc., of Nunda, N. Y., makers of road building equipment . . . E. V. Young, vice president of the Washington tobacco firm of G. W. Cochran Co., Inc., has been named State councilor by the National Association of Tobacco Distributors . . . Delco radio division of General Motors Corp. plans construction of a new building covering 100,000 square feet in Kokomo, Ind.

Tuck Appoints 6 Members of Welfare Board

Richmond, Va., June 29 (AP).—Governor Tuck today appointed a six-member State Board of Welfare and Institutions, and named two advisory committees to assist it in general supervision of the State's reorganized welfare and correctional programs.

The 12 appointments followed by less than a week the Governor's designation of Col. Richard W. Copeland to serve as acting director of the Department of Welfare and Institutions. With these appointments, basic organization of the new department is complete.

Tuck also has disclosed that former State Senator William A. Wright will head the new expanded Department of Conservation as director.

Members of Board

The Welfare Board will include Alderman James D. Patton, jr., a member of Richmond council; former State Senator John J. Wicker, jr., also of Richmond; Charles C. Louderback, Page County, retiring member of the House of Delegates and chairman of the House Appropriations Committee; former State Senator James Hoge Tyler 3d, Norfolk; M. W. Armistead 3d, Roanoke, former secretary of Commonwealth, and Mrs. Mary Frances Rogers Hartz of Waverly, daughter of former State Senator W. O. Rogers, now treasurer of Sussex County.

The committees include State Senator Charles R. Fenwick of Arlington, the Rev. J. J. Scherer of Richmond, and Ernest N. Townes of Petersburg, as an advisory committee on public welfare, and Clyde H. Ratcliffe of Richmond, Marcus A. Cogbill of Chesterfield, and State Senator A. E. S. Stephens of Smithfield, as an advisory committee on corrections.

The three members of the Public Welfare Committee were chosen from membership of the present State Board of Public Welfare. Similarly, the Corrections Committee is made up of members of the State Board of Corrections.

Virginia's new reorganization program contemplates that department directors are to take over all administrative and executive functions. The Burch Commission, which studied reorganization problems, urged strongly that Virginia get away from government by boards, except for the ABC Board and the Highway Commission.

Conservation Commission

Governor Tuck also named 13 members of the new Conservation Commission, whose decisions will be administered by the department director.

They are C. S. Carter of Bristol, Lewis E. Lichford of Lynchburg, Edward W. Lauck of Luray, Jay W. Johns of Charlottesville, Lee Paschall of Richmond, Shelton H. Short of Chase City, Andrew A. Farley of Danville, Victor W. Stuart of Petersburg, Rodney M. Coggin of Warsaw, H. E. Lively of Lebanon, Joe H. Watkins of Charlotte Courthouse, Ralph E. Dorsey of Berryville, and House Speaker G. Alvin Massenburg of Hampton.

Governor Tuck also named five members of an Advisory Committee on Ports. They are H. V. C. Wade, director of the Port of Norfolk; Harry A. Keitz of Newport News, State Senator Benjamin T. Pitts of Fredericksburg, Clarence J. Robinson of Alexandria and William McC. Paxton of Norfolk.

Spanish War Veterans Pick Cook as Head

Portsmouth, Va., June 29 (AP).—Harry B. Cook of Winchester today was elected commander of the Department of Virginia, United Spanish War Veterans, at the final business session of the department's annual encampment. Cook, who was unoppesed, succeeds Thomas J. Cousines of Richmond.

Other officers elected included Hugh S. Reid of Norfolk, senior vice commander, and Charles C. Moss, Newport News, junior vice commander.

Appointed to office by Cook were: R. C. Wymer of Staunton, chief of staff; L. T. Matthews, Richmond, adjutant quartermaster; S. C. Hutchison, Petersburg, assistant adjutant and service officer; G. V. Kromer, Roanoke, inspector; Rossano, Portsmouth, judge advocate; Marion Summers, Norfolk, chaplain; L. E. Wingfield, Lynchburg, patriotic instructor; C. B. Emmons, Alexandria, historian; Charles L. Dean, Newport News, travel director; B. F. Stewart,, Petersburg, graves registrar; W. A. Martin, Richmond, senior color sergeant; George H. Davis, Richmond, junior color sergeant, and R. W. Tuck, Richmond, marshal.

The 1949 encampment will be held at Winchester.

Maryland Acts To Get Labrot Tract Option

Annapolis, Md., June 29 (AP).—The State Board of Public Works voted today to take the first step toward taking over the land for a Sandy Point State Park.

Governor Lane appointed a three-man committee to work out a short-term option on a 725-acre tract along Chesapeake Bay.

Opponents of the park site have argued that for the State to accept the land would put the Navy "in an awkward position" toward acquiring the same property for a Naval Academy airport.

It was also disclosed at the board meeting that William H. Labrot, who has offered the park site, had added another 175 acres to the tract originally offered.

Labrot's latest offer increases the proposed park area to approximately 725 acres.

He set a price of $10,000 on the new tract. Previously he had offered 150 beachfront acres at $150,000 and said he would donate 400 more.

Lane appointed Attorney General Hall Hammond, State Engineer John B. Rink and Director Joseph M. Kaylor of the Department of Forests and Parks to negotiate an option with Labrot.

The State will go over the land thoroughly, the Governor said, to determine the status of properties on the fringes of the park area and what dredging and other improvements will be necessary.

Advertising Firm Under New Name

The new name of "Fletcher D. Richards, Inc." was announced yesterday for the advertising firm formerly known as Campbell-Ewald Co. of New York, Inc. The change was revealed in a joint statement by Henry T. Ewald, chairman of the board, and Fletcher D. Richards, the company's president since its formation.

Richards

Fletcher D. Richards, Inc., will continue the business of the New York agency and will also continue to occupy the 10 Rockefeller Plaza offices.

Henry T. Ewald, president of Campbell-Ewald Co., with headquarters in Detroit, said the new New York offices of Campbell-Ewald Co. will occupy the entire fourteenth floor at 1 East 57th st., New York.

New York Cotton

New York, June 29 (AP).—Cotton futures closed 70 cents a bale lower to 40 cents higher today. Trading was slow, with the market influenced by evening-up operations in nearby July.

There were 11 additional July transferable notices issued which stimulated some liquidation in early dealings. In later trading increased mill buying and short covering encountered limited offerings and July temporarily reached a gain of $1.10 a bale.

After the close of trading the Department of Agriculture announced the mid-June cotton parity was 31.12 cents a pound, up 12 points from the May figure and in line with trade expectations. This would point to a loan on the 1948 cotton crop of 30.47 cents a pound, basis middling 1-inch cotton, compared with 1947 crop loan 27.94 cents. The actual loan on the next cotton crop will be based on the mid-July parity.

Maryland Tobacco

Upper Marlboro, Md., June 29 (AP).—Prices dropped today for a large number of grades on Southern Maryland tobacco auction markets. Most losses ranged between $1 and $4 a hundred pounds.

The United States Department of Agriculture and Maryland's Department of Markets said that practically all grades of heavy crop showed declines and that tips and seconds also were down.

Quality also was down, and sales volume was reported as fairly light.

Monday's net auction sales totaled 448,506 pounds for an average of 44.45 a hundredweight. This was a gain of 2.15 over last Friday. Season net auction sales were brought to 17,387,104 pounds for an average of 43.41.

Some of today's grade changes:

HEAVY CROP—Fine cherry red, $62, down $1; good cherry red, $59, down $1; fair cherry red, $48, down $1; low green, 11.25, down 3.50.

TIPS—Fair greenish, 18.50, unchanged; fair green, $11, down 50 cents.

SECONDS—Good cherry red, $59, unchanged; fair cherry red, $49, down $3; low red, 24.50 down 50 cents.

Tuck Refused Documents in Kaiser Probe

By The Associated Press

The Securities and Exchange Commission investigation of the Kaiser-Frazer stock case brought an angry dispute yesterday about whether the collapse of the 10-million-dollar stock deal was preceded by a "collusive" lawsuit.

The commission is investigating the cancellation of a banking agreement to sell a Kaiser-Frazer stock issue. On February 9, Otis & Co. of Cleveland and the First California Co. of San Francisco withdrew from a contract to sell 900,000 shares of the motor company's stock.

Yesterday's principal witness was James F. Masterson, a Philadelphia lawyer and owner of 300 shares of Kaiser-Frazer stock. On February 9, the day the stock deal was to have been closed, Masterson filed a suit in Detroit. The suit alleged that the issuance of additional Kaiser-Frazer stock would impair the company's finances.

Charles Walton, a Kaiser-Frazer attorney, has told the commission the suit was "phony."

Attorneys for the two banking firms have testified the suit was the ground on which the stock sale was canceled.

The dispute over the Masterson suit broke out when Masterson refused to produce various documents requested by the commission and refused to testify on certain points. He said he based his refusal on lawyer-client privilege.

Milton Kroll, SEC presiding officer, ruled there was no basis for privilege.

"It is the commission's view," he said, "that evidence shows prima facie the suit was a collusive suit which could be a fraud and we are attempting to get an explanation."

Kroll's statement brought an angry protest from Lemuel B. Schofield, another attorney for Masterson. He asked whether the commission had reached a decision on "what the fraud consists of."

"We deny this, of course," he said. "Can the commission show against whom the fraud was attempted? Fraud against whom? I'd like to know and think the public ought to know."

Kroll and Schofield debated the point heatedly.

Later David V. Martin, attorney for Masterson, took the stand. He refused to produce documents subpenaed by the commission and declined to answer some questions. Like Masterson, he said to do so would violate the lawyer-client privilege. The hearing adjourned subject to further commission action.

'Tame' Zoo Bear Chews Off Arm Of Boy Feeding It

Peoria, Ill., June 29 (AP).—A 250-pound black Himalayan bear, Tuffy, today chewed off the arm of a 12-year-old boy who was feeding the animal.

Witnesses said John Dickerson climbed a 3-foot fence outside the cage of Tuffy and Babe, Glen Oak Park's two black bears. He was feeding grapes to Tuffy through the bars when the animal grabbed his arm.

A concessionaire, A. B. Eads, grabbed a cane from an onlooker, jumped the fence and stuck the cane in the bear's mouth, forcing it to release the boy.

Firemen and zoo keepers played fire hoses on the bears for 45 minutes to retrieve the severed arm from the cage.

Zookeeper Dick Houlihan said the bears, whose diet has always been vegetarian, had been considered very tame.

Floodlights Ordered for W-L Stadium

Arlington School Board last night awarded an $11,245 contract to install floodlighting in the Washington-Lee High School Stadium.

Meeting at James Monroe School, 2300 Key blvd., Arlington, the board gave the contract to Low Bidder Eugene W. Zimmerman, Alexandria electrician.

Zimmerman said 120 15-watt flood lamps would be installed on nine poles by September in readiness for night athletic contests.

Acting School Board Chairman Mrs. Edmund Campbell said the cost would be self-liquidating within three years from proceeds of school athletic events.

The school board also announced that a new, larger library at Hoffman-Boston School for Negroes also will be completed by September. The old library is being consolidated with an unused adjacent room to form a modern library with all facilities.

Dual Highway Project Bid Is $1,220,878

Baltimore, June 29 (AP).—The State Roads Commission today opened bids on grading, drainage and surfacing of slightly more than a mile of the proposed Baltimore-Washington dual highway between the Patapsco River and Hammonds Ferry road. Wilmoth Paving Co. of Washington, D. C., bid $1,220,878.70.

Planes Will Fly in Monument Parade

Planes representing all sectors of the Department of National Defense will fly over the parade route on Saturday when Washington begins its three-day celebration of Independence Day and the 100th ananiversary of the laying of the Washington Monument cornerstone.

The parade begins at noon and will be followed by addresses at the Monument Grounds by President Truman and Secretary of State George C. Marshall. On Monday, the celebration will be brought to a close with a band concert, program and fireworks at the Monument Grounds, starting at 7:45.

Tickets for seats at the Centennial observances at the Grounds, $1, including tax, are on sale at all Peoples Drug Stores, the major hotels, the D. C. Information Center, 11th and Pennsylvania ave. nw., GSI Snack Stands, and the Trailer-Booth in front of the District Building.

Potomac Churches' Aid Work Lauded by Adventist Elder

Elder Warren N. Wittenberg, director of home missionary and welfare work of the Potomac Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, yesterday commended the conference's churches for their part in the denomination's seven million dollar overseas reconstruction and relief budget.

Addressing delegates to the conference at Takoma Park, Wittenberg said gains had been made in gifts of money and that many tons of food and clothing had been given by the 50 churches in Virginia, Maryland and the District of Columbia.

Members reported 76,000 missionary visits during the last two years, he said, and 25,000 persons enrolled in home study Bible courses.

Delegates to the conference were told by C. H. Smith, publishing secretary, that gospel colporteurs have sold and delivered $180,000 worth of religious and health books and magazines during the biennial period, and that 20 students last year earned college scholarships by the sale of literature.

Today at 8 p. m. in the Sligo Church, Elder Ned S. Ashton will speak on "The Power of the Gospel".

On the Town

WITH the heat bounding from hot to hotter, the Shoreham terrace has been doing business. Barnee, the terrace maestro, says that last Saturday saw nearly 1700 people come in and leave the terrace from opening to closing time. Some of the things that draw the crowds besides the heat are the "gimmicks" that Barnee has instituted since he took over there many years ago. When a notable or friend dances by the stand Barnee pops a gardenia into the hands of the lady, and, of course, there are the favorite songs of notables, plus the happy birthdays and wedding marches that the boys play on occasion.

The show out there this week consists of a dance team called Pierce and Roland, a better than average couple. They're quite enjoyable. The Shyrettos are the other half of the floor show. They're a trio who have built an act around the use of unicycles and bicycles. The act lends a carnival air to the place with its balancing and rhythm. They manage to put on a drunk act while balancing on the top of 8-foot-high unicycles.

The Sheraton lounge, foster home and alma mater of the transparent skirt, has started using walkie talkie radios. As soon as we heard we wondered the same thing you're probably wondering right now. "What in the world could they be using a walkie talkie for?" Well, comes the rush hour and all the tables are filled and waitresses are running around trying to fill orders to keep the customers happy. Hostess Ann Mazur then just whips out her trusty walkie talkie, approaches a table, finds out what the folks' pleasure is and starts sending out signals to the bartender who also has one of these little gadgets. Then by the time the waitress can make it to the bar the drink is ready. Next innovation will probably be a seeress who can tell what you want to drink as soon as you enter the place.

Tonight and tomorrow night will be the last times to see Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong and his sextet at the Bali. They've been there for several weeks playing to large crowds, but will soon be off to fill future bookings.

There'll be an opening in town tonight. After many postponements the Colony restaurant, across from the Mayflower, will open. The spot is going to be a better class dining place featuring all sorts of different foods. Paul, the headwaiter who has been around town for more years than he cares to tell, will be there greeting the guests.

Two Extra Nights Set To Handle Voters

Alexandria's central registration office will remain open two evenings this week to handle the late rush of voters expected to register in time for participation in the August primaries. The deadline is Saturday.

Registrar Fred Petitt said his office will remain open tonight and Friday night from 7 to 9. The office will close at 1 p. m. on Saturday, Petitt warned.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

MR. JAKE MINTZ, who has a wonderful name for a fight manager and is, was the guest of the Variety Club yesterday. They introduced him triumphantly to the sports-writing press and radio men and announced that Jake's man, Ezzard Charles, would fight Jimmy Bivins at Griffith Stadium on August 2, for the club's charity fund.

POVICH

Mr. Mintz is important in fistic matters at this time. As manager of Charles, he has the hottest piece of fistic merchandise extant, unless it is Gus Lesnevich, the light-heavyweight champion. The Variety Club is well pleased by its stroke of fortune in getting Charles' name on a contract to fight Bivins with Mintz as co-signer. They think they have the first match in the elimination tournament aimed at finding Joe Louis' successor as heavyweight champion.

The fight did take on some stature yesterday when it got the blessings of the National Boxing Association's president, Abe J. Greene, who announced it would be recognized as "an NBA championship elimination bout." Mintz was pleased, the Variety Club was pleased, and so was Leonard Shane, Bivins' manager, who also inked the papers and proclaimed his man as the coming champion of the world.

A MONTH AGO, Mr. Mintz was evincing great interest in Gus Lesnevich's light-heavyweight title and daring Lesnevich to meet his man, but he is no longer concerned with the light-heavy diadem. "Lesnevich can take his title to the five-and-ten and cash it in," said Mr. Mintz. "It's peanuts now with the heavyweight title open. We won't settle for anything less than the title Joe Louis has given up."

His man Charles is the most sought-after puncher at this time, though not necessarily by other guys with title ambitions. "Chicago wants us, Pittsburgh wants us and Mike Jacobs want us," said Mintz grandly "and we'll fight once a month if they want me to prove Charles is the best heavyweight in the country."

Charles was just another light-heavyweight, albeit a pretty good one, until last winter when he attained national notice by one of the shortest cuts to notoriety the prize ring offers. He killed a man—Sam Baroudi—in a Chicago fight, with body punches, and his future as a ring attraction brightened. Even as Max Baer became an attraction after killing Frankie Campbell in the ring several years back, Charles zoomed into fame.

NO LESS THAN Joe Louis has given the Variety show a plug, even before he knew the match was made. During his training for the Walcott bout last month, Louis observed that "the No. 2 heavyweight in the country is Ezzard Charles and he ought to be fighting for the title pretty soon."

That was a new tack by Louis, who a couple of years back announced as his opinion that "Bivins is the best man among the challengers and could be a champion if he wasn't so lazy." It was a compliment to both Bivins' boxing skill and punching ability. But that was two years ago. Bivins hasn't cut any great swathe since in the heavyweight division, and the other night he blew a disputed decision to Archie Moore.

But it's a match that Variety went all-out to get, and could do well with. Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Baltimore wanted it, but when Variety managed to swing NBA recognition behind the winner both Mintz and Shane capitulated. Clark Griffith is donating his ball park gratis for the show. Variety's 45 per cent of the net will go to Children's Hospital and its other pet charities.

BIVINS AND CHARLES have met before—three times. The outcomes have been fairly significant, stamping Charles as a new title threat and Bivins as fading contender. Bivins beat him by a decision five years ago in their first bout at Cleveland when an upcoming Charles was smartly outboxed. Three years later at Pittsburgh, Charles got up off the floor to win a decision. Last year, back in Cleveland, a mature Charles stopped Bivins in four rounds.

Charles' record can withstand close scrutiny. In six years as a pro, discounting his three years of Army service in Africa, he has lost only three fights. The last man to beat him was Elmer Ray. He has licked everybody else who would fight him. He's no come-lately to the boxing business. In three years as an amateur he won all of his 42 fights, and two national amateur middleweight titles. Mintz latched onto him last year with the help of Art Rooney, the Pittsburgh big shot, who helped finance the purchase of his contract.

For both Charles and Bivins this could be the biggest fight of their careers. The winner will rocket to the forefront of contenders for Louis' vacated title. Bivins, himself, is only 28. He's been losing ground as a heavyweight but the quickest way for any contender to recoup is by beating Ezzard Charles at this time.

Newhouser Loses Duel To Feller, Tribe, 6-2

Detroit, June 29 (AP).—Fireballer Bobby Feller of the Cleveland Indians showed his oldtime form today as he scattered eight hits while beating the Detroit Tigers and Hal Newhouser 6 to 2.

Feller, who fanned eight men and walked only two, was given a five-run lead by his hard-hitting teammates in the first three innings. From then on, he seldom was in trouble as he coasted in with win No. 7 as against eight losses.

The game, billed as a pitching duel between Feller and Tiger Ace Newhouser, was turned into a slugfest by the Indians as they drove Newhouser to the showers in the third inning, scoring three runs.

Manager Lou Boudreau paced the Cleveland attack with three hits in four times up. His first wallop was a first-inning homer with one man aboard and got Feller off to a flying start.

Chisox Near 7th, Beat Browns, 4-1

St. Louis, June 29 (AP).—The Chicago White Sox moved closer to trading places with the Browns in the American League cellar by downing the St. Louis club, 4 to 1, behind the seven-hit pitching of Bill Wight tonight. Dave Philley homered in the third inning with a man on base.

The victory put Chicago two and a half games behind the Browns who have been dropping steadily after starting the season in the first division.

Olympic Oar Trials Today

Princeton, N. J., June 29 (AP).—The elite of the country's eight-oared shells—nine colleges and two independent clubs—begin the four-day Olympic rowing tryouts tomorrow and when the final returns are in at around dusk Saturday, the United States team will be decided.

The entry list is headed by the University of Washington, which under the direction of Al Ulbrickson, will be seeking to duplicate the sweep it made on the 1936 Olympic trials. The Huskies won the Poughkeepsie Regatta last week, and will be the favorites.

Battling Washington for the right to represent the six United States in London, will be six college rivals which finished in its wake at Poughkeepsie—Cornell, Navy, California, M. I. T., Princeton, Wisconsin, Harvard and Yale. The Wyandotte (Mich.) Boat Club and West Side Rowing Club of Buffalo, N. Y., will round out the entrants.

Four heats will be held during the first day, with the winner of each automatically qualifying for the semifinals on Friday. Thursday's competition will consist of the Olympic repechage heats in which all the losers of the first day's trials will be thrown together for another chance. The winners will move on to the semis.

The semifinals will eliminate all but three of the entrants, which will meet in the finals Saturday.

Dallmar New Penn Court Coach

Philadelphia, June 29 (AP).—Howard Dallmar, star guard of the Philadelphia Warriors of the Basketball Association of America, has been named head basketball and baseball coach at the University of Pennsylvania.

Dallmar, whose appointment was announced today by Dr. E. Leroy Mercer of the department of physical education, succeeds Don Kellett as head basketball mentor and Horace Hendrickson as baseball coach. He will take over his new duties September 15.

Bivens, Charles Sign to Fight Here August 2

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Gleeful spokesmen for the Variety Club yesterday let it be known that Washington will be the scene of the first elimination bout in the scramble for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown, with Ezzard Charles and Jimmy Bivins the principals in an August 2 scrap at Griffith Stadium.

A $100,000 gate was predicted for the charity show in which Bivins, the No. 2 contender for the heavyweight title, meets "the hottest article in the fight game today." Charles is rated No. 1 in line for Gus Lesnevich's light-heavyweight mantle.

Timely sanction of the bout by the National Boxing Association was forthcoming from President Abe J. Greene. It follows:

"The first contest in this series (to determine Joe Louis' successor) and recognized by the NBA as a championship elimination bout will be a contest between Ezzard Charles of Cincinnati and Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland to take place at Griffith Stadium in Washington on August 2."

Charles, it was revealed, will receive 30 per cent of the August 2 gate, and Bivins 25 per cent.

Copromoters with the Variety Club will be Mrs. Florence Turner and Gabe Menendez, who turned over their August 2 date for the bout. Variety Club charities will lose nothing of the proceeds for stadium rental. Clark Griffith having donated the use of his park free.

Charles, who will rate the favorite, has met Bivins three times since 1943, losing the first scrap and getting a 10-round decision and four-round knockout in the next two. His last outing was a victory over Elmer (Violent) Ray.

Bivins somewhat spoiled advance publicity on the August 2 battle by dropping a 10-round split decision to Archie Moore in Baltimore Monday night.

Newspaper accounts of that affair, however, claimed Bivins wasn't treated too well on the verdict, having knocked down his foe in the fourth round and held his own in all but 3 of the 10 rounds.

Variety Club officials called the bout a "natural" and Jake Mintz, manager of Charles, could hardly contain his impatience to start the tournament that may lead to the heavyweight championship.

"We are willing," he said, "to fight one or 10 to prove that Charles is the best in the world. We don't want the title handed to us, we want to fight for it."

Brecheen the Loser

Schmitz Hurls Four-Hitter As Cubs Spank Cards, 4-1

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—Johnny Schmitz, hooking up in a brilliant slab duel with Harry "The Cat" Brecheen, interrupted the first-place drive of the St. Louis Cardinals here today when he hurled the Chicago Cubs to a 3-1 triumph before 17,158.

The lanky Cub southpaw doled out only four hits as he registered his seventh victory against eight losses. The lone run by the Cardinals came on the first of a pair of doubles by Enos Slaughter in the fourth inning and a single by "Nippy" Jones.

That represented the only scoring in the game until the sixth when Brecheen, who had allowed only two hits previously, suddenly weakened. He was tagged for five straight hits after retiring the first two men and the Cubs pushed across all three of their runs.

Two Collegians Tie for Medal

Palo Alto, Calif., June 29 (AP).—Setting a new joint record, Gardner Dickinson, jr., of Louisiana State University and Morgan Fottrell, San Jose State, became co-medalists of the 1948 National Collegiate golf tournament today, each with a 36-hole medal score of 139.

The leaders cracked Stanford's par in flashing second-round scores, Fottrell carding a 34-35—69 and Dickinson finishing later with a 35-33—68. Par for the links test is 36-35—71.

Fottrell had 70 yesterday and the Louisiana State star, 71.

The old qualifying record was 142, established in 1941 by Earl Stewart of Louisiana State and tied the next year by Dick Haskell of Northwestern.

Second low in the medal was Lou Stafford of the University of Oregon, who coupled a 35-34—69 to yesterday's par 71 for a 140.

Phils Rally in 7th, Beat Dodgers, 2-1

Brooklyn, June 29 (AP).—A two-base muff by Centerfielder Carl Furillo followed by a double by Dick Sisler and a single by Andy Seminick gave the Philadelphia Phillies two runs in the top of the seventh, enough to defeat the Brooklyn Dodgers tonight, 2-1. Blix Donnelly was the winner and Ralph Branca, who had won seven straight, the loser.

Del Ennis opened the seventh with a high fly which Furillo lost briefly and then dropped as he lunged for it. It was a two-base error. Sisler then doubled to tie the score and after Eddie Miller sacrificed, Seminick lined past Bill Cox for the winning run.

Mark Drives Four Home With Homer, Triple, Single

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, June 29—Everybody was talking about the weather here tonight, but only Mark Christman did something about it.

With a home run, triple and single, he cooled off the Athletics, batting the Nats to a 5-3 victory.

Christman enjoyed his hottest night of the season on the hottest day Philadelphia has experienced in 52 years.

He accounted for every Nat run in the victory which boosted the Nats into fifth place, his personal batting average 19 points and which also dropped the Athletics into third place.

A crowd of 11,455 came out to see the Macks try to win their eighth straight game and for the first two innings they and Early Wynn were getting a big bang out of proceedings.

All for Wynn

Wynn, in fact, was jolted so hard that he came out of the game in the second when the A's rocked him for another run to bounce into a 2-0 lead. Eddie Joost staked them to a 1-0 advantage in the first inning when he tagged Wynn's first pitch for his tenth homer of the year.

Christman, however, entered the scene in the third inning and the beginning of the end for the Mackmen was being readied. The 34-year-old Nat short fielder reduced the deficit by one run with his first homer of the season. In his next effort against Starter Phil Marchildon, in the fourth inning, Christman swatted a two-run triple and scored a run himself. They got him out in the sixth inning, but he was his old devilish self again in the eighth when he singled in the fifth Nat tally to call it a night, and what a night.

Now Batting .252

Christman entered the game with a puny .233 batting average. When his evening's work was over, he owned a .252 mark.

His hefty slugging saved Wynn from his eighth loss and placed another game in the win column for Reliefer Earl Harrist who worked five scoreless innings before the A's solved him for their third run in the eighth.

Taking no chances, Manager Joe Kuhel yanked Harrist at this point in favor of Tom Ferrick who finished up. Harrist allowed only three hits in his six-inning stint, but walked four. He's won three and lost none for the Nats with his relief work, giving the former Chisox chucker an overall mark of 4-3.

Long Time to Win

Marchildon, touched up for three of the Nat hits and four of their runs, was charged with his sixth setback. He hasn't won a game since May 27 when he beat the Nats in Griffith Stadium.

Vernon, who got two of the six Washington hits, was on second and Gillenwater, who drew one of the seven walks Marchildon issued, was on first when Christman swatted his triple in the fourth. Jake Early's fly brought Christman home.

Vernon scored again in the eighth, romping in on Christman's single after singling and stealing second himself.

Wynn Out in 2nd

The Macks got Wynn out with a three-hit outburst in the second which accounted for their second run.

Pete Suder singled Elmer Valo home and when Eddie Joost also singled, Wynn went out in favor of Harrist.

Hank Majeski touched him up for a double in the third, but from then until the eighth Harrist was their master. Two singles and a walk produced the Macks' third run and also Ferrick. He walked Suder to load the bases, but fanned Rudy York to end the round. The Macks got two more singles off him in the ninth, but couldn't score.

Bogley Gains Quarterfinals, Wesley and Yates Ousted

Charlottsville, Va., June 29 (AP).—All eight seeded entries won third round matches today to move into the quarterfinals of the national interscholastic tennis tournament.

George Gentry, of La Jolla (Calif.) High School, seeded first, used his backhand power to sweep past Clyde Barker, of Exeter Academy, 6—0, 6—1.

Heading the other bracket, Gilbert Bogley, Washington's Landon School seeded No. 2, gave a polished exhibition to win over Tom Lawyn of Scarsdale (N. Y.) High School, 6—3, 6—2.

Tony Trabert, of Walnut Hills High School, Cincinnati, upheld his No. 3 ranking by taking another straight set victory, this one over Jack Yates, of Landon School.

Ernest Dubray, No. 4 from Lowell High School, San Francisco, downed Alan Fischl, of Exeter Academy, 6—3, 4—6, 6—3.

Steve Potts, Darlington school's No. 5 selection from Memphis, Tenn., had the most strenuous afternoon of the seeded players before he finally got by Dick Squires, of Hill School, 6—0, 3—6, 6—4.

Bill Charlie Devoe, of Park School, Indianapolis, seeded sixth, won his third round match against Ed Wesely, of Georgetown Prep, Washington, after a shaky start, 10—8, 6—0.

Seventh seeded Bill Long, of Newtown High School, Elmhurst, N. Y., won straight sets from Don Kaiser, Male High School, Louisville, Ky., 6—2, 6—4.

In the doubles competition, Landon's Bogley and Yates, the top seeded team, won a first round match from Alan Goldstein and Sam Shragowitz, of North high school Minneapolis, 6—1, 6—2.

George Heyer and Dave Shibly, of Exeter Academy, were extended before they finally dropped Bobby Cabell, jr., and Waller Horsley, of St. Christopher's, Richmond, Va., 6—4, 4—6, 6—4.

Cecil North and Dick Stewart, of Milton Academy, defeated Walter Schnyder and John Poster, of LaSalle Military Academy, 6—1, 6—4.

It's a Fine Thing

Even the Bat Boy Gets Heave Ho by This Ump

Salisbury, Md., June 29 (AP).—Jeepers! Now they've given a batboy the old Heave Ho in the fractious little Class D Eastern Shore baseball league.

Umpire Marty Vogel did it in a fracas between the Salisbury Cardinals and the Dover Phils.

His victim was 13-year-old Paul Murrell, round-eyed, freckle-faced batboy for the Cardinals.

"I'm sorry now, I guess," said Paul after he was sent to the showers along with Gene Corbett, 1941 International League batting champion who is managing the Cardinals.

"But," said Paul, "I still think Ted Zaharczyk was safe at home in the ninth when Mr. Vogel called him out.

"I was mad, that's all. And Mr. Gene really blew a fuse.

"All I said to the ump was: 'get in the game and keep your eyes open.'

"The next thing I knew I heard the umpire tell Mr. Gene to get off the field and take his batboy with him."

"It won't happen again. I'll just grin at those umpires from now on. But Ted was still safe on the play. Everybody in the park knew it but the umpire.

"What are they going to do to me —fine me, throw me off the squad?"

There's an automatic $5 fine for being tossed out of a Shore League game.

New York, June 29 (AP).—Left Ed Lopat gained his fourth straig victory for the New York Yanke tonight, shutting out the Bost Red Sox, 7-0 on three hits whi the Yankees clubbed three Bost pitchers for 14 safeties befo 70,941 fans.

The triumph moved the wor champion Yankees into secon place, 6 percentage points ahe of the Philadelphia Athletics, wi lost to Washington, and one gan behind the front-running Clev land Indians.

Lopat, in hanging up his sixt victory, gave his best performanc since the Yanks acquired him la spring from the Chicago Whi Sox. No Sox runner was able t reach second base against th stylish southpaw.

The Yanks got their final pa in the eighth off Maurice McDe mott on a pass to Rizzuto, a tw base wild pitch, a passed ball, an Tommy Henrich's eighth home ru

Nine Americans Qualify for British Open

Thomson, Stranahan Lead Way

Muirfield, Scotland, June 29 (AP).—Nine American golfers, led by long-hitting Jimmy Thomson, stayed in the running for the British open golf championship today by qualifying for the last 72 holes of medal play.

Aging Henry Cotton, the British money player, paced 97 survivors through the 36-hole qualifying tests with a pair of sparkling 69s for a total of 138.

Nearest to him, with scores of 140, were Roberto de Vicenzo, 25-year-old Argentine pro, and Ulsterman Fred Daly, the defending champion.

The top qualifying score of 152, which 178 players in the original field of 275 failed to reach, was the lowest in the history of the British open. Previous low was 153 in three different championships, including the last one at Muirfield in 1935.

Stranahan Has 145

Frank Stranahan of Toledo, Ohio, the British amateur champion, successfully advanced his bid for the "little slam" of golf by qualifying with 70-75—145.

Thomson, a professional who was born near this Muirfield course, needed 75 strokes today but his 68 of yesterday carried him to a 143, best among the Americans.

Other American qualifiers and their scores:

Lawson Little of Cleveland, Ohio, 70-74—144.

Capt. Ed Kingsley, leading Utah amateur, 72-72—144.

Arthur Clarke, Huntington, W. Va., professional, 71-73—144.

Claude Harmon of Mamaroneck, N. Y., winner of this year's Augusta Masters Tournament, 73-72—145.

Bulla Has 148

Johnny Bulla, Phoenix, Ariz., 71-77—148.

Charles Rotar, Canton, Ohio, pro now an Army sergeant in Germany, 72-76—148.

Bobby Cruickshank, veteran Virginia professional, 76-76—152.

Four other Americans, all amateurs, failed to qualify. They are Bob Sweeny, jr., of New York; 1938 British amateur titlist, 77-78—155; Chris Dunphy of Westbury, N. Y., 79-76—155; Frank Tatum, jr., Rhodes scholar from Los Angeles, 75-86—161; and Ross Thompson of Uniontown, Pa., who withdrew after shooting an 86 yesterday.

All the qualifiers will start with clean slates tomorrow because their qualifying scores do not count toward the championship total. They play 18 holes each tomorrow and Thursday.

Schaeffer Changes Offenhausers

A switch in machines will be necessary for Driver "Dutch" Schaefer of Long Island when he enters Friday night's midget auto program at Lanham Speedway.

Schaefer cracked up his No. 6 Offenhauser recently and has reverted back to the No. 62 golden job he drove up until a year ago.

A total of nine Offenhausers, plus several Fords, will be in competition Friday.

President Says

Proposed Sale Won't Affect Woodmont Club Membership

Woodmont Country Club members are in no danger of having their memberships pulled out from under them because of the Federal Government's planned purchase of the club site, Woodmont President Arthur Sundlun said yesterday.

"Negotiations are under way, but the land has not been sold yet," said Sundlun, "and even when it is sold, we won't have to pull out suddenly. We'll have several years, probably three, in which to ease out.

"When the land is sold, Woodmont will investigate a new site, and the club will be reconstructed there," Sundlun explained.

The latest rumors of Woodmont sale came after Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing announced that the Government is entertaining construction bids on the proposed National Institute of Health, which will be built on the west side of Rockville pike, opposite the Naval Medical Center, and on the lands now occupied by Woodmont and the Rev. G. Freeland Peters.

Gene Larkin, golf pro at Woodmont, said yesterday that he had received no notice that the course would be moved. "In fact," he said, "we just opened nine new holes Memorial Day, 1947. Of course, we had no idea then that the club might be sold."

Mrs. Meckley's 78 Ties Record

Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood's No. 1 woman player, shot a 40-38—78 yesterday and captured low gross honors in the Class A field day event sponsored by the Women's District Golf Association at Kenwood.

Her score tied a course record for women's competition at Kenwood and highlighted the program given in honor of her championship team.

Another feature of the day was a hole-in-one on the No. 4 hole by Mrs. C. L. Egensoud of Washington Country Club. But Mrs. Egensoud was out of the running with a 93 score.

Low net laurels went to Mrs. George Bailey of Washington with 84-9—75. Trailing her were Mrs. George Martin of Manor with 86-10—76, and Mrs. Rex Howard with 82-4—78.

The Class B field day at Manor produced Mrs. Fred Chaimison of Prince Georges as the low net champion. She had 89-14—75. Low putts went to Mrs. Jack Howard of Belle Haven with 28.

Leading contenders for low net prize were Mrs. John H. Bullock of Kenwood, 94-15—79, Mrs. C. F. Anderson of Manor, 90-10—80, Mrs. John Myers, Congressional, 99-19—80, and Mrs. M. Meehan of Belle Haven, 94-14—80.

Fleitas Leaves For Washington

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 29 (AP).—Angel Fleitas, Cuban shortstop for the Chattanooga Lookouts of the Southern Association, left today to join the Washington Senators, Lookout President Joe Engel said.

Fleitas was batting .354 for Chattanooga, farm club of the Senators, when he was called up for major league duty.

Dodgers Send Bragan To Manage Ft. Worth

Fort Worth, Tex., June 29 (AP).—Bobby Bragan is being sent to the Texas League by Brooklyn to manage the Fort Worth Cats. He replaces George Dockins, who has been acting skipper since June 22, when Lester Burge was fired after a season and a half of leading the Cats. Bragan, 30-year-old infielder-catcher, will be a playing manager.

D. C.'s Martino Qualifies for Publinx Play

Baltimore, June 29 (AP).—Five Baltimoreans and a Washingtonian qualified today for the National Public Links golf tournament to be held in Atlanta, Ga., July 19-24.

They headed a field of 56 competitors in a 36-hole sectional qualifying event at the Mount Pleasant Public Links.

Ed Finnessy of the host club shot a one-under-par 73-70—1943 for medalist honors.

Patrick Martino of Washington and Bill Cole of Mount Pleasant were tied for second with 145's.

Cole shot a 69 in the morning round and then slumped to a 76 in the afternoon. Martino reversed the Cole score. His morning round was made in 76 strokes and, despite the intense heat, he shot a three-under-par 69 in the afternoon.

Henry de Fries and Frank Michalek, with 147's, and Billy Collins with a 150, were the other qualifiers.

Washingtonian scores:
Tracy R. Foust, no card; Hughes Johnson, 79, 73—152; William C. Wetzel, 81, 81—169; Marshall C. Smith, 84—withdrew; Earl Lee Marcey, 78, 73—151; Sam J. Parks, 84—withdrew; Frank C. Battista, 85, 87—172; Julian N. Williams, 79, 82—161; Thomas W. Swenk, 79, 86—165; Radford Burney, 87, 77—164; Jack Ferguson, 81, 83—164; Meredith N. Stiles, jr., 87, 77—164; William D. Wolfe, 84—no card; Alfred Birmingham, 84, 80—184; Maurice B. Barsotio, 77—no card; W. S. Sikes, 83, 85—168; Milton G. Wolfe, 83, 84—167; Harold N. Wolfe, jr., 95, 95—190; Joseph V. Kotvan, 80, 79—159; Roger Martino, 75, 78—153.

Others' scores: James L. Grace, 81—withdrew; Joseph Abood, 87—withdraw; Thomas Demon, 85, 85—170; Richard Pullen, 86, 86—172; Thomas Cunningham, 89—withdrew; John B. Cronin, 75, 78—153; Walter Greiner, 78, 73—151; William Leapley, 77, 78—155; Andrew J. Oliveri, 70—no card; Dr. Walter Panowski, 77, 74—191; Wilbut Beay, 85—withdrew; George O. Laurel Races Washed Out

Laurel, Md., June 29.—A downpour, coming shortly after the conclusion of tonight's first race, washed out the seventh night of the Laurel Raceway harness program. Some 4,500 fans were on hand.

A total of $7028 was wagered on the first race, a mile trot for 2-year-olds and up won by Ashcroft Hanover, the odds-on favorite, owned by H. W. Reich of Winston-Salem, N. C., and driven by the veteran Jim Britt. The victor paid $4.40, $2.80 and $2.20, while Royal Blue, driven by Ellis Myer, was second to return $3.20 and $2.60, with H. M. Case's Rancocas, driven by the owner, third to pay $2.60.

Wright Wins 4th in Row In Johnson League

W. B. Wright Real Estate Co. ran its Walter Johnson 12-and-under league winning streak to four yesterday with a 16-0 win over Wimsatt-Jarden at Chevy Chase Playground. Dick Lightfoot pitched a one-hitter and hit a grand slam homer and double to lead the attack for the winners.

4 American Women Gain Semifinals

London, June 29 (AP).—Playing in pneumonia weather, America's "big four" of women's tennis slugged their way into the Wimbledon semifinals today without losing a set.

Louise Brough of Beverly Hills, Calif., hardest hitter of the group, played only four games before her opponent, Shirley Fry of Akron, Ohio, turned an ankle going after an errant serve and was carried from the court. Miss Brough was leading, 3—1, when the default came.

Mrs. Margaret Osborne duPont of Wilmington, Del., the defending champion, beat Mrs. Jean Nicoll Bostock, best of Britain's women, 7—5, 6—3.

Doris Hart Wins

Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., crushed Mrs. Nellie Landry, the French champion, 6—0, 6—2, and Mrs. Pat Canning Todd of La Jolla, Calif., outplayed Jean Quertier of Britain, 6—2, 6—4.

In the semifinals on Thursday, Mrs. duPont will play Miss Hart and Mrs. Todd will renew an old rivalry with her fellow Californian, Miss Brough. Miss Brough and Mrs. duPont will be favored to reach Saturday's final.

An X-ray of Shirley Fry's swollen ankle at a Wimbledon Hospital showed there was no break and she returned after several hours to watch the matches. A women's doubles test in which she was to have played with Mrs. Mary Arnold Prentiss of Los Angeles was postponed until tomorrow on the off chance the ankle might heal overnight.

Four Mixed Doubles

A pair of unseeded American women, Barbara Scofield of San Francisco and Mrs. Helen Pedersen Rihbany of Boston, produced the day's best upset by defeating Mrs. Betty Hilton and Mrs. Kay Stammers Menzies of the British Wightman Cup team, 4—6, 7—5, 6—2. That victory put them in the quarter-finals.

Frank Parker of Los Angeles and Bob Falkenburg of Hollywood, favorites in men's doubles, looked the part in slamming Franka Kukuljevic, a naturalized Indian, and Vlidimir Vodicha of Czechoslovakia, 6—1, 6—2, 3—6, 60, to go into the semifinals.

Falkenburg, when not clowning, was deadly at the net. Their semifinal opponents will be the promising new Australian combination of Jack Bromwich and Frank Sedgman. The Aussies bashed the Italian Davis cuppers, Gianni Cucelli and Marcello Del Bello, 6—3, 6—1, 7—5.

Riegel Medalist In Western Golf

Wichita, Kans., June 29 (AP).—National Amateur Champion, Robert (Skee) Riegel, waded around the muddy Wichita Country Club course in one-under-par 70 in the opening qualifying round of the Western Amateur Golf Tournament today.

His medal score was one stroke better than the figure posted by young Lawrence Glosser of Oklahoma City and Eugene Zuspann, Goodland, Kans.

Len Walsh Heads Board At Armory

Attorney Leonard P. Walsh yesterday was elected chairman of the three-man Armory Control Board.

Walsh, appointed third member of the board by chairmen of the Senate and House District Committees, was voted the chairmanship by Commissioner John Russell Young and Brig. Gen. Albert L. Cox, commander of the D. C. National Guard, at the board's first meeting at the armory.

Following the closed meeting, Commissioner Young told reporters no manager had been selected to handle promotion of nonmilitary use of the armory. He said a manager "might" be named at the board's next meeting, scheduled for Tuesday at 2:30 p. m.

In general, Young said, the board agreed to continue the present policy of permitting sports events and exhibitions at the armory, making efforts to "increase the number of events and the attendance."

Both General Cox and Young said no decision had been made concerning salary for the manager. Young is known to favor a $10,000 salary, while Cox, although he's expressed general agreement on the figure, has indicated he is considering the possibility of paying the manager a percentage of the net receipts from armory functions.

Leading candidates for the job, it was revealed, included Jack Espey, former Washington Redskins and Baltimore Colts general manager; Col. Waldron E. Leonard, director of the District's Veterans Service Center; Col. Harold Livingston, former Uline Arena manager; Brook (Untz) Brewer, former Maryland University football star; H. C. Rising, chief engineer and superintendent of Statler Hotel; Thomas N. Rosa, local theater manager; Ray C. Alvis, boxing manager and promoter and former head of a local amateur hockey organization, and Shipley D. Burton, Washington representative for a national paint association.

How Happy, Busy Moose Second, Third

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., June 29. Her Highness, a 5-year-old mare, treated the favorite players royally today.

Performing in the colors of E. C. Gott, jr., she scampered to the wire four lengths in front of her closest rival in the field of eight.

Her Highness, a cast-off from the Brookmeade Stable and bred just over the Shenandoah Mountains from here, led every jump of the way in the test of 6 furlongs, plus 120 feet, dubbed the Goodman Purse.

In second position came Mrs. J. Rogers' How Happy to be a length in advance of J. M. Trapnell's Busy Moose.

The winner, the choice throughout the wagering, returned a $4 mutuel and was clocked in 1:16 4/5 over a fast track but under threatening skies. Jockey Carlos Martinez rode the mare as she accounted for her second purse in a row.

Her Highness in Command

Her Highness shot out of the starting gate and took command going to the first turn, several horses being caught in a speed jam at the bend. Busy Moose finally settled into second position and made several attempts to get to the leader.

How Happy rallied under strong handling after early trouble and came along in time to force Busy Moose into third position but the son of Happy Argo could not menace the winner.

Favorites turned in victories in each of the day's purse events. Sammy Palumbo rode W. C. Ensor's Count On to victory in the fifth race at $4.40 mutuel and S. H. Hall's Outcome took the seventh at $4.60 under Jockey Pat O'Brien's riding.

Double Pays $69.40

The daily double on the combination of 7 and 4 returned a $69.40 mutuel. Jockey Woodrow Kirk won the first race with Dr. H. B. Langdon's Some Moose, a $11.40 shot. The second went to Mrs. L. Main's Say Sandy which led all the way under the direction of Apprentice R. D. (Rural Delivery) Jones and paid $7.

The longest winning margin of the meeting came in the fourth race when Mrs. N. L. Brown's King Brand galloped home 15 lengths in front of his closest chaser in the mile and a quarter event. King Brand paid $13.80.

Hank Ford Wins Golf

Hank Ford, 13-year-old from St. Albans School won the first weekly Junior Field Day flag tournament with handicap yesterday at the Columbia Country Club's golf course.

Young Ford advanced as far as the trap on the twenty-third hole before using up his net and handicap scores. Other winners, according to their age groups were: Bob Halcombe in the 18-20 age group, Jim Bogley in 16-17, and Ed Burnut, 15-16.

Winners in the pitching competition were David Wolfe, 14-15, and Jim Bogley, 16-17. Charles Janssen of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High turned in an eagle on the par 4 second hole. His tee shot went 325 yards, and his 100-yard approach shot was perfect.

Best net scores were turned in by Halcombe, an Anacostia High lad, with 75, and Johnny Walker, Jay Wolfe and Alan Weisburg, who each had 76s. Before the tourney began, Columbia's veteran pro, Freddy McLeod, gave a 30-minute lecture on pitching trap shots and putting.

Next week's field day is slated for Tuesday at Georgetown Prep. It will consist of the qualifying tournament for the Junior Board of Commerce national schoolboy competition which takes place in mid-August in Lincoln, Nebr.

Ryan Wrestles For Title Tonight

Rosy Red Ryan, Philadelphia challenger, will make his bid for the wrestling championship against titlist Frank Sexton at Turner's Arena tonight at 8:45.

Tonight's semi-windup is a two-man team affair that brings together George Bruckman and Farro Rinaldo against the Marvin Mercer-Benito Gardini combination. Other bouts match George Flynn with George Macricostas and Hans Kampfer against Joe Kamaroff.

Cameo Defeats Heurich Nine, 6-4

Each Score Three Runs In 9th Inning

Cameo and Heurich each scored three runs in the ninth inning, but Cameo, with a two run head-start, emerged a 6-4 victor yesterday in a Washington Post-Industrial League game on the West Ellipse.

Jerry Zanelotti's three hits for Cameo accounted for two runs, and offset triples by Joe Wapinsky and Joe Acquilino of Heurich. The win moved Cameo, first half champion, into a tie for second place in the second half race.

Rancourt Wins Skate Title

Ronald Rancourt of Hartford, Conn., skated away with the novice men's free-style champion last night in the second round of National roller skating competition at the National Arena.

Butler was awarded first place by all five judges to gain the lowest possible total of ordinals, or points, 10. Doug Milne of Plymouth, Mich., was runner-up with 11 points and Bob Rottner, Norwood, Ohio, was third with 18.

Joann Schnsiper and Larry Bicknell of Norwood, Ohio, set the pace in the juvenile dance finals with another fine performance of five points. Charlotte Roeder and Wayne Smith of Pkymouth, Mich., tied the sister-brother combination of Ruth and Frank Henrick of Mineola, N. Y., for second place with 15 points.

Standing room only was in order last night as an overflow crowd of 800 looked on and at least 400 spectators were turned away.

Seven events are scheduled for the third day of the Nationals at the 17th st. and Kalorama rd. rink today.

The schedule:

8 a. m., Novice dance, first elimination; 2 p. m., Novice dance (second elimination); 4 p. m., Junior men's figure skating; 6 p. m., Novice dance (semifinal); 10 p. m., Junior men's free-style; 10:30 p. m., Novice dance finals; 11 p. m., Speed skating.

Kavakos Plays At Stadium

Kavakos Grill, Washington's entry in the American Softball League, will face two of the best softy hurlers in the Nation Saturday when it meets up with Jim Chambers and Roy Stephenson of the Grumman Yankees in a 2:30 p. m. doubleheader at Griffith Stadium.

Chambers has won eight in a row this season, two of his victories being no hitters. During one 19-inning stretch, he had 43 strikeouts.

Norvel Lee, D. C. Heavy, Upsets Olympic Favorite Wallace

Boston, Mass., June 29 (AP).—Norvel Lee, Washington, D. C., heavyweight sprang the most stunning upset of the U. S. Olympic boxing finals tonight as he outpointed tournament favorite Coley Wallace of New York in the semifinals at the Boston Garden.

Bantamweight William Bossio of the U. S. Navy and Pittsburgh tonight pounded out a unanimous decision over Mickey Mars of Cleveland, Ohio.

In reaching the finals and thus assuring himself a position on the Olympic team—at least as an alternate—Bossio was never in serious trouble against the Cleveland representative.

Another Navy fighter, James Quinn, of New York, lost a close decision to National Amatuer champ, Frank Sodano of Philadelphia, in a bruising semifinal flyweight bout.

The bout was rated about even at the end of the second round though Quinn drew blood from Sodano's nose midway through the second.

Sodano was dropped for no count in the second and third but he recouped each time with slashing rights to the head.

Though the southpaw Quinn dropped Sodano in the second, the national champ was far from out of the fight. He returned to his feet and hurt Quinn with roundhouse rights and short lefts.

Quinn was so exhausted toward the end of the battle, he resorted to clinching to keep from running into Sodano's prospective haymakers.

Navy Boxer Horace Herring, of St. Petersburg, Fla., moved to the finals by winning a split decision over Maurice Harper, Oakland, Calif., in the semifinal of the welterweight class.

"Television put on a great show... LIFE-NBC ran off with the honors"

—John Crosby, N.Y. Herald-Tribune

Last week, LIFE Magazine completed one of the most exciting weeks it has ever spent, televising the Republican Convention with the National Broadcasting Company.

John Crosby, exacting radio critic of the New York Herald-Tribune, had this to say about "television's greatest event:"

"Television put on a great show . . .

"LIFE Magazine and NBC, which . . . teamed up for the event . . . easily ran off with the honors, both in programs and in a technical sense.

"The LIFE-NBC team seemed beautifully organized, knew where —with some exceptions—it was going from minute to minute and succeeded in luring an impressive number of the more important people in front of its cameras.

"Its kinescope films were remarkably clear and well edited . . . were shown to the . . . audience so skillfully that one might easily get the impression he was seeing the actual convention."

50 of LIFE's editorial staff teamed up with NBC's commentators, cameramen and technicians. Such star NBC commentators as Ben Grauer, John Cameron Swayze and Bob Stanton, along with LIFE's editors, helped pioneer a new kind of television journalism.

For the members of LIFE's journalistic team this was a rewarding and memorable experience—an experience which will be put to good use when LIFE and NBC televise the Democratic Convention in July.

LIFE-NBC coverage of the Convention included exclusive interviews with all leading candidates, the first press conference ever televised, visits to campaign headquarters, roaming the streets with NBC's mobile unit, and many other exciting behind-the-scenes events.

Seven network stations carried the full LIFE-NBC show, while nine other stations showed film resumés.

The pictures below, taken directly from the television screen, are only an indication of the tremendous scope of the LIFE-NBC coverage of this historic event.

In pre-Convention telecast, Vandenberg blasts Truman for first time, as . . .

"Room 22" is being readied for exclusive LIFE-NBC interviews.

Gov. Duff was first, queried by LIFE's Sid Olson about Pennsylvania delegation.

LIFE's Laybourne hears rosy predictions from campaign aides like Dewey's Sprague.

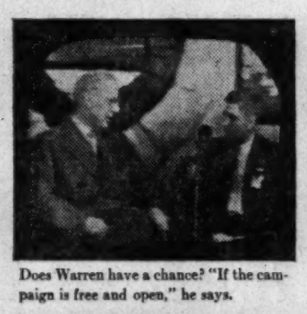
Specially prepared "March of Time" films supply enlightening background.

Stassen tells LIFE's Jim Bell why he thinks he'll win on 9th ballot . . .

. . . and Taft tells LIFE's Jack Beal he and Dewey are only real candidates.

Sen. Martin reveals he'll receive first ballot vote as Pennsylvania's favorite son.

Driscoll switching to Dewey? Millstein of Time-LIFE fires probing questions.



Does Warren have a chance? "If the campaign is free and open," he says.

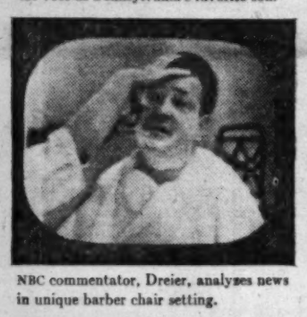
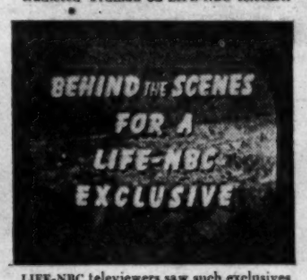
Time-LIFE's McNaughton discusses Vandenberg with Michigan leaders.



NBC commentator, Dreier, analyzes news in unique barber chair setting.

Jeff Wiley plies Dulles on availability as Secretary of State . . .

. . . and at tea with Clare Boothe Luce, candidates' wives talk feminine shop.



LIFE-NBC televiewers saw such exclusives as . . .

. . . dramatic Dewey press conference . . . first ever televised.

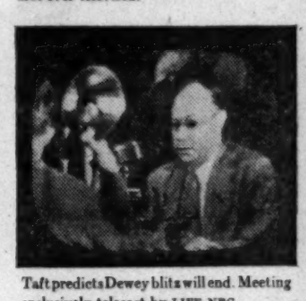
Where's that cherrywood mallet? He'll use it later, but now Joe Martin speaks.

At crucial moment, Sid James of LIFE holds exclusive interview with Sen. Martin.

Tears welled into Herbert Hoover's eyes as he heard pre-speech applause.

Shortest GOP platform in history is described by its moulder, Sen. Lodge.

Sen. Saltonstall admires own likeness as he and Sen. Townsend are interviewed.



Taft predicts Dewey blitz will end. Meeting exclusively telecast by LIFE-NBC.

Did GOP Congress do a good job? One of LIFE-NBC films reviewed the facts.

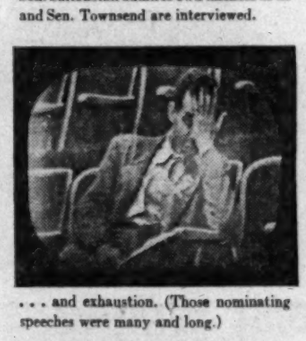
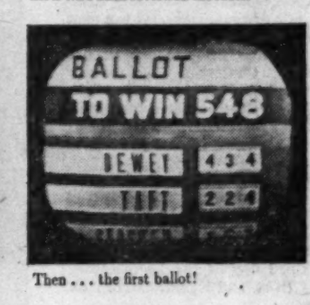
George Murphy leads demonstration following nomination of Gov. Warren.

There was celebration . . .



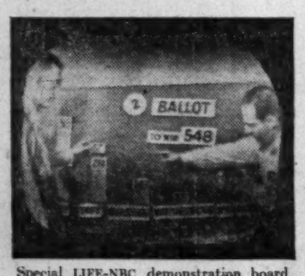
. . . and exhaustion. (Those nominating speeches were many and long.)

Kansas City Star Publisher Roy Roberts discusses strength of nominees.



Then . . . the first ballot!

Mobile TV unit picks up much carnival Convention atmosphere.



Special LIFE-NBC demonstration board provided graphic tabulation of votes.

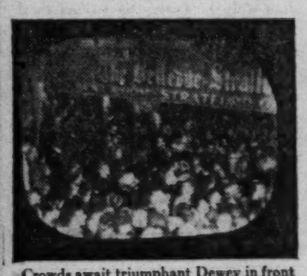
The winner—with No. 1 admirer!

"I accept the nomination."



Crowds await triumphant Dewey in front of Bellevue-Stratford . . .

Only LIFE-NBC was there televising that dramatic moment . . .

Warren, friendly to Dewey's concept of vice-presidency, accepts nomination.

War Assets Expected To Begin Major Layoff Series Within Few Days

WAR ASSETS must make a series of major layoffs and undergo sweeping reorganization within a very short time.

Tentatively, it's planned to fire 16,000 of its 20,000 employes by February 28. In this city, its 2,000-man staff would be cut down to about 500 by that time.

This is a schedule of layoffs that is subject to change:

To give 30-day layoff notices to 40 per cent of its employes, or 8000 of them, within the next few days. The hope is to get out the notices so they will go into effect no later than July 31;

To give layoff notices to 10 per cent of the remaining employes the middle of August, and

To give discharge notices to another 10 per cent about September 1.

Layoffs would then continue gradually until February 28, when WAA is scheduled to be liquidated and its activities and skeleton crew would be transferred to and divided among Treasury's Bureau of Federal Supply, the Air Force, and Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Congress ordered it.

The sharp reductions of force would be accompanied by the abolition of WAA field offices and a thoroughgoing streamlining of its work.

Meantime, WAA has urgently requested the Civil Service Commission to declare it a "liquidating" agency for reduction-in-force purposes. The commission yesterday was debating the suggestion. However, commission officials hinted the request would be granted on the condition that every precaution be taken by the agency to protect the rights of veterans and career employes.

If Civil Service declares WAA to be a liquidating agency as indicated, it means that career employes will not have reassignment rights; in other words, the privilege of bumping nonstatus employes out of their jobs. The retention point system also would have no meaning.

As a general rule, preference for the remaining WAA jobs would be in this order: career veterans, career nonveterans, war sefvice veterans, and finally and the first to go would be nonveteran war service employes. However, many career veterans and nonveterans will lose their jobs in offices in activities that will be abolished.

WAA is holding up the first big batch of firing notices until it receives definite word from Civil Service on whether it's to be declared a liquidating agency. Civil Service has promised an answer by today. Notices to about 8000 employes will follow shortly thereafter.

Meantime, layoff notices to several thousand WAA employes will go into effect today. These discharges will bring the agency's staff down to 20,000 and it will make a total of 8000 people reduced in the past three months.

CIO's anti-Communist faction yesterday launched a campaign to organize Federal workers with the knowledge and apparent approval of President Philip Murray.

For the past several years Government workers have been under the jurisdiction of CIO's left-wing United Federal Workers.

Six locals that withdrew from the UFW because of its left-wing policies were chartered by the Marine & Shipbuilding Workers, whose president is John Green, a militant anti-Communist. The locals claim a membership of 2000.

Two of the locals are in Pittsburgh and one each in this city, Milwaukee, Atlanta, and Hot Springs, S. Dak.

Morton Liftin, co-chairman of the new Government Workers Union, said that upwards of 5000 additional members had either dropped out or would drop out of UFW. He expects most of them to affiliate with Green's union.

Green emphasized that his union bars Communists from holding office — something the UFW does not do. He also explained his union was one of the first to bar Federal worker members from striking. Up until 1939, he said, his union had many Federal worker members and now he's giving them a chance to "return home."

In announcing affiliation of Government workers, Green said:

"I know of no group of workers in the United States who are more desperately in need of effective trade union organization than the employes of Federal, State and local governments.

"The Congress has just granted an inadequate wage raise which clearly discriminated against the vast body of Federal employes who lack an effective organization. By its action, the Congress has served notice that it will not recognize the rights of Government employes unless they are represented by an organization which can speak for them forcefully and on a Nation-wide basis."

Green said that Federal workers should have been given an $800 wage increase each. The Congress voted $450 to postal; $330 to classified, and nothing for District government employes.

Headquarters of the Government Workers Union is at 724 9th St. NW.

Pay Phone Blamed for Jail Break Ordered Out

Prince Georges Commissioners Told 10 Escapes Linked To Answering Calls

A telephone blamed for the recent prison break at the Prince Georges County Jail at Upper Marlboro was ordered taken out yesterday by Prince Georges County commissioners.

Deputy Sheriff R. Earle Sheriff, who spoke for Sheriff T. Ward Martin, who is ill, told the commissioners guards allowing prisoners to answer the telephone were largely the cause of 10 escapes during the past seven months at the jail.

Sheriff said the guards, in permitting the prisoners to go to the phone—a pay phone—without a police or guard escort, had been violating prison orders.

The commissioners directed the only telephone at the jail would be one automatically connecting the jail and police headquarters a block away.

The commissioners received $34,178.80 from Maryland's State Comptroller as the county's share in State racing revenue; awarded Waco Contracting Co. of Baltimore a contract for relocating Ammendale rd. to clear the Christian Brothers school near Muirkirk on a bid of $16,582; set July 10 as deadline for accepting applications for police examinations.

Waco Contracting Co. also received, on bid of $20,925, a contract for building two bridges on Woodmore-Mitchellville rd.; Charles E. Kern Co., also of Baltimore, with a $156,253 bid, a contract for repair and construction of 140 scattered miles of roads, and Corson & Gruman, 33d and K sts. nw., Washington, with a bid of $71,187, a contract for building LaSalle rd. between Queens Chapel and Chillum rds.

Bough Saves Girl From Spikes in Fall From Window

Five-year-old Sylvia "Twinkle" Ausbrook of No. 5 Logan Circle nw., leaned to far a third-story window at her home yesterday afternoon and fell 20 feet to the ground, suffering a possible fractured pelvis.

Neighbors said the child struck a tree bough on the way down, breaking her fall and preventing her from landing on an iron-spike fence. They said she had been tossing paper out the window and lost her balance.

She was taken to Children's Hospital, where officials last night described her condition as fairly good. Her mother, Mrs. Nina Ausbrook, has one other child, an infant boy.

Police Give Award of Merit To Safety Patrol Coordinator

Club Shooting Figures in Gaming Probe

One of Defendants In Brass Rail Case Questioned 25 Minutes

Although his attorney declared he would have "little to say," one of the two men involved in the five-month-old shooting at the Brass Rail yesterday was questioned for 25 minutes by the special grand jury probing gambling.

He is Charles Henry Nelson, 39, of 1803 H st. ne., who is indicted in a double-shooting with Henry M. Leake, 39, of 104 R st. ne. They have been charged with attempting to kill each other in an affray reputed to have a gambling background.

Nelson refused to comment to reporters. Both Nelson's attorney, Bernard Margolius, and Leake's attorney, Curtis P. Mitchell, have told reporters that neither defendant would give much testimony in the gambling probe, on constitutional grounds.

Leake May Be Recalled

Leake, who was previously summoned in the gambling probe but refused to testify, is expected to be recalled for questioning tomorrow.

Even if detailed testimony is refused, the special jury apparently is intent on getting into their record the two defendants' answers to the questions.

Other witnesses yesterday were Hazel Brown, a cashier employed at the Brass Rail, which is at 1739 7th st. nw., and Isadore (Shep) Shapiro.

Questions Brushed Aside

Shapiro, a tall, stocky, dark-haired man, wearing dark glasses, attempted to brush aside reporters' questions. Asked if that was his name, he admitted that, but refused to give any other information.

Meanwhile, a hearing scheduled for a man arrested by vice squad detectives who said they found $2690 on his person and a quantity of numbers slips, was postponed to today.

He is Irving B. Summers, 55, who gave his address as 1620 Fuller st. nw. Arrested Monday in the 3600 block of Georgia ave. nw., he was charged with operating a lottery and possession of lottery slips, and released on $1500 bond.

Montgomery Sued In Job Ouster Case

A former Montgomery County government employe who claimed he was ousted for political reasons yesterday sued the county commissioners to regain his position.

He is Alvie A. Moxley, 72, of Sellman, Md., who served as inspector of weights and measures abolished by the present board of commissioners on April 1, 1947. On October 15, of that year, the commissioners reestablished the post, appointing Wilfred E. Dayhof.

Moxley, a Democrat, claimed he was ousted by the Republican-dominated board of commissioners in violation of council civil service regulations.

Pvt. Brown of Eighth Precinct On Job 15 Years

For 15 years, Pvt. Charles W. Brown, 50, school boy safety patrol coordinator for the Eighth Precinct, has worked with youngsters, teaching them the rules of safety.

Yesterday, he received the Police Department's Award of Merit for May for the many hours he has spent untiringly, both on and off duty, in his campaign to protect young people.

Representatives of the school boy patrols, parent-teacher associations and citizens associations in the Eighth Precinct were on hand to honor him at an out-door ceremony at the station house.

Truscott Presents Medal

The award was to have been a surprise, but Brown learned about it accidently Monday when another policeman told him about it by mistake.

Brown received his bronze medal from Inspector Floyd Truscott, assistant superintendent of police.

He was recommended for the award by Capt. John E. Fondahl, his commanding officer, who received numerous letters praising the policeman's work, and by Inspector Arthur E. Miller, head of the Traffic Division.

Capt. Fondahl said in addition to the letters recommending Brown for the award, he has on file about 75 letters of commendation for Brown sent in by citizens over the years.

In addition to directing the safety patrols, Brown conducts classes for his boys on how to ride and maintain bicycles and on rules of the road. As a reward for their work during the year, he arranged for them to tour the Army Air Force facilities at National Airport last month.

Brown has been stationed at the Eighth Precinct since 1925. He resides with his wife and 17-year-old daughter at 729 Madison st. nw.

Members of the police force since 1925, they are Pvt. Irving T. Headley of 639 S. 20th st., Arlington, Va., and Pvt. Luther H. Gentry of Virginia Highlands, Va.

Both men were presented wrist watches from the men of the Eighth Precinct.

Ground Broken For Home for Aged At Gaithersburg

Ground was broken yesterday for Cassell Hall, the first of four new buildings to be erected at the Asbury Methodist Home for the Aged at Gaithersburg, Md.

Karl P. Meister, executive secretary of the general board of hospitals and homes for the Methodist Church, praised the home as "an example of safety, comfort and happiness."

Participating in the ground-breaking ceremony were Walter H. Davis, president of the board of trustees; Bishop Charles W. Flint, presiding Methodist bishop for the Washington area; the Rev. Herman M. Wilson, superintendent of the home, and Mrs. Wilson.

Driver Goes To Sleep, Trucker Dies

Vehicle Hits Tree, Overturns Near Mitchellville, Md., On Crain Highway

Edgar M. Coulby, 47, of Newburg, Md., was killed yesterday when his truck struck a tree and overturned on Crain hgwy. near Mitchellville, Md.

James A. Lewis, 22, of Rock Point, Md., driver of the truck, was charged with manslaughter and reckless driving by Prince Georges County Policeman J. P. Kearns. Lewis was being held at Upper Marlboro Station last night in lieu of $500 bond for his appearance Friday in county police court at Upper Marlboro.

Lewis told police he and Coulby, owner of the truck, had driven a load of hogs to Baltimore and were returning home about 6 a. m. yesterday when he fell asleep while driving.

The body of Coulby was taken to the Gasch funeral home, Hyattsville, Md., pending transfer to Calvert County.

Arlington Couple Hurt Critically in Traffic

Lynchburg, Va., June 29 (AP).—An Arlington couple was reported in "critical condition" at Jackson Memorial Hospital here tonight after the automobile in which they were riding was demolished in a head-on collision with a tractor-trailer truck about 4 p. m. today.

State Trooper R. E. Fergusion said John D. Hollinsworth, 28, and his wife were passengers in a car traveling north on Route 11 which was in collision with a van owned by the Mason-Dixon lines and driven by John R. McCully, 42, Indian Springs, Tenn.

McCully, according to Trooper Ferguson, said the tractor-trailer was traveling south and went out of control on the rain-slick pavement.

Skull Fracture Held Causing Woman's Death

Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, yesterday said Margaret E. Burch, 27, of 3028 Clinton st. ne., who died in Gallinger Hospital yesterday, met her death as the result of a cerebral hemorrhage from a fractured skull.

He said that from information given him by Prince Georges County police, he believed the skull had been fractured in an automobile accident at Point Lookout, Md., about ten days ago. Dr. MacDonald held up issuance of a certificate pending result of chemical analyses.

Miss Burch had been arrested Monday night on a disorderly conduct charge. At 4 a. m. Tuesday she was found unconscious by her cot at the Women's Bureau, bleeding from the nose and from a small cut on the back of her head. Transferred to Gallinger Hospital, she died two hours later.

Jury Exonerates Death-Car Driver

A Municipal Court jury yesterday declared Samuel G. Jordan, 32, of Baltimore, innocent of negligent homicide in the traffic death of atomic scientist, Dr. Leonard C. Miller, 33, of Oakridge, Tenn.

Dr. Miller was killed December 17 at Rhode Island ave. and North Capitol st., when his automobile collided with that of Jordan.

Jordan contended he could not avoid the accident since the traffic light was in his favor and he was traveling at a rate of less than 25 miles an hour. He admitted he had had a couple of beers during the evening before the accident, which occurred at 3 a. m.

Gunman Gets $60; Police Aided by Good Description

A nervous gunman made off with $60 from Jacob Horwitz, 58, 711 E st. ne., last night, but left police a clue that may trip him up—a good description of his face.

The thug covered Horwitz, a grocer, with an automatic and kept his face half concealed with his left hand at the same time. When a customer, Miss Marie Stephens, entered the E st. store, the robber dropped his hand and pretended to be examining merchandise. Grocer Horwitz got a good long look at him.

Miss Stephens left without realizing a holdup was in progress, followed shortly by the thief, Horwitz told police the robber was a white man, five feet, six inches tall, hatless and wore a dark brown sport shirt.

Nottingham NamedHead of License Office

Succeeds E. F. Bailey; Thomas Helan Gets Assistant Post

Chatham T. Nottingham, 33, was appointed superintendent of the District License Bureau yesterday by the Commissioners.

He succeeds the late Edward E. Bailey, jr., who was fatally stricken by a heart attack while golfing June 13. Nottingham, who received $4400 a year as Bailey's assistant, will make $5905 as superintendent.

Nottingham Helan

The Commissioners named Thomas A. Helan, 50, assistant superintendent at $4149 a year. Helan has been a $3773-a-year inspector for the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Nottingham went to work for the District in July, 1932, as a rodman in the Highway Department. He lives with his wife, Dorothy, and two children, Chatham, jr., and Candace, at 8314 Carey lane, Silver Spring, Md.

Helan, who has worked for the District since November, 1942, lives with his wife, Alma, at 5210 4th st. nw.

Lack of Funds Hits Use of Lawyers in Police, Fire Trials

The Commissioners' plan to substitute civilian lawyers for members of the city's legal staff on Police and Fire Department trial boards hit a snag yesterday —lack of funds.

Commissioner John Russell Young said the District auditor's office had informed the city heads that no money is available to pay lawyers the proposed $25-a-day fee for trial board service.

In view of this, Young said, the District Bar Association will be asked to set up a panel of 10 lawyers who would accept trial board service on a voluntary basis.

He said Special Assistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher, who is working out details of the proposed trial board reorganization, will contact the bar association concerning voluntary service. The Commissioners approved the civilian lawyer plan June 9.

County Rescinds Illegal Abolition Of Police Office

Commissioners Find Montgomery Post Is Mandatory Under Recent Law

After learning they had illegally abolished the post of county police commissioner three months ago, Montgomery County commissioners yesterday rescinded their action.

Restored to the $1200-a-year part-time job was County Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter of the Bethesda District.

County officials said the post had been abolished under a 1939 law that made the position optional. But yesterday, they said, it was discovered a new law enacted in 1943 made the post mandatory.

The error in abolishing the post was discovered after a county policeman was charged with drinking on duty by Police Chief Charles M. Orme. As a result of the charge, officials found the police trial board, which must hear the charge, was short one member as set out by law—the police commissioner.

Besides the police commissioner, police trial board members are Charles S. Lawrenson, county civil service commissioner, and J. Douglas Bradshaw, Takoma Park attorney.

The policeman charged with drinking on duty was identified as Pvt. Paul O. Federline, 31, attached to the Rockville headquarters as part-time police radio dispatcher.

According to the charge, Federline's police car was out of service two hours on June 25 while he allegedly accepted a drink at the home of W. O. Dosh, a county bondsman, in Gaithersburg. No date has been set for his trial board hearing.

The commissioners yesterday accepted the resignation of LeRoy Mullinex, also assigned to the Rockville station, who, police officials said, was on duty with Federline. Paul D. Burdette of Gaithersburg was appointed as a patrolman.

Disgust Expressed

Playground For Negroes Again Denied

The Commissioners yesterday denied for the second time a Recreation Board request to set up a playground for approximately 500 Negro children at the rear of old Dennison School, 1327 S st. nw.

The plan was attacked at a public hearing June 4 by businessmen who use the area bounded by 13th, 14th, S and T sts. as a parking lot. Some area residents also opposed it because they said it was an "alley playground."

Commissioner Guy Mason said, "I just don't like playgrounds in alleys." He said the Commissioners are "not ready" to demolish eight city-owned buildings on S st., which would have given children direct entry to the playground from the street instead of through the alley.

Mason said the Recreation Board would be asked to make another search for a suitable playground site in the mid-city area.

Harry S. Wender, Recreation Board chairman, who previously had told the Commissioners the S st. area was the only one available, said he was "just disgusted" at the Commissioners' decision.

Group Formed To Fight Press Restrictions

Maryland State, Prince Georges County and Montgomery County Press Associations yesterday announced formation of a Maryland-wide joint committee to fight proposed restrictions on crime-news reporting.

Glenn T. James, president of the State Association; John W. Coffman, jr., president of the Montgomery Association, and Phillip J. Austensen, president of the Prince Georges Association, will serve as joint chairmen.

Austensen said the committee will meet "within a short time" to lay plans for its campaign.

Restrictions which would, among other things, prohibit publication or broadcast of any facts about a crime coming to light after arrest of a suspect or any official from giving out information about a case after such arrest have been proposed by the standing committee on rules and procedures of the Maryland Court of Appeals.

Named to the joint committee yesterday, with other appointments probable, were:

State Senator P. G. Stromberg of Howard County, publisher of a string of Maryland weekly newspapers; Blair Lee 3d, editor of the Maryland News; G. Bowie McCeney, publisher of the Laurel News-Leader; Joseph L. Brechner, general manager of the Radio Station WGAY, Silver Spring; Joseph M. Mathias, editor of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Tribune; Charles A. McAleer, Maryland reporter for the Washington Star; Samuel A. Wyvill, editor of the Enquirer-Gazette at Upper Marlboro; John Worthington, Bel Air, publisher of The Aegis; George Roderick, publisher of the Valley Register, Middletown; E. N. Jackson, jr., general manager of the Capitol Gazette-Press, Annapolis; Oscar L. Morris, publisher of the Salisbury Times; Norman Harrington, the Star Democrat, Easton; Ralph Hostetter, publisher of the Cecil Whig, Elkton, and Jack Culver, publisher of the Democratic Messenger.

Free Examinations In Chest Survey Will End Today

It's later than you think, was the message last night for Washingtonians who have put off getting their free examinations for tuberculosis. Leaders of the Washington Chest X-Ray Survey issued final warning that today provides the last opportunity for such service.

They listed the following X-ray stations as open for operations today:

1517 Wisconsin ave. nw., at Volta pl.; 7th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.; Woodward and Lothrop, 11th and F sts. nw.; Gayety Theater, 513 9th st. nw. (10 a. m. to 6 p. m.); 8th and H sts. ne.; Municipal Center, 300 Indiana ave. nw. (8:30 a. m. to 4:45 p. m.), and Tenley Circle, Wisconsin ave. and Yuma st. nw. (10 a. m. to 6 p. m.).

Also, 3445 Benning rd. ne.; Wisconsin ave. at M st. nw.; 4th and G sts. sw.; Connecticut ave. and K st. nw.; 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. (10 a. m. to 6 p. m.); 3117 14th st. nw., and Mt. Pleasant and 17th sts. nw. Unless otherwise designated, the hours are 9:30 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Jury Unable To Agree in Eviction Case

An Alexandria Corporation Court jury yesterday was unable to agree in the 10-month-old eviction fight between the Alexandria Housing Authority and Army veteran John M. Webster.

After a full day of testimony on the housing authority's appeal from a police court ruling, which permitted Webster to remain in his Cameron Valley home, the jury reported itself "hopelessly deadlocked" at 6:30 p. m., after an hour's deliberation.

Webster, 33, of 142 Williams st. in the war housing development, was first given notice to vacate last September, following his discharge from the Army.

The Housing Authority claimed the development was restricted to civilian and military personnel engaged in emergency war work at Fort Belvoir and contended Webster no longer qualified as a tenant.

Discharging the jury, Judge William P. Woolls indicated the case would be set for retrial in September.

Naylor Gardens Rent Hike Hearing Set for August 2

Public hearing of a request of 15 per cent rent hikes in 532 units of Naylor Gardens housing development at 30th st. and Naylor rd. se. will begin August 2, rent control officials announced yesterday.

Rent Control Examiner James G. Tyson will hear the case at 9:30 a. m. in the District Building Room, William A. Richardson, rent control secretary-docket clerk, revealed.

The rent increase request affects all apartments of the 532-unit development which are not both owned and occupied by members of the Veterans Cooperative Housing Aassociation, owners of Naylor Gardens.

Court Reveals Details of Broken Marriages

A father pleads for custody of his two young sons . . .

An elderly matron, white-faced and dignified, testifies her husband "loves another woman" . . .

Justice F. Dickinson Letts whipped through more than 10 in less than the same number of hours, adding the new totals to Monday's 21. More than 1400 cases behind, there should be more of the same today.

"When he returned from overseas," the slim young woman calmly told the white-haired judge, "he said he wasn't interested in being married anymore. . ."

A relative took the stand to corroborate testimony that she hadn't lived with her former GI husband for three years.

Within 10 minutes, Mrs. Margaret A. Braid, of 206 9th st. ne., was a free woman. She took her wedding vows in September, 1939.

James Thomas, a Government addressograph operator, patiently enumerated for the court the list of his expenses—$55 to "eat" each month . . . $7 for laundry . . . $10 payment on a new suit.

Justice Letts, eyeing the clock and mindful of his heavy docket, interjected:

"Let's get along."

In the end, Thomas was ordered to pay his wife, Mildred, 33, and attractive, $75 monthly. She also won a limited divorce and custody of their four children.

As the hearing ended, the woman's attorney, Ethelbert B. Frey, told the judge:

"If it's possible to bring them together I want to do it."

Mrs. Thomas of 1120½ Florida ave. ne., who works as a waitress, revealed later that her four children are living neither with herself nor her husband.

A Washington attorney, ill as the result of wartime injuries, asked the court to reduce alimony payments to his divorced wife so he "can go out and rehabilitate myself." The judge said okay to the plea—registered by Charles W. Proctor of 719 19th st. nw.

Gladys L. Griesbauer of Silver Spring, Md., an elderly matron, eyed her husband coldly and told how he "informed me he was in love with another woman—had been in love with her for six years . . ."

Already divorced, she was seeking $75 monthly support. She won $40. The couple had been married more than 25 years—had three children.

Area News in Brief

New Station House Low Bid $195,591

Bids for constructing the new Fourteenth Precinct Station House at 42d st. and Benning rd. ne. were opened yesterday at District Building.

Final tabulation of the bids was delayed because the District Building closed at 3 p. m. due to yesterday's heat. But a preliminary report indicated that Lee T. Turner, 3616 14th st. nw., was the lowest of seven bidders with a base bid of $195,591.

Director of Construction Archie Hutson has indicated that construction of the station house should begin within 30 days if the Commissioners find the bids acceptable. He said it will take approximately nine months to complete.

Meanwhile, the new precinct will begin operating in temporary quarters at Davis School annex, on H st. se., between 44th and 45th pls., at 8 a. m. Thursday.

Paderewski Honored

The seventh anniversary of the death of Polish Pianist Ignace Jan Paderewski was observed yesterday in a ceremony held in Arlington National Cemetery.

Paderewski's remains are in the Maine Memorial tomb, where a wreath was laid under auspices of the Polish-American Congress.

27 Juveniles in Court

A total of 27 juveniles came before Arlington's Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court during May, nine of them accused of larceny, statistics released disclosed. Seven others were brought in as runaways, five for traffic violations, three as incorrigible, two for disorderly conduct, and one as a neglected child.

Silver Spring Buses

Larger buses, with a seating capacity of 40 instead of 27, were placed on the Capital Transit Co. run between Silver Spring, Md., and downtown Washington yesterday.

The buses will leave from 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw., in Washington at the same times as before, but will now make the run each way in 28 instead of 32 minutes, a transit company spokesman said.

$19, Billfold Disappear

Mrs. Frances Simon, 2901 18th st. nw., had a very expensive interview with a job-seeker yesterday, she told police.

She said a girl came to her apartment looking for work. She sat down to talk to the girl. When the girl left she found she no longer had a brown leather billfold containing $19.

Registration Urged

Arlington's League of Women Voters yesterday reminded county residents who wish to vote in August 3 primaries to register by next Saturday, when the primary books close. The central registrar and registrars in Arlington's 24 precincts will sit from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday.

Special Communion

The Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., will mark opening of the Lambeth Conference of Anglican Bishops in London with a special celebration of the Holy Communion at noon Thursday.

Sixty bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church, including the Rt. Rev. Angus Dun of Washington, are attending the conference.

Prof. G. M. Wrong

Toronto, June 29 (AP).—Prof. George MacKinnon Wrong, 88, emeritus professor of history at the University of Toronto and father of Hume Wrong, Canadian Ambassador to the United States, died today.

Prof. Wrong was connected with the university for 35 years. He was considered the dean of Canadian history and was an authority on French, Canada and interimperial relations.

Sen. Jesus Lozada

Caracas, Venezuela, June 29 (U.P.).—Sen. Jesus Enrique Lozada, president of Zulia University and prominent jurist and writer, died today at Maracaibo. The government decreed three days of national mourning.

A few days ago the government offered Senator Lozada the presidency of the Central University in an effort to end the week-old students' strike over the institution's administrative setup.

Herbert A. Taylor

Little Compton, R. I., June 28 (AP).—Herbert A. Taylor, 71, vice president and general counsel for the Erie Railroad until his retirement two years ago, died today.

Monie Sanger, Civic Leader, Dies at 74

Monie Sanger, 74, retired assistant superintendent of St. Elizabeths Hospital and a long time leader in District civic affairs, died early yesterday at Emergency Hospital.

Mr. Sanger

Mr. Sanger was taken to the hospital late Sunday night following a heart attack. He had been under a doctor's care several years for a heart condition.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday in the Scottish Rite Temple, 2800 16th st. nw. Burial will be in Washington Hebrew Congregation Cemetery.

Born and educated in Washington, Mr. Sanger spent 40 years at St. Elizabeths Hospital, going there in 1906 in an administrative capacity. He retired two years ago as assistant superintendent.

Vice president of the Association of the Oldest Inhabitants of the District, he was also prominent in numerous other civic and fraternal groups. He was a delegate to the Federation of Citizens' Associations from Kalorama Citizens' Association and was a past member of the federation's executive committee.

He also was treasurer and trustee of four Scottish Rite bodies here, a thirty-third degree Mason, chaiman of the finance committee of Almas Temple, member of the Columbia Historical Society and auditor for the Supreme Council of Scottish Rite.

Mr. Sanger, who had lived at 1736 Columbia rd. for 27 years, took a bachelor of laws degree from Georgetown University in 1912 and a master's degree a year later. He had studied accounting and patent law, as well, and belonged to the District Bar. Although he never practiced in court, he was admitted to argue before the Supreme Court, according to his brother-in-law, I. Myer Lewenthal.

He began working as a bundle wrapper for a downtown department store when 13 years old and had become its chief sales auditor before joining St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Mr. Sanger is survived by a sister, Mrs. Jennie S. Lewenthal, and a brother, Harry J. Sanger, both of Washington.

Mrs. Helen D. Harvey

Chicago, June 29 (AP).—Mrs. Helen Daggett Harvey, wife of Byron Harvey, sr., chairman of the board of the Fred Harvey System, died last night after a stroke.

Daniel W. O'Donoghue Dies; Retired District Court Judge

Judge Daniel W. O'Donoghue, 71, retired District Court jurist, died yesterday at his home, 2303 California st. nw., following a long illness.

He retired from the District Court bench in October, 1946, and had been in poor health since.

Judge O'Donoghue served for 30 years as a practicing attorney here before his appointment as an associate justice of the old District Supreme Court, in November, 1931. Justice Richmond B. Keech succeeded him.

He was born October 15, 1876, the son of a Georgetown merchant who came to Washington in 1856 and was one of the first to answer President Lincoln's call for volunteers in the Civil War. He was 11 years old, one of eight children, when his father died. His mother, Mrs. Margaret Fitzgerald Line O'Donoghue, continued operation of the family's two Georgetown stores and lived to see her son forge ahead in law practice.

Honored by Georgetown U.

"Danny" O'Donoghue was graduated from Georgetown University Law School and won degrees there ranging through bachelor of arts, doctor of philosophy, bachelor of letters, master of letters and, in 1932, honorary doctor of laws.

Valedictorian of his class when he received his B. A. degree, his speech was interrupted when the school band struck up "Hail To The Chief" and President William McKinley entered to receive an honorary degree.

In later years, he obtained former President Theodore Roosevelt as a character witness for a client accused of perjury. The jury cheered when Teddy left the stand—and the defendant was acquitted.

But, generally, Attorney O'Donoghue was known more as a logical lawyer than a spectacular one. He practiced for 30 years after his admission to the District Bar in 1900, and was president of the District Bar Association in 1925.

Didn't Seek Judgeship

When selected by President Hoover to the court position, Mr. O'Donoghue was not generally regarded as a candidate for the judicial post, and had never held or sought public office. He succeeded the late Justice Frederick L. Siddons.

Judge O'Donoghue, in 1937, refused to consider an appointment to the United States Court of Appeals, maintaining he did not approve of promoting Federal judges from lower to higher benches. "An ambitious judge can hardly render impartial justice," he said.

At the time of his initial appointment, Justice O'Donoghue occupied the chair of equity, common jurisprudence and law pleading at Georgetown University, and had been on the school law faculty continuously since 1904.

He presided in District Court proceedings in the nationally famous trial involving Gaston B. Means, convicted of defrauding the late Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean in connection with the promised return of the kidnaped Lindbergh baby.

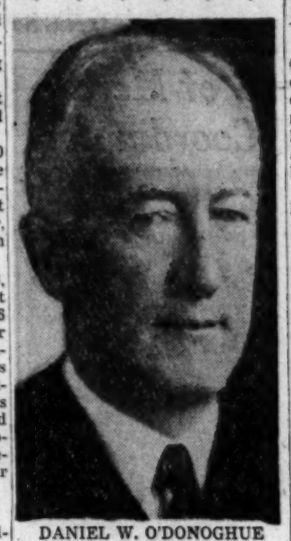
Headed Irish Relief

Justice O'Donoghue was a member of the Chevy Chase and Lawyers' Clubs, and once headed the old Irish Relief Association here. He also served as a member of the executive committee of the Union Trust Co. for many years.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Agatha T. O'Donoghue, whom he married in 1905; two sons, two daughters, a sister and six grandchildren.

The sons are Daniel W., jr., attorney and former member of the District Board of Public Welfare, and Paul T. O'Donoghue, attorney with the Justice Department antitrust division. His daughters are Sister Mary Virginia of the Sisters of Charity in Baltimore and Mrs. Eleanor Nealon, wife of Dr. Stephen W. Nealon, jr. The sister is Mrs. Martin A. Delaney, sr., of Alexandria, Va.

A nephew, Assistant United States Attorney Ross O'Donoghue, announced Justice O'Donoghue's death yesterday to the District Court. Chief Justice Bolitha J. Laws immediately ordered the minutes of District Court to show its adjournment yesterday in his honor. Justice Laws announced the membership of the District Court bench would sit in general term session today to honor the jurist.



DANIEL W. O'DONOGHUE
Was Washington native

Called Outstanding

Justice Laws declared the retired jurist "was not only outstanding for his ability and knowledge of the law, but for his unfailing kindness and courtesy to all who came before him."

A requiem mass will be celebrated at 10 a. m. Thursday at St. Thomas the Apostle's Catholic Church, 27th st. and Woodley rd. nw., by the Rev. Joseph Moran. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery.

All of the judges of the United States Court of Appeals and of District Court have been designated to serve as honorary pallbearers, as well as Dr. James A. Gannon, physician member of the Board of Education and lifelong friend of the deceased.

Other honorary pallbearers include: Dean Hugh J. Fegan of Georgetown University Law School; Harry R. Gower, Arthur H. McConville, George E. Hamilton, jr., G. Thomas Dunlap, Edwin Young and J. Spalding Flannery.

Mrs. Anna G. Shingler

Word has been received here of the death on June 20 in Heidelberg, Germany, of Mrs. Anna G. Shingler, mother of Brig. Gen. Don G. Shingler.

Mrs. Shingler who with her husband, the late Dr. John J. Shingler, Congregational minister, was a one-time Washington resident, had recently celebrated her nintieth birthday.

Since the death of her husband in 1919, she had accompanied her son on all his overseas and United States assignments except during the war years.

Mrs. Shingler was born in Hamilton, Ohio, and was the last survivor of a family of 10 children. General Shingler is her only son.

Funeral services were held in Heidelberg June 22.

Gould Dietz

Minneapolis, June 29 (U.P.).—Gould Dietz, 80, wealthy Omaha, Nebr., lumberman and aviation enthusiast, died of a heart attack today while breakfasting at the home of a niece near here.

Mr. Dietz came to Minneapolis for the annual convention of the National Aeronautic Association, of which he was a founder. He flew with Eddie Rickenbacker on one of the first air mail flights from New York to Cleveland. He also had flown with the late General William (Billy) Mitchell and General James (Jimmy) Doolittle.

Rev. John Tragesser

Baltimore, June 29 (AP).—The Rev. John Tragesser, oldest Catholic priest in the archdiocese of Baltimore, died today in Jenkins Memorial Hospital, where he had been an invalid since 1940. He was 86.

A native of Baltimore, Father Tragesser was ordained in 1888. Most of his assignments were in Baltimore churches.

Archbishop Francis P. Keough will be the celebrant of a requiem mass in the Jenkins Memorial Chapel Friday.

Oscar C. Hettler

New York, June 29 (NYHT).—Oscar Charles Hettler, 62, a retired traffic patrolman whose smile and genial manner won him a furnished home, valued at $40,000, in a popularity contest in 1924, died Monday night in Brooklyn Hospital.

Felix Du Pont, Industrialist, Dies at 68

Rehoboth Beach, Del., June 29 (AP).—A Felix duPont, sr., 68, director and former vice president of the E. I. duPont de Nemours Co., died at his summer home here today. He was stricken about a week ago and had been bedfast since that time.

DuPont began work with the huge Wilmington company as a private secretary to his father in 1900. In 1915 he and five others purchased the holdings of T. Coleman duPont and started an expansion program.

Associated with him were P. S., Irenee and Lammot duPont, John J. Raskob and R. R. M. Carpenter.

He and his sister, Mrs. Irenee duPont, founded the St. Andrews School for Boys at Middletown, Del. He also was a trustee at the University of Pennsylvania. In 1944 he published a book, "Undersea With Helmet and Camera." It related his experiences beneath the ocean off the Bahama Islands.

He is survived by his wife; three daughters, Lydia, Alice and Sarah, and one son, A. Felix, jr. Another son, Richard C., was killed in 1943 in a glider crash while serving as assistant to Gen. H. H. (Hap) Arnold.

Ex-Inspector Clement Cox Dies; Was a Policeman for 37 Years

Inspector Clement P. Cox, 64, retired chief clerk and property clerk of Metropolitan Police, died at his home at 1627 Varnum pl. ne. yesterday at 6:30 a. m. Arthritis forced his retirement in April and death came after a short illness.

Cox

During his nearly 37 years of service, Inspector Cox received 27 commendations for meritorious police work. As chief clerk and property clerk since 1942, he was in charge of department financial records and was responsible for funds or property held in police custody.

Cox was the first chief clerk to be an inspector. He was transferred from command of the Ninth Precinct to the chief clerk's office after Capt. Lawrence R. Beall absconded with department funds.

Born in Washington June 3, 1884, Inspector Cox graduated from Central High School and joined the police force September 1, 1910. After precinct and detective bureau service, he was promoted to detective sergeant in 1921. In 1930 he became a lieutenant, and won his captaincy in September, 1941.

Inspector Cox was a graduate of Columbus University School of Law, which he attended in the 1930's.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Pauline L. Cox, and a brother, Detective Lieut. Richard Cox.

Funeral services have been tentatively set for 10 a. m. Friday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Pallbearers will be members of the detective bureau.

Guests Hear of Plight Of Europe's Children

By Marie McNair

EUROPE'S 230 million children, victims of the war, are receiving aid through the United Nations Appeal for Children. But a group gathered yesterday at Firenze House, Col. and Mrs. Robert Guggenheim's estate bordering Rock Creek Park, heard from Ralph Tracy and a charming French woman, Mlle. Victoire Guichard, that more funds must be forthcoming if any real rehabilitation is to be done.

Mr. Tracy is executive director of the Washington branch of the organization. Mlle. Guichard, who chame down from New York to talk at the meeting, told how her country is coping with the problem of the homeless, hungry youth of France.

Mrs. Blake Clark made the introductions and Mrs. Guggenheim, a lei of shocking pink carnations over her powder blue frock, was only there to greet the guests.

The "pre-delinquents" of France, Mlle. Guichard says, are the boys and girls between the ages of 14 and 18 who are being brought up under bad conditions at home, such as mistreatment and neglect.

It is for this reason that the "Land of the Youth" organization was formed, supported by private funds at the present time and under the patronage of the Minister of Justice.

The association hopes to re-establish villages in the agricultural section of southern France and to populate them with the young people. Houses will be rebuilt, farms replanted in these hamlets where only the old folk now live and everything is falling into decay.

Each house will shelter from eight to ten boys and girls, and each house will have a married couple in residence to serve as foster parents. The boys will be taught trades and scientific methods of farming.

Money Is Needed

But it takes money and that was the reason for the party yesterday. An appeal to put the Washington drive over the top.

After the brief talks held in the pale green drawing room, guests wandered out to the terrace for iced coffee, and orange juice and a smooth punch.

The Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark were there and Naval Attache of the Netherlands Embassy, Capt. F. Stam, and Mme. Stam.

Mrs. Sailing Baruch and Mrs. McCeney Werlich were watching splashing figures in the turquoise lined pool below the rolling greensward. Mrs. Lee Murphy, stockingless, in an effort to kid herself that she was cool, was talking with Mrs. Leo Brison Norris. Miss Carolyn Nash, forearmed with a fan, told me she's going to Greenwich, Conn., on Thursday for a long holiday weekend and others there were Mrs. John Steelman, Mrs. Leigh Brite, Mrs. Milton Kronheim, Mrs. Elizabeth Nournski, Mr. and Mrs. John Kelly, Lyle Brookover and the loveliest lady—Mrs. Narciso Ramos, in her Philippine costume of sheer mauve patterned in purple and green and edged in matching sequins.

Wilmer Latimer, Judge Bolon Turner, Rear Admiral and Mrs. John J. Manning, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Russel B. Reynolds, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Floyd Parks, Col. and Mrs. Walter Clephane, Col. and Mrs. Walter J. Murphy and Col. Patrick Ryan.

Also, Lieut. Col. and Mrs. Niles Bryant, jr., Capt. Sam G. Kelley, Dr. and Mrs. Richard Purcell, Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Garrity, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Cunningham, Mr. and Mrs. Brockett Muir, Mr. and Mrs. J. Russell Wiggins, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Briggs, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Maas, Mr. and Mrs. William Kueffner, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Butler and Mrs. Ralph Dwan.

MISS DOLLY CORBIN gathered in a number of her friends yesterday for cocktails at her apartment at 2800 Woodley rd. The Norwegian Ambassador, Wilhelm Munthe de Morgenstierne, was ranking guest.

Others included Elovius Mangor, Second Secretary of the Norwegian Embassy; Dean Rucker, jr., Pendleton Hogan, Miss Mary Pitcairn, Miss Beatrice Phillips, Miss Dorothea Villard, Julio Heurtematte, Commercial Counselor of the Panamanian Embassy; Jean Baube of the French Embassy; Mr. and Mrs. Scott Hansen and many others.

THE GOVERNOR of Hawaii and Mrs. Ingram Stainback were the guests in whose honor Mr. and Mrs. John J. Courtney entertained at a reception and cocktail party at their home in Silver Spring yesterday.

Among the guests were the Attorney General and Mrs. Tom Clark, Representative and Mrs. Edward Devitt, Judge and Mrs.

CAPT. AND MRS. J. C. HAMMOCK, USN, entertained Monday evening at a cocktail party in the Madison suite of the Wardman Park Hotel. The occasion was in honor of Capt. and Mrs. W. F. Jennings, USN, and their successors, Capt. and Mrs. P. G. Hale.

Captain Jennings has served for the past two years as Assistant Chief of Naval Operations for island governments, and will shortly assume command of the U.S.S. Iowa. His successor, Captain Hale, comes to the Navy Department from the National War College.

Miss Lisette Littlehales Is Married

BETHLEHEM Chapel of the Washington Cathedral was the scene yesterday of the marriage of Miss Lisette Warren Littlehales and Pierre Gustave Toutant Beauregard of Washington and Columbia, Tenn. Canon Albert Lucas officiated. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Reber Littlehales and her husband is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Toutant Beauregard of New Orleans and New York.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white organdy gown with swiss eyelet bodice. Her finger-tip veil of illusion was held by a swiss eyelet crown and she carried a white prayer book covered with lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Hugh Stevens 3d was matron of honor and Miss Susan McKnew was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Renee, Joan and Suzanne Beauregard, sisters of the bridegroom, and Miss Dorothy Schwarz of Williamsburg, Va., cousin of the bride. The attendants wore white organdy gowns with blue sashes and carried bouquets of pink roses, blue delphiniums and forget-me-nots.

John Nevius served as best man and the ushers were Bates Littlehales, brother of the bride; Francis Addison 3d, Richard Nash of Warrenton, Va.; James Carden of Columbia, Tenn.; Graham Barr of Orlando, Fla., and Felix Williams of Long Meadow, Mass.

Following the reception at the Chevy Chase Club, the couple left for a wedding trip to Canada. On their return they will reside in Washington.

The bride attended the Potomac and Madeira Schools and was graduated from Ashley Hall in Charleston. She attended George Washington University and is a member of the Junior League and of Pi Beta Phi sorority. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Bates Warren and the late Mr. Warren and of the late Dr. and Mrs. George Washington Littlehales.

The bridegroom attended Columbia Military Academy and Harvard University and was graduated from the University of the South at Sewanee, Tenn. He is the grandson of the late Judge and Mrs. Rene Toutant Beauregard of New Orleans and the late Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Green of Savannah and Alpine, N. J. His great-grandfather was Gen. Pierre Gustave Toutant Beauregard of New Orleans.

President to Receive Miss Prucha Before Wedding Saturday

President Truman will entertain Miss Patricia Ann Prucha and Walter Grant Slagle, jr., at the White House Saturday preceding their wedding at 3:30 that afternoon in the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church.

The President and Mr. Slagle's father, W. G. Slagle of Syracuse, N. Y., are lifelong friends. Owing to ceremonies at the Monument Saturday afternoon the President will be unable to attend the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Slagle, parents of the prospective bridegroom, and Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Prucha, parents of the bride-elect, will be in the group to be received by President Truman on Saturday.

Winters—Sachs

Miss Charlotte Sachs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Colman Sachs of this city, and Jerry Winters, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Winters, also of Washington, were married at the Hamilton Hotel June 27.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white satin with a veil of illusion. She carried gardenias with a center of white orchids.

Mrs. Ruth Wolfson and Mrs. Bette Hellman were matrons of honor and Miss Vilma Winters was maid of honor. Misses Rosalind Margulies and Sharon Garfinkle were flower girls. Irving Fleishman was best man.

In Bridal Procession

Foundry Methodist Church was the scene yesterday of the marriage of Miss Vivian Lauretta Willard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orbia Sylvester Willard of Washington, to Fague Kenneth Springmann, son of Mrs. H. D. Springmann of Lorton, Va. The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin and heirloom lace and carried a prayer book with orchids. Mrs. Gertie Marie Weber served as matron of honor.

Robert Duvall served his nephew as best man and the ushers were Robert Duvall, jr., Joseph Duvall, Winfield Fowler, jr., and Charles Henry Weber.

Following a reception at the Lafayette Hotel, the couple left for a 10-week wedding trip to Lake Spafford, N. H. On their return they will reside in Washington.

The bride attended Washington Missionary College and her husband is a graduate of Westminster College. The bridegroom, who is a concert singer, will make his debut in Carnegie Hall in New York this fall.

Miss Phyllis Eibender and Robert Kasnett were married June 20 at the Hamilton Hotel, the Rabbi Solomon H. Metz officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Eibender and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kasnett.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin gown with seed pearl insets. Her veil was held by a tiara of seed years and she carried a bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Sol Barsky was her sister's matron of honor and Miss Harriet Abramson was maid of honor. Sonya Lee Barsky, niece of the bride, was flower girl. Dr. Shelton M. Kasnett served his brother as best man and the ushers were Leonard Kasnett, Irving Chasen, H. Max Ammerman and Jerome Margolis.

After the reception the couple left on a wedding trip to California. On their return they will reside in Washington. The bride attended George Washington University and her husband is now a student at the Georgetown University Dental School.

Miss Gayle Norton Kimmel, daughter of Mrs. Golder Norton Kimmel of Washington and George Peter Kimmel of Brookeville, Md., became the bride yesterday of David Paul Weaver, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Randolph Weaver in Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, the Rev. J. Hillman Hollister officiating.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a marquisette gown and her fingertip veil of illusion was held by orange blossoms. She carried an old fashioned shower bouquet with an orchid center.

Miss Anne Norton Broy of Arlington was maid of honor for her cousin and the bridesmaids were Mrs. Charles Laubach, Miss Jean Urffer, Miss Jayne Schneider and Miss June Doolan.

Charles R. Weaver served his brother as best man and the ushers were Paul G. Wilson, jr., William B. Wilson, William T. Dent and Alfred J. Hall.

Following the reception at the Columbia Country Club, the couple left for a wedding trip. On their return, they will reside in Longwood at Brookeville.

The bride attended Washington College at Chestertown, Md., and her husband is a graduate of the same college.

Welsh—Cooper

Dr. Claude E. Cooper of Annandale, Va., announces the marriage of his sister, Dr. Corinne Cooper, to Dr. William Welsh of Rockville, Md., June 17. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's brother. Guests were the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Barnard Welsh, and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Barnard T. Welsh, all of Rockville.

The newlyweds left afterward for a week's stay at the Homestead, Hot Springs, Va. They practice medicine jointly at Rockville.

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

FASHIONS change in politics as well as hemlines. Here Democrats are giving way to Republicans. In Greece Communists have become as outmoded as knee-length skirts. In Yugoslavia, where only a trifling 10 per cent of the peppery population cares to share its all, Tito has thumbed his shapely nose at Moscow, set up his own variety of grab, which, since UNRRA proved so lucrative, undoubtedly includes shooting for a slice of Marshall Plan gold.

We saw Tito, whose leadership of Yugoslavia's Communist Party Moscow this week declared "creates a hateful policy in relation to the Soviet Union," for the first time from the press gallery of Belgrade's Parliament. Sitting at a desk while humpbacked Moshe Piyade orated with the orgiastic passion of an old-line Communist leader, Tito scribbled notes intermittently with a fat gold fountain pen. Within touching distance stood his personal bodyguard, a young partisan officer in elegant blue uniform, whose nonchalant posture disguised his busy eyes scanning the crowd in true FBI style. Beside Tito sat Alexander Rankovitch, who today shares Comminform censure with his boss. A former tailor once imprisoned for petty theft, Rankovitch, heavy featured, dark hair curling stickily, looked like a Chicago gangster admirably fitted for his role heading Ozna, Yugoslavia's brutal secret police. On Tito's unusually small, delicately shaped left hand gleamed a solitaire diamond. A plate-sized gold star glittered accompaniment over his heart on his otherwise unornamented blue-gray uniform. Drag Tito, Comrade Tito, was quite a picture.

Tito Dedicates Bridge

WE LAST SAW Tito inspecting a new steel bridge erected across the Danube River. The original, bombed by us, had been replaced by a span welded in a new Communist workshop. The steel framework had buckled almost immediately. Since this second span seemed fairly stable, this was an occasion for celebration. Tito, fairly bursting out of a double-breasted gray flannel suit, looked like a combination business tycoon and opera star. He doffed a jaunty fedora while dutiful crowds piped "Zivio Tito" (Long Live Tito).

In between we saw him when he made a speech from a hotel window over Belgrade's Teresija. Like everyone with rooms fronting the square we were ousted while two Ozna lads, itchy fingers on tommy guns, stood guard.

We saw him at a cocktail party in the palace preempted from King Peter, charming, suave, nibbling cakes of chocolate which could only have come from UNRRA stores. We heard about his silk shirts and the conjecture about whether romance had again entered Drug Tito's life because he had ordered two dozen silk pajamas.

Out in the country his name was splashed in prophetically blood-red paint on cottages, walls, even churches. In every building, from every shop window, his stern face stared sometimes paired with Stalin, sometimes alone. Early in the morning, Tito's parade started. First, small boys 8 and 9 assembled to gather wood in nearby forests; at noon, factory and shop workers, nabbed before lunch and forced to march singing through the town; later girls and lady members of Tito's party tramped along singing "We Love Tito, Tito Loves Us." At sunset partisan soldiers did their stint along the main street led by an officer on horseback and actually wearing shoes and uniforms of whole cloth. In between, truckloads of soldiers dashed here and there shouting Tito's all too familiar name lustily.

Russians Dine Alone

WHILE ALL this commotion was going on, a score of Russian officers, possibly big shots unrecognizable since they wore no military identification, were more or less segregated in the Moscow Hotel. Only they were allowed to eat in the dining room. No one dared approach, much less speak to them. Only at night did the 500 Russian soldiers, supposedly the only ones in Yugoslavia, venture out to drill. They marched singing but without bands or even drums through Belgrade's unlit streets.

The whole show was Tito's. Behind these well-known propaganda tricks were Tito's prisons. Seventeen of them alone in and around Belgrade with a record of 20,000 executed without trial between May and September in that year of grace 1945. On the back streets, plain citizens, white-collar people, hid behind locked doors. Ten thousand houses and apartments had been confiscated in a few weeks, their owners, ousted in a few hours, allowed to take along two suitcases to God knows what shelter. The people, foreigners such as we had known in years of happy holidaying in Yugoslavia, were all in prison—the men working in copper mines, the women doing roustabout labor on farms. Every street had its Tito spy who reported every occupant's coming and going. Nights in the unlit streets, when such foreigners as were allowed in Tito's land were supposedly in bed, the indiscreet, such as we, could see Ozna lads walking behind their newly corraled prisoners, guns in the small of their wincing backs. They walked because gas was scarce, a Black Maria unheard of. Every day there were suicides. Sometimes the tough peasants went on strike, refused to sell their produce at government ceilings—and the city, all except the plumping Tito and his intimates, went hungry. This is the lad that Stalin, Ana Pauker, Georgi Dimitroff, Molotov, are up against. Perhaps he's tougher than they think.

Pres. Gallegos To Be Honored

A stag luncheon in honor of the visiting President of Venezuela, Romulo Gallegos, will be held on Friday at the Pan American Union. Invitations have been issued by the Council of the Organization of American States. The luncheon will take place at 1 o'clock in the Hall of the Americas.

Besides the official presidential party, many Washington Government officials, members of the Latin American diplomatic corps, Senators, Congressmen and the press will attend.

President Gallegos is scheduled to arrive in Washington tomorrow as a guest of the United States Government. During his stay in this country, he will travel to Bolivar, Mo., for the dedication of a statue of Simon Bolivar, famed South American hero. The statue is a gift of the government and people of Bolivar's native Venezuela to the people of the United States. It will be presented by President Truman.

Mary Haworth's Mail

After 17 Years' Marriage, Woman Meets Her Affinity, She Thinks; But Both Feel Duty Bound to Stay in Traces; What's the Answer?

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 39, having been married 17 years and have two children, now 15 and five, respectively, and I have stayed with my marriage only because of them.

My husband's widowed mother, a wealthy woman, didn't want him to marry anyone, and as his wife I soon learned I was to play second fiddle to her. He couldn't really love any other woman, I suffered many humiliations at her hands, and if I complained to Tom, he angrily championed her.

She was the most unscrupulous woman I ever knew, and had I left Tom, she would have used all her wealth and influence to give him custody of my baby, so I just stayed on in a ruined relationship. She is dead now; my children are happy in their home and rather close to their father, and I see no point in disrupting their lives at this late date just because I am starved for love and companionship.

However, a year ago I met the man I should have married. I have known from the hour we met that I love him and was meant to love him. He feels the same and is much troubled about it all.

She Thinks Man's Wife Is Unworthy

John has never said a word against his wife, except that he just doesn't love her, but I heard their story through his sister years ago, before I met him. It seems Mary pursued him doggedly, threw herself at his head and deliberately (so his family thought) got herself pregnant so he would have to marry her.

Now he is a devoted father, the parent to whom his children turn for understanding, and one of the children is having a difficult adolescence, hence John feels that if he were to break with Mary now, it would ruin that child.

Also Mary wouldn't let him go without a struggle, as he is phenomenally successful and makes a huge income (and she is reputed to be coldly selfish); and certainly she never would give him the children, as they are her strongest hold on him.

In such circumstances, apparently hopeless on both sides, another man would have talked me into an affair long ago; but not John, who seems to feel it would be unfair to me. I admit I can't think clearly any more. Once I thought all affairs were sordid, but when I think of an affair between John and me, it seems the only solution, and quite wonderful. Am I being very foolish? E. V.

Puts Fine Face On Selfishness

DEAR E. V.: Feeling yourself to be a victim of Fate in the disappointing marriage you made, and informed via grapevine that John's soul was similarly tried, you were prepared to believe you had a lot in common with him, when the hour of first meeting dawned.

Then, finding him personable, with pores open to sympathy, and possibly with a special eye for you—maybe due to grapevine information via his sister about your fretted status, too—you were seized with a sudden craving and determination to make something special of the encounter, to vary the monotony of your resentful dependency on Tom's bounty.

This craving and determination were at variance, of course, with your pious conviction of injured goodness in the "ruined relationship" with Tom; and so your senses told your conscience that John was your soulmate, as if that gave intrigue a hallowed right to develop.

Clear Up Blind Spot in the Self

IN THE SAME self extenuating vein you've been reading your long dead mother-in-law into the picture, telling yourself (and me, at length, in your recital here much condensed) what a horrid person she was and how badly she treated you,—as if her misbehavior somehow justifies your unseemly designs on John.

You repeat this same twisted thinking in re Mary, painting her black as the Ace of Spades, too, as though "what's wrong" with her makes it all right for you to throw yourself at her husband.

In brief, you are blaming two other women for your unscrupulosity in this instance, which suggests that you've never dealt rationally with your own selfishness. Your marriage might have been a success story, if it weren't for this blind spot in your character.

John is flattered by your infatuated attitude, but vaguely content with his marital status, hence unwilling to jeopardize it by getting entangled with you, so you are being foolish in building air castles about an affinity, and my advice is (1) to quit the role of temptress and (2) read Dr. Edmund Bergler's book, "Divorce Won't Help," (Harper & Brothers) to get a saving slant on yourself.

M. H.

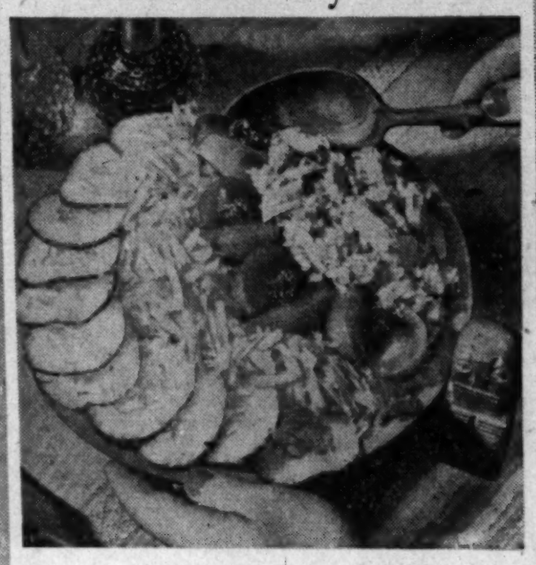
Are You All Set?

Soon the things we wish to preserve will be appearing in market and we must be ready to do them at the most reasonable time. The best quality rubber ring for canning jars is a real economy, for it means air-tight jars and rightly preserved foods. Avoid "pretty jars" as they are hard to keep clean and usually have varied tops that do not fit the uniform lids and rubbers.

For a Summer Day . . .



SALAD bowls are fun to prepare and arrange, and this "Tuna Summer Salad Bowl" is no exception! It's made by filling a salad bowl partially with finely shredded lettuce, then topping with a mound of tasty tuna, flanked on one side by a semicircle of quartered tomatoes, grated carrots, and sliced cucumbers. Add tart French dressing just before serving

Ask Anne About Announcing Birth of Baby

Yes, it's perfectly proper to send such announcements of the birth of a child, whether it's the first or the fifth in the family.

I have noticed several requests lately for help with children's parties. May I make a suggestion? Several recent parties in our neighborhood have been held in the morning and the advantages of the early hour are these:

(1) No interference with children's naps.

(2) If refreshments "spoil" the appetite, it is for the less important lunch rather than for the dinner meal.

(3) Children and hostess are both fresher.

(4) The guest of honor is not "worn out with waiting."

We have found the hours from 10 to 11:30 a. m. very satisfactory, and refreshments are served about 11.

I have a rayon sheer dress that is dark green with white polka dots. Recently, I washed it in lukewarm water, and the green ran into the white polka dots. It is one of my favorite summer dresses, so could you tell me any method that might take the green dye out of the white polka dots? J. J. F.

I'm afraid this is a well-nigh hopeless task. Solium perborate is a safe bleach to use on rayons, but it's just as likely to lighten the green as it is to clear the white dots. If possible, cut a sliver of the cloth from an inside seam and try out the following: Soak for a half hour in a mixture of 2 tablespoons sodium perborate to 1 cup soapy water. If this lightens the white dots and doesn't harm the green part too much, you can mix up a larger batch of the bleach and treat the whole dress with it. You can buy the perborate in a drug store.

The linoleum in my apartment is about 10 years old and not badly worn, just dingy from old wax. What would you recommend to clear off the old wax? R. H.

Either a prepared wax remover that doesn't present a fire hazard or carbon tetrachloride can be used to remove the old wax. Be sure to work in a well ventilated room when using the carbon tetrachloride, as breathing the fumes or absorbing too much of them through the pores of the body can be injurious. Apply with a soft cloth to a small area and work until all wax is removed before starting on a new area. Rinse with cloth wrung out of clear warm water. Use as little water as possible. Wash and rinse a small area at a time. Let dry thoroughly, then rewax.

What is the best and easiest method of cleaning a gas range, oven and broiler? Also, should a frying pan be scoured? I have heard that a frying pan is at its best when never scoured. A. C.

The greasy deposit can more easily be removed from a stove, oven and broiler if you will rub the stained surfaces with a cloth or paper towel which has been saturated with ammonia. Leave the ammonia saturated cloth in the oven over night with the oven door closed. The next morning it should take relatively little scouring with steel wool and household cleansing powder to clean it completely. Or, most housewares departments in department stores sell degreasers which are helpful in removing burned-on grease. Follow the directions which come with the product you buy. If the burners of the range are clogged, these can be cleaned by removing, scrubbing with a brush and soapy water, and then boiling them in a solution of washing soda and water. Use a large enameled pan and half to one cupful of washing soda with enough water to cover the burners. After boiling, rinse in clear water, drain and dry.

Scouring removes the fat from the pan and then foods stick more readily. For this reason, just rinsing a frying pan is advised rather than scouring or washing in soapy water.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that an application has been filed with the Federal Communications Commission requesting the written consent of the Commission to the assignment by Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., to WTOP, INC., of the license for standard broadcast station WTOP, Washington, D. C., the license for remote pickup station WAEW, and the conditional grant for WTOP-FM, Washington, D. C.

Said application was filed pursuant to an agreement dated June 16, 1948, between Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., The Washington Post Company and WTOP, INC. wherein, subject to the conditions specified therein, Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., proposes to transfer to WTOP, INC., the properties and equipment of said stations described in the said application and associated documents, valued under the agreement at Six Hundred Ninety-Nine Thousand Nine Hundred Thirty Dollars ($699,930.00), in exchange for nine thousand (9,000) shares of the capital stock, without par value, of WTOP, INC., and The Washington Post Company proposes to pay to WTOP, INC., in cash the sum of Eight Hundred Fifty-Five Thousand Four Hundred Seventy Dollars ($855,470.00) in exchange for eleven thousand (11,000) shares of the capital stock, without par value, of WTOP, INC. Upon consummation of the transaction, The Washington Post Company will own fifty-five per cent (55%) and Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., forty-five per cent (45%) of the stock of WTOP, INC., and the forty-five per cent (45%) will be placed in a Voting Trust with the President of The Washington Post Company as voting Trustee. The agreement further provides for the assignment to and assumption by WTOP, INC., of a lease, specified contracts, etc., and for the furnishing by Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., and The Washington Post Company to WTOP, INC., of additional funds up to One Million Dollars ($1,000,000.00) upon the conditions and for the purpose therein specified.

Further details concerning the terms and conditions of the proposed assignment and the arrangements in connection therewith may be obtained by an examination of the application and associated documents on file in the offices of the Federal Communications Commission in Washington, D. C.

Pursuant to Section 1.321 of the Rules and Regulations of the Federal Communications Commission any person desiring to acquire the facilities upon the same terms and conditions may file an application to that effect with the Federal Communications Commission within sixty (60) days from June 16, 1948, the date of the first publication of this notice. Bids and Proposals 6

SEALED PROPOSALS will be received by the Federal Works Agency, Washington, D. C., up to 2 o'clock p. m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, July 1, 1948, and then opened publicly to lease the Belasco Theater Building, Washington, D. C., except the fifth floor, that portion of the fourth floor containing approximately 2,125 sq. ft. and located immediately in front of the storage loft over the stage, and that portion of the basement containing approximately 700 sq. ft. and lying south of the main south wall of the building, which are reserved to the United States and to which there are direct means of access from the adjoining Treasury Department Annex No. 1, for a term of years commencing on September 1, 1948, and ending on August 31, 1958. Provided that if the Congress shall appropriate funds for the construction of a new building on the site of the Belasco Theater Building during the term of the lease, the Government shall have the right to cancel the lease on one year's notice in writing. PROVIDED FURTHER that, at the expiration of the first five years of the term of the lease, the Government shall have the right to cancel the lease for any cause whatsoever on one year's notice in writing. All proposals must be accompanied by the required deposit and must be submitted on the form of proposals which may be obtained in Room 7023 of the Federal Works Agency Building, 19th and F Streets N. W., Washington, D. C. The Federal Works Agency reserves the right to reject any or all proposals, and to waive any informality in proposals received when such rejection or waiver is in the interest of the United States. If more than one proposal be offered by any one party, by, or in the name of his or their clerk, partner, agent, or other person, such proposals may be rejected. Prospective bidders may view the property by appointment only by calling EXecutive 4900, Branch 3727, or by addressing a letter to the Commissioner of Public Buildings, Washington 25, D. C. PHILIP B. 'Training' for Big Fight Puzzles Young Fan

Here's a report from one of our local fight fans, who took his 12-year-old son to the Louis-Walcott fight. Before they went through the turnstiles, Papa cautioned:

The stratagem worked, and the kid got through all right. But once inside, he made no secret of his displeasure.

"On the train," he grumbled, "I was 11. Now all of a sudden I'm 16. I'll sure be glad when I grow up, Pop."

IS THIS MUTUAL, ART?

WOL's Art Brown says that as soon as the station begins its frequency modulation broadcasts, the wolves on the announcing staff will start identifying themselves properly.

The station breaks will be: WOLFM.

PERSONAL NOTES

Sunny Schroeder, Gaithersburg 4-H Club reporter: Sorry I couldn't mention your club's play, Sunny, but I didn't get your letter until long past my deadline for that day.

IT'S A PROMISE

Army Secretary Royall promises prospective draftees that they won't be "coddled."

Any G. I. can assure you that you can take the man's word for it.

GIVE-AWAY REPORT

Several readers recently expressed concern over the possibility that pets offered for adoption here are not finding good homes.

I hope the Baltimore Sun's Washington Correspondent Joe Short won't mind my telling you about his phone call, because it's typical of these cases.

"When I asked you to find a good home for our cocker spaniel," said Joe, "you advised against mentioning his pedigree and background—because you didn't want our phone to be ringing all day. Remember?"

"Yes," I said. "I remember. I just ran one line saying it was a cocker and a male."

"And the result was," sighed Joe, "that we got only 100 calls. An even 100 — starting at 5:45 a. m."

1. Post want-ads get results.
2. Give-Away donors have an excellent opportunity to select good homes for their pets.

GIVE-AWAYS

"Friendly male mongrel dog, ideal companion for small boy with big yard." (Overlook 2497.)

"Three cute, healthy kittens." (Woodley 1783.)

"Three charming and exceedingly friendly kittens." (Atlantic 6153.)

"Three puppies." (Hobart 8973.)

FARM PROGRAM

The farmers squawk about the rain,
Which does or doesn't fall;
And of the sun which burns too hot
Or doesn't shine at all.

Sometimes they struggle all year long
For naught but healthy tans.
Why don't they save a lot of work
And get their food from cans?

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Blanche Callaway of 2356 40th st. nw. observes that this is mighty rough treatment for a guy who's getting on toward middle age.

John A. Smith of 830 Jefferson st. nw. quips that a 381-year-old teacher ought to be a whiz in history courses.

Janet Hammett of 4616 13th st. nw. says that if a man that age is still teaching, the shortage of educators must be worse than we thought.

And F. M. McNeill of 81 P st. nw. thinks that we ought to keep an eye on this teacher for a couple of hundred more years, to see whether he breaks Methuselah's record.

I'd like to do just that, Mac—but I'm afraid these typos will be the death of me, long before that.

NEW YORK.—Rebecca West, the eminent English writer, covered the convention and saw Colonel McCormick there. Someone offered to introduce her to the Chicago publisher whose anti-British views have been evident for many years. Miss West replied that they already had met, and described the circumstances: Miss West was visiting Chicago and received a message that Colonel McCormick would like her to come to his home. The distinguished Britisher arrived punctually. Colonel McCormick entered, and when she told him of the invitation he replied: "My dear lady, I am afraid you're the victim of a cruel hoax."

Mike Romanoff visited Cambridge last week, seeing again the places he used to frequent when he was a student at Harvard. Romanoff, who then was travelling under his Czarist colors, made himself remembered by the residents of Cambridge—before he was whisked off by Immigration officials—by renting the entire fleet of 20 Cadillacs used as taxis, so that he'd be sure of transportation into Boston whenever he felt the urge.

Collier's, which printed an article against comic books for children, will publish an editorial next month defending these books . . . On the eve of the Democratic convention there will be an open letter published in the newspapers, and the signers will include such men as Mayor O'Dwyer, Phil Murray and Chester Bowles. Without taking a stand against Truman, they will urge that the convention be an open one with the delegates free to select the candidate they believe to be the strongest . . . Henry Wallace is being profiled by the New Yorker.

Allen Jenkins, the movie actor, recently received Nationwide publicity when he was arrested because of alleged drunken driving and told the judge that his cat, and not he, was driving the car . . . Jenkins has been known to take a sip now and then. A film executive once saw him take a drink, and delivered a lecture on abstinence. He reminded the actor: "You make $1500 a week. If you drink you'll never make more. And unless you save your money you can never have the security a man needs. So stop drinking." . . . Jenkins nodded, saw Spencer Tracy take a drink, and told him: "That's silly, Spence. You can't get a head drinking. How much do you make?" Tracy told him: "Oh, about $200,000 a picture" . . . "Spence," said Jenkins, "drink up."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Dewey Has Seasoned Since 1944

By Drew Pearson

The Tom Dewey who won the Republican nomination last week has come a long way from the Tom Dewey who fell by the wayside in the 1944 campaign.

Rep. Fogarty

Talking to a couple of friends at 2 a. m. in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel in Philadelphia, Dewey remarked:

"Harold (referring to Harold Stassen) is young and he's bitter. He needs to lose a few fights. In this game you've got to have seasoning. The kind of seasoning that makes you as good a loser as you are a winner.

"I used to be like Stassen," continued Dewey, "but I learned my lesson—the hard way. Harold will find that principles are worth fighting for. And that certain victories aren't worthwhile if you've got to sell your soul. I learned it the hard way. Stassen hasn't had his com-uppance yet. I've had my share. He'll get his in this convention. It will make a better man out of him."

Drafting Industry

Most businessmen didn't know it, but there was a hidden clause in the draft act signed by President Truman last week which permits a limited draft of industry as well as manpower.

Almost unnoticed in the closing rush of Congress, a provision was tacked on the draft bill authorizing the White House to place "mandatory orders" for material needed for national defense. The new draft law also requires the steel industry to furnish steel to manufacturers who need it for defense production.

What's more, the law has teeth in it. The President is empowered to seize any steel plants that fail to comply.

Truman's Running Mate

Here are the results of a poll of 100 Democratic House members on the question of who would make the best vice presidential nominee on the Democratic ticket.

Representative John Fogarty of Rhode Island, who conducted the poll, asked two questions of his Democratic colleagues:

First—If Harry Truman is nominated for President, do you think his running mate should come from East or West of Missouri?

The 100 Congressmen interviewed were unanimous that the Democratic vice presidential nominee should come from the East.

Fogarty next asked his colleagues whom they favored for second place on the ticket. Ninety-three of the 100 Democratic Congressmen voted for Representative John McCormack of Massachusetts, Democratic whip of the House.

NOTE—Fogarty discreetly refrained from asking, however, whether they thought Mr. Truman should run again.

More Civil War

Three more Latin-American republics are currently on the verge of internal conflict which may lead to full-scale civil war. In each case the immediate cause stems from local politics, but the real root of the trouble is economic crisis and social unrest.

In Ecuador and Panama, recent presidential elections have brought such evenly matched returns for the chief opposing candidates that both sides claim victory. Election boards take weeks in which to make an official recount and, while that goes on, the more passionately partisan voters get worked up to an explosive pitch.

First complete but unofficial returns in Panama gave Arnulfo Arias, who was forced to resign the presidency seven years ago because of his pro-German leanings, a precarious 1500-vote margin over his government-backed rival. However, the official review seems to be changing that picture.

Ecuador's situation is similar, though not yet so clearly defined. There, handsome, American-educated Galo Plaza, running as an independent, appears to have been elected by a few thousand votes over the Conservative Party's standard-bearer. But what may happen is, anybody's guess, since the Ecuadorean army is not controlled by either candidate but by the third man in the presidential race, Gen. Alberto Enriquez, who ran a poor last.

Enriquez was backed by a coalition of Socialist and left-wing Liberals, to which the Communists added their unsought support. The chances are that if trouble comes, these elements will try to pull a fast one and seize power.

Storm Clouds in Peru

Finally, the storm clouds gathering over Peru for the past year are ominous indeed. Since last October, President Luis Bustamante Rivero had ruled with an army-navy cabinet, after all political parties refused to collaborate with him. Now the generals and admirals have resigned en masse and Bustamante is faced with a critical situation.

He took office three years ago, having won election through the support of the Apra Party, led by Victor Raul Haya de La Torre, a shrewd rabble-rouser.

The Apristas had been an illegal organization until Bustamante became president. He lifted the ban against them, tried to get along with impatient Haya De La Torre; but the latter's insistence on immediate radical social reforms caused a break.

The Aprista boss returned to Lima on June 1 after more than two months in the United States, saying that "The hour of decision has come." He received a tumultuous welcome from some 250,000 Peruvians. His program of mystic social justice, jingoism and Huey Long-like promises gets followers the way honey draws flies.

Dirty Look

Some people always are prepared . . . To give a dirty look . . . And try to make a fellow fee! . . . As though he were a crook . . . They seem to be chagrined because . . . Of something that occurred . . . Or having been reminded of . . . The way in which they erred . . . And so they hope their gaze will have . . . A withering effect . . . Regardless of the damage to . . . Their meager self-respect . . . They never seem to realize that . . . They give themselves away . . . As plainly as the anger that . . .
